$100,000 GRAVEYARD SHIFT AWARD

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Macmillan Bloedel Ltd. has been ordered to pay more than $100,000 in wages withheld from employees who refused to work new graveyard shift hours at the company's Somass sawmill operation.

In an award made last month, arbitrator Clive McKee ruled in favor of Local 1-85, International Woodworkers of America in the dispute which centred around the Somass workers' defiance of an order changing Monday graveyard shift starting times to midnight from one a.m.

In making his decision, McKee appealed to both sides to settle the question, saying "sound labor relations dictate that this matter be explored and resolved and not be allowed to drift on."

Triple Milfoil Fight

KELOWNA (CP) — A three-pronged attack against Eurasian milfoil and other water weeds plaguing British Columbia waterways, particularly the Okanagan Lakes, was announced Friday by federal environment minister Len Marchand.

Marchand said a $94,000 contract has been awarded to Fraser Burrard Diving of Richmond for the design, construction and testing of an underwater weed plow to be tested on Okanagan Lake by the end of the summer.

The minister also announced a second contract worth $313,000 to three consulting firms based in Ontario and Nova Scotia to design, build and test a new and safer system for the use of herbicide 2,4-D in the Kawartha lakes in Ontario.

Marchand also said that a ban has been placed on the import of seven species of water weed, including the Eurasian milfoil, as home aquariums have been blamed as one of the sources of noxious water weeds in Canada.

Environment Canada has banned the import of Eurasian milfoil, the waterchestnut plant, hydrilla, Brazilian pond weed and three other species of plant under the Plant Quarantine Act.

Marchand said the underwater weed plow to be built for use in the Okanagan Lake system uses a blade to uproot the milfoil weed from six inches into the sediment bottom of the lake.

He estimated it will cost $500 per acre to operate the plow on its first pass on the weeds, and $100 an acre on future passes. He said preliminary plans are to use the machine once a year or every two years.

Marchand said the results of the tests may provide a successful mechanical means of removing noxious plants from lakes and rivers without having to resort to chemical control.

The minister said the $313,000 contract for the Kawartha Lakes involves the use of herbicides like 2,4-D without the need for putting the herbicides in the water.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL FIGHTS GUERRILLAS

SALISBURY (AP) — A 12-year-old girl grabbed her wounded mother's pistol and helped fight off black nationalist guerrillas who ambushed the family's two-car convoy in eastern Rhodesia, it was reported today.

The girl's 10-year-old brother also was wounded in the attack, and the woman and her son were listed in satisfactory condition in a Salisbury hospital, the South African Press Association reported.

The news agency said the girl and her mother were travelling in one car and the father and son in a second when guerrillas attacked near Cashel, 64 kilometres south of Umtali on the Mozambique border.

The girl used her mother's .38-calibre pistol to return the fire while her father opened fire with a rifle, the agency said.

It said the family, which is white, was in the process of moving from its farm in the area. The family name was not released because of security regulations.

Beer Pickets Back As Charges Flying

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brewery workers in the Greater Vancouver area resumed 24-hour-a-day picketing Friday, charging that several hotels have had beer delivered from behind picket lines.

John Langley, business agent for the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, said the union has also assembled "flying picket squads" to follow trucks suspected of carrying beer from the breweries.

Langley said the union became suspicious because several hotels, which he refused to name, were without domestic beer for several weeks "then all of a sudden they had beer."

He said several trucks were seen Friday carrying beer.

However Bob Binnendyk, vice-president and general manager of Labatt's in B.C., said the charges are "totally and absolutely unfounded."

Binnedyk said there has been no beer delivered to hotels from Labatt's breweries in New Westminster and Victoria. He said he was sure the same applied to Carling-O'Keefe, Molson's and Columbia, the other breweries involved in the strike-lockout which has cut British Columbia beer supplies for almost a month.

A spokesman for the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union said Friday he was unaware of any deliveries of domestic beer.

Langley said the suspected shipments were the reason the union turned down a request by Labatt's and Carling-O'Keefe that trucks carrying carbon dioxide be allowed through picket lines.

Binnendyk said gas will be needed "if and when we get ourselves back into production" and that without it, start up would be delayed about two days.

Binnedyk said the lack of gas will jeopradize about 25,000 barrels of beer—the equivalent of 350,000 cases—which could go flat if the dispute continues.

"It's not a critical situation yet but it could become critical," he said, "in two or three weeks for some of the beer. Beer does not improve with age like whisky."

Meanwhile, B.C. beer drinkers are making do with supplies of imported United States and European beer or are turning to white wine and cider.

"Our only problem is trying to keep up with the demand," said production manager Paul Bergeron of Jordan and Ste. Michelle Cellars Ltd.

PLAYING POSSUM SAVES PROSPECTOR

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A wounded prospector acted dead and saved himself from an alarmed black bear as he emerged from swimming in the Chilliwack River, 10 kilometres south of this Fraser Valley community.

John MacAndrews, 54, of Surrey, suffered facial cuts when the female bear, apparently alarmed for the safety of her two cubs, struck him as he was dressing on the river bank.

He was not seriously injured and was released after examination at Chilliwack Hospital.

Mark Pimlott, regional information officer of the fish and wildlife branch, said MacAndrews likely saved himself by playing possum. If a bear attacks, he said, a fetal position will help protect the victim's face, neck and stomach.

Syrup Incident Thickens

LONDON (CP) — Buckingham Palace is aghast at the suggestion of ingratitude levelled at the Queen by the city fathers of Westmount, Que., and promises an immediate investigation.

Westmount, which has donated $500 worth of maple syrup for the royal breakfast pancakes each year for the last 10 years, says the Queen didn't say "thank you" this year.

A palace spokesman said that all mail is acknowledged and "we even thank people for gifts which we don't accept."

The spokesman said the first the palace heard about the situation came in a telephone call from a Toronto newspaper.

"It's a surprising story altogether," he said.

He admitted "mistakes do occur — but not often."

NEWS BRIEFS

Jail for a Swim

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents who allow their children to swim at any of the city beaches closed because of pollution could face fines of up to $500, one year in jail or both, says an official of the Ottawa-Carleton Children's Aid Society.

Italy PM Named

ROME (UPI) — Sandro Pertini, an 81-year-old wartime resistance hero once condemned to death by the Nazis, was elected as Italy's first socialist president today after a 10-day deadlock in parliamentary voting.

Tax Line Drawn

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — At a special meeting city council has approved a bylaw that limits increases on 1978 taxes to 10 per cent over those paid last year. Those whose tax bill has increased by more than 10 per cent and who have already paid are eligible to apply for a rebate on the excess.

Freight Disrupted

OTTAWA (CP) — Freight service between eastern and western Canada has been disrupted because 125 Canadian National Railways employees in the northern Ontario community of Capreol have been booking off sick, a company spokesman said today.

Disco Deafness

TORONTO(CP) — A report released Friday by Dr. G. W. Moss, the city's chief medical officer of health, recommends that ear protectors be promoted for use in discotheques.

Deficit Swells

OTTAWA (CP) — The government had a deficit on its operations during May of $313 million, more than twice the $149 million deficit recorded in the corresponding month a year earlier.

More Strike Time

There were 351,022 mandays lost due to labor-management disputes in B.C. during the first quarter of this year, compared with only 13,230 the year before in the same time period, the ministry of labor said Friday.

Trafficking 'Profit' Removed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge moved Friday to take the profit out of drug trafficking by imposing a $50,000 fine in addition to a 12 1-2 year prison term on a trafficker.

Justice Thomas Berger said he could think of no more effective way to deter the drug trade than to "confiscate the profits made in trafficking."

Justice Berger imposed the penalty on Milos Kotrbaty, 55, who pleaded guilty to two counts of trafficking in heroin after he sold a half ounce to an undercover policeman in January, 1976, and a full ounce to the same officer a month later.

The amounts involved totalled $5,300, but Justice Berger ruled that the court had the power to impose a fine that catches profits made by the accused in transactions other than those to which he had pleaded guilty.

He said the evidence in the case was that the money and liquid assets, which in Kotrbaty's case amounted to $183,000, came from the sale of heroin.

In default of payment of the $50,000 fine, Justice Berger ordered an additional five years imprisonment.

Convicts Given Wider Rights In B.C.

Prisoners' rights are given greater recognition in new rules and regulations for provincial correctional centres announced Friday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

Gardom said in a news release that under the regulations approved by cabinet, prisoners in the B.C. system will be dealt with in a fairer manner.

The attorney-general said the highlights of the new regulations include:

—A clarification and restructuring of the disciplinary processes which provides for an internal panel, with the inclusion of an appointed impartial third party and a system of appeal procedures;

—The setting down of definitive standards for the use of prisoner segregation, or solitary confinement;

—The institution of a grievance procedure giving prisoners a method to express their concerns;

—A general tightening of all guidelines, leaving less possibility for interpretation on the part of prison staff.

Gardom said prisoners must be advised in writing of any breach of prison rules and regulations that have occurred and a hearing must be held within 72 hours.

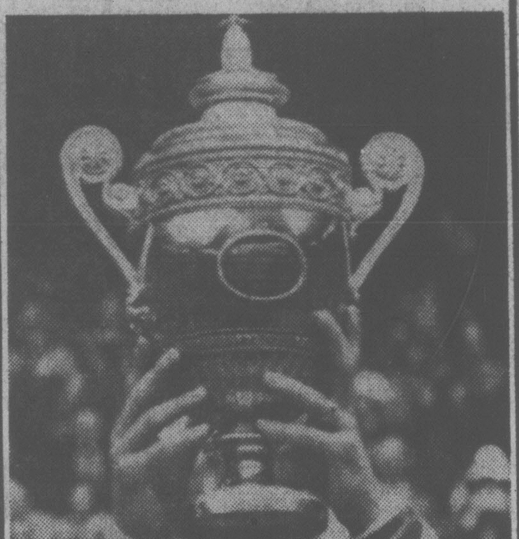
"An appeal procedure is available for inmates or staff to the director of inspection and standards within seven days of the determination of a hearing," he said.

"The regulations provide a range of alternatives, both formal and informal, in dealing with misconduct and providing opportunities to inmates to make amends. The penalties vary from reprimand to a limited use of segregation."

Other areas of the regulations give details on aspects of medical procedures, work, education and recreation.

He said the approval of the regulations follows a five-year study and were developed after consultation with institutional directors, corrections personnel, justice system components, private agencies, groups concerned with prisoners' rights and represetatives of the private sector.

"The final alterations were made with the updating of the Federal Prison and Reformatories Act and the Provincial Corrections Act," Gardom said.



BORG BREEZES TO THIRD TITLE

LONDON (AP) — Bjorn Borg won his third consecutive Wimbledon men's singles title today by putting down American Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 in a comparatively mild rematch of their battle in the final last year.

The 22-year-old Swede became the first man since Fred Perry in the 1930s to win the crown three times in a row.

His victory this time was far more decisive than the five-set brawl he struggled through last year when he finally downed Connors 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4. This time it was all over in in one hour, 47 minutes.

Borg adds the crown to spectacular victories earlier this year in the French and Italian open championships.

No-Name Groceries Arrive

Lindsay displays products

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The prices seem incredible. A $3.39 box of detergent for $2.15, a $1.59 jar of strawberry jam for $1.29 and a $2.59 bottle of baby shampoo for $1.99.

It's part of the no-name grocery business sweeping the country. The first generic products have arrived in Victoria and they will go on sale Wendesday at the Royal Oak Econo-Mart.

Manager Gary Lindsay said he has only a small line of groceries to begin the new program but the list will be expanded within weeks.

"We are definitely the first to sell generic groceries in the Victoria area."

Generic groceries have no brand names, and that's where the savings come, he said.

There is no fancy packaging or advertising campaign.

"Companies spend thousands and thousands of dollars to get their products known so supermarkets will stock them. With generic products there is none of that because the label simply says peas or corn or coffee."

Lindsay was reluctant to talk prices because there is not supposed to be any competitive action taken to support generic groceries.

"Once you get into that, you start running ads and the whole purpose of the venture has been lost."

He did mention the above prices, however, and added that bleach would sell at 98 cents. A famous brand name bleach the same size sells at $1.37.

"In general, the price reductions should be as much as 20 per cent."

In some cases, however, prices are like comparing apples and oranges since products may be similar but not identical.

"The guarantee is that all generic products are number one quality and all ingre-

Oriole Wins Race

The Oriole was the big winner of the Small Ships race from Hawaii to Victoria today.

The local navy ketch beat the Vancouver sloop Greybeard by 100 miles.

On corrected times, the Oriole won the race by 339.4 miles.

Greybeard had been the early leader but the Oriole found favorable winds during the past two days and won handily.

Finish line was at Cape Flattery. The Oriole was scheduled to arrive at the Inner Harbor at 4 p.m. today to tie up in front of The Empress. The Greybeard is expected shortly after midnight.

Both vessels will remain in the Inner Harbor to participate in a sea festival which begins July 20.

No Major Break in Beirut Truce

BEIRUT (AP) — Sporadic rifle fire echoed through this Lebanese city early today but no major breaks appeared in the uneasy two-day truce between right-wing Christian militias and Syrian forces who shelled Beirut's Christian sector for six days.

The Voice of Lebanon, a private Christian radio station, said a Christian woman was killed and a young girl wounded by Syrian snipers.

The command of the Syrian-dominated Arab peacekeeping army, brought in to end the Lebanese civil war between Christians and a leftist Moslem-Palestinian alliance in 1976, said the Syrians were withholding fire "despite several provocations."

The fighting that broke out last Saturday, the most violent since the civil war, left 184 Christians dead.

The Syrians, who issued no count of their casualties, said they were cracking down against a Christian campaign to build up their militias in order to dominate war-ravaged Lebanon.

A spokesman for Christian forces in southern Lebanon Friday called on Israel, an ally of the Christians, to move against the Syrians.

"The only language the Syrians understand is force, and Israel has the force to deal with them," said Francis Rizak, in an interview on Israeli state radio.

He said if the Syrians were to eliminate the Christians in northern Lebanon, they could then capture the south and try to use it as a springboard against Israel. Christians and UN peacekeeping forces control southern Lebanon since the Israelis withdrew last month after occupying the territory to deter Palestinian guerrilla attacks.

The Middle East Reporter, an English-language daily digest of Arab affairs, said today the Soviet Union has assured Syria of help in case of war with Israel over Lebanon.

The newsletter quoted unidentified East European sources as saying the Kremlin has guaranteed Syrian President Hafez Assad the Soviet Union will not stand idly by if Israel mounts an attack on the Syrian peacekeeping troops.

The United States has been urging Syrian, Israeli and Lebanese leaders to exercise restraint to avert a military confrontation that might plunge the Middle East into a new conflict.

Western governments joined in urging President Elias Sarkis, who had threatened to step down Thursday unless Syria and the Christians gave him a free hand to govern, to stay on the job.

Sarkis, a 53-year-old Christian, agreed to freeze the resignation after Assad urged Sarkis by telephone from Damascus to stay on.

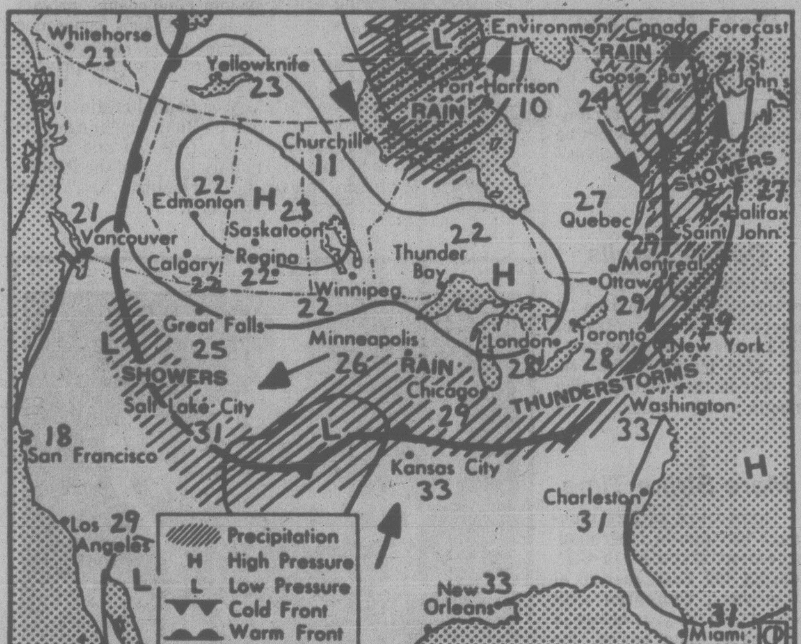

Map valid until noon Sunday

A ridge of high pressure remains firm over the eastern Pacific. As a result Pacific disturbances continues to be shunted northward towards Alaska. Little change is in sight over the next few days with the ridge providing a protective barrier to B.C., along the coast a moist marine layer will bring night and morning low clouds into most communities. In the Interior strong daytime heating will set off the odd afternoon and evening shower or thundershower. Temperatures will be on the warm side.

Mayor Has Grim Figures For TM

Five disciples of the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi tried to sign up Mayor Mike Young at city hall Friday but all they got were some grim statistics to meditate on.

In a 90-minute pitch, the members of the Transcendental Meditation Society asked the mayor to lend his name to their membership drive.

They said the more people meditate, the lower the crime rate goes. If one per cent of the population is in TM, the crime rate usually begins to decline.

In Victoria, they said, four per cent of the population is practising TM.

"How come the crime rate in Victoria went up by 17 per cent last year when there are so many people practising TM?" Young asked.

The disciples argued that people would be able to contribute more to the community after meditating and raising their consciousness, the aim of the TM Age of Enlightenment.

But Young replied this is also the aim of Christianity but, so far, nobody has tried to ordain him.

The mayor meditated a moment and then said while there may be some therapeutic value in TM, the office of mayor should not and would not be used to aid in their membership drive.

The meeting was adjourned.

3 Rescued After Night On Ledge

Three men were rescued this morning after spending all night on a ledge in Haslam Creek canyon about 15 miles west of Ladysmith.

A Ladysmith RCMP said Garry Shelton, 24, Christopher Bieling, 22, and Terrence Radford, 18, all from the Ladysmith-Crofton area, were hiking up the side of the 1,100-foot canyon Friday night when they got into loose shale and became trapped about 150 feet from the top.

The wives of the trio, who were waiting on the road above, heard their cries for help at 10:30 p.m. and called in on a CB radio for assistance.

The police spokesman said the trio had descended into the canyon to retrieve parts off Radford's car which had gone over a bank the day before.

ORDER OF CANADA TO EX-CITY MAYOR

Former Victoria mayor Dick Wilson is among 60 people honored Friday with the Order of Canada.

The new appointments bring to 1,241 the number of citizens to receive Order of Canada decorations for outstanding achievement since the awards were instituted in 1967.

Other British Columbiams named are Stewart Alsbury, Langley, active in the harbor industry; Ida Halpern, Vancouver, who collected the folk music of coastal Indians; Tsutae Sato who taught Japanese for 49 years in Vancouver; William Hamilton, president of the Employers Council of B.C. and John Owen Wilson, former chief justice of the B.C. Supreme Court.

dients are listed on the label according to law," Lindsay said.

"The products may be a bit different than the things the customer is used to. But, bleach is bleach. How can they change it? And strawberry jam is always the same — it contains strawberries."

Generic groceries have been sold for several years in Eastern Canada and the U.S. and the experiment has been judged a success.

Sales usually are a bit slow in the early going but they pick up once customers become satisfied with the quality of the products.

The generic groceries are coming to Victoria through Kelly Douglas, which buys for Econo-Mart.

Packaging costs are reduced any way possible. Products are in plastic bags or other simple containers. Manufacturing sites vary. The jam was manufactured in the Okanagan.

Lindsay said if generic groceries achieve general acceptance it will help lower food bills for the consumer.

While generic products will be sold starting Wednesday, the store will continue to carry brand name items as well.

The first load of generic items are mainly in the non-food category.

Control Cuts Irk Pilots

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association Friday joined in criticism of a proposal by the federal transport department to reduce air control tower operations at some airports, including Victoria International Airport.

"For safety sake alone the association strongly resists any reduction in control tower operations," said president Ken Maley.

The department proposes to use radio control between midnight and 6 a.m.—described by a transport official as the quiet hours.

However one airport in each of the regions would retain 24-hour air controller service. They are Gander, Nfld., Mirabel in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

Airports besides Victoria without air controllers for the six-hour period would be Edmonton, Moncton, Halifax and St. John's, Nfld.

The department says the move would save $1 million a year.

Maley said the crash at Cranbrook in February which killed 43 persons was reason enough to keep air control operating in as many centres as possible.

"That incident indicated that radio control is not as safe as air control," he said.

"If the federal government reduces the number of air control hours, then they will have to live with that risk."

No target date has been set for reducing air control operations but the transport department said Jan. 1 next year is possible in the Atlantic provinces.

But first there will be consultations with civic officials in the cities affected.

Fish War Progress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canadian and U.S. negotiators Friday reported some progress but no agreement in negotiations to end their fishing war.

Beetlemania Hits Maine

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — "Zillions and zillions" of clinging, crawling beetles bred in deep pits of chicken manure have overrun several Maine communities and driven people from their homes, Maine officials said Friday.

"It's like an Alfred Hitchcock movie. People are desperate. They're sweeping out quarts-full of the bugs from their bedrooms every night before they go to bed," said state entomologist Richard Dearborn.

"And they don't squash easily either. They have hard shells. You have to pick them off. People say they crawl on them at night and they hide in the bedsheets and small spaces."

The "lesser mealworm beetle" until late last month was thought to be a variety helpful in the chemical breakdown of chicken manure — left from the area's major egg farms.

But Dearborn said a check last month showed the mealworm breed was in fact useless in the job it was once encouraged by farmers to perform, "and now we have zillions and zillions of them," he said.

"It's not like having flies, which are normally produced in shallow chicken manure pits. These beetles breed in the deep pits. They're hard to brush off you. They cling. It's not like flicking off a fly."

Spy Asks Mercy

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — A former U.S. official and a Vietnamese student were sentenced Friday to 15 years in prison for spying after each protested his innocence and the American pleaded for mercy.

Concluding the first spy trial to stem from the Vietnam war, U.S. District Judge Albert Bryan Jr. levied the prison terms on former U.S. Information Agency employee Ronald Humphrey, 42, and antiwar expatriate David Truong, 32.

In emotional pre-sentencing statements, Humphrey insisted he was no spy but merely a misguided idealist who had acted for the love of a woman.

Truong made a defiant attack on the U.S. government and its Vietnam war role.

"In the name of God, I ask for mercy," Humphrey told Bryan in a weak, quavering voice. "My life is ruined, my career is over, I am bankrupt.

"I cannot feel remorse for crimes not committed. I am not a spy, not a conspirator, not a foreign agent ... I am not a Communist."

Greenlight to Omni

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Chrysler Corp.'s subcompact Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon cars have no safety problem related to stability and handling characteristics, according to extensive federal government test results announced Friday.

The Transportation Department report directly contradicts findings by Consumers Union, which last month said the virtually identical cars are "unacceptable" because of "inferior emergency handling" risks. The Transportation Departement said tests used by Consumers Union have "no significant relationship to any real-world driving task or manoeuvre."

Officials at Chrysler, which earlier denounced the Consumer Union findings with similar language, expressed relief Friday.

"These cars now have been put through some of the most extensive tests ever conducted by both the U.S. and Canadian government safety agencies," said vice president for engineering Sid Jeffe.

In a telephone interview, Jeffe said his company has 5,000 "dedicated, hard-working people at Belvidere, Ill., working on these cars, and frankly, they are ticked off . . . CU owes these people an apology."

Moscow Trial Draws Blast

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, by placing two leading Jewish dissidents on trial next week, is making a "ham-handed" move that might hurt detente with the United States on the eve of renewed SALT talks, Western diplomatic sources say.

The Kremlin announced Friday that computer programmer Anatoly Shcharansky, accused of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, is to be tried for high treason Monday in Moscow. On the same day, Alexander Ginzburg stands trial at nearby Kaluga on charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda."

In Washington, the U.S. state department issued a statement cleared by President Carter warning that the fate of the two men will have an impact on the "constructive development" of Soviet-U.S. relations, chilled in recent weeks by issues ranging from Russian involvement in Africa to alleged Soviet spying in the United States.

State Secretary Cyrus Vance meets Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Geneva, Switzerland, for new strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) on Wednesday, and Western sources here deplored the timing of the trials at what they called a critical stage of negotiations.

The sources also predicted the postponement of a proposed U.S.-Soviet scientific co-operation agreement due to have been signed when Carter's scientific adviser Frank Press visits Moscow next week.

Shcharansky, 30, can be sentenced to death if convicted of treason by espionage. A leader of the Soviet Jewish emigration movement, he repeatedly has been denied permission to emigrate to Israel himself.

Ginzburg, a central activist in the human rights Helsinki Group, has been held incommunicado for 15 months and faces up to 10 years in a labor camp if convicted.

Shcharansky also has been held incommunicado since his arrest in April, 1977, after the government newspaper Izvestia accused him of involvement in a spy ring of U.S. diplomats and journalists controlled by the CIA.

Campagnola Vows Long Lottery War

OTTAWA (CP) — The dispute between the federal government and the provinces over the lucrative lottery business could continue for another year, Sports Minister Iona Campagnolo said Friday.

The dispute is expected to be an issue at the first ministers' conference in August.

The provinces get 12.5 per cent of the net revenue and five per cent is used by the federal government to support amateur sport, recreation and physical fitness.

Campagnolo says this sharing agreement must be changed because proceeds from a national lottery cannot be used indefinitely for the benefit of only one or two cities.

Only Nova Scotia has accepted a recent federal offer to split Loto Canada profits 50-50.

The federal-provincial confrontation developed last month at a meeting of ministers responsible for lotteries when the provinces delivered an ultimatum to the federal government to end Loto Canada in 1979.

Ned Shillington, Saskatchewan's minister of culture and youth, said the provinces entered the lottery field on the understanding that Loto Canada would end in 1979.

He and the other provincial ministers expressed "shock and disapproval" that the federal government "seems determined to bulldoze ahead in this field."

Loto Canada will continue its successful $10 ticket lottery for million-dollar prizes, but is also introducing a new "lotto game" in which the player selects his own number for one dollar. The prizes in this game will go up to $500,000.

Campagnolo angered the provinces and federal opposition parties last month when she admitted Loto Canada rushed to beat Ontario and Quebec to the punch in establishing computerized numbers games. The federal lotto game will begin in November, while Ontario's computerized pick-your-own-number game is set to begin in March, 1979.

The battle escalated this week when the British Columbia branch of the Western Canada Lottery Foundation issued a directive forbidding its distributors to sell Loto Canada tickets.

Campagnolo said it now is obvious that the provinces are being greedy and want to control all lotteries in Canada. The irony of this, she said, is that the federal government made it possible for the provinces to establish lotteries by amending the Criminal Code in 1973.

It's obvious neither the provinces nor the federal government is going to get out of the lottery business, she said. "I honestly believe there is sufficient revenue for both to share. I don't want to be greedy."

With the average Canadian now spending more than $40 a year on lottery tickets, there is a large enough market for both federal and provincial lotteries, Campagnolo said. The important thing is to cut out the duplication to reduce the amount of money spent on lottery advertising.

Admitting it is "a bit demeaning and unseemly" for federal and provincial ministers to fight over control of gambling, Campagnolo said, "I will not be intimidated out of what I think is a legitimate revenue source."

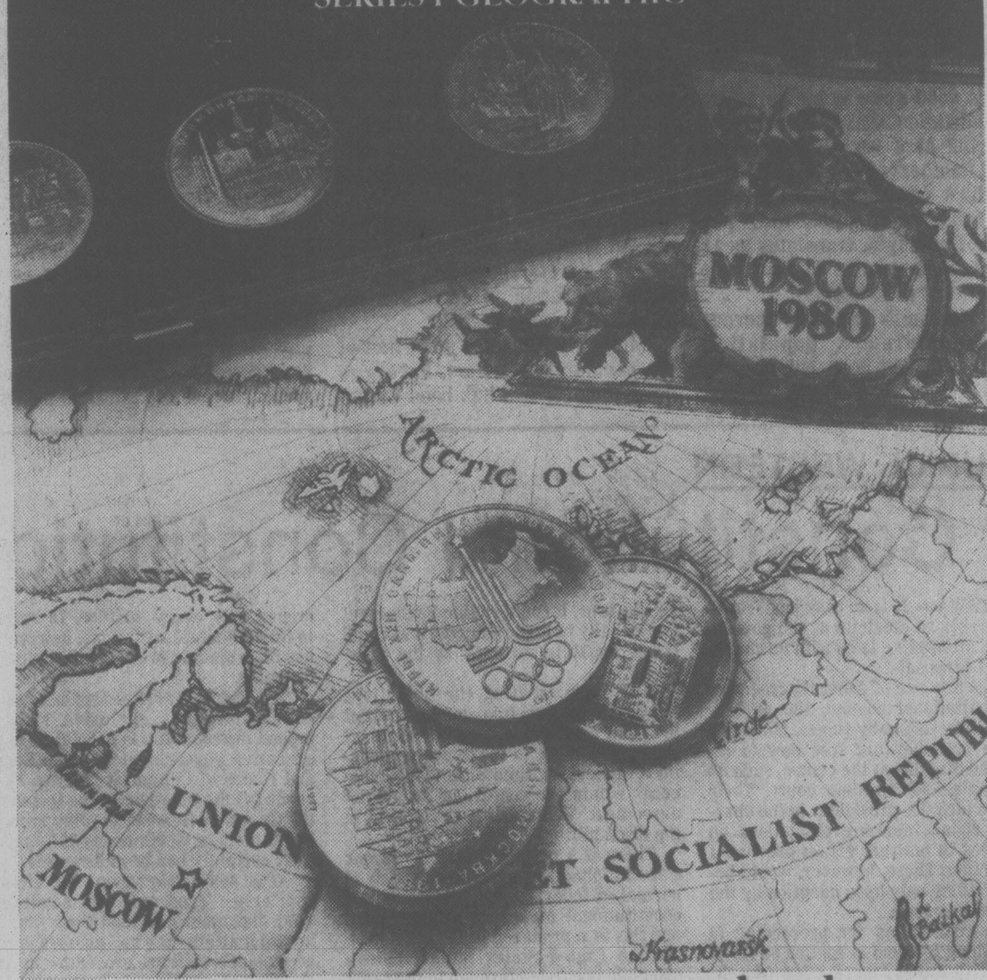
Announcing 1980 Olympic Coins
SERIES I GEOGRAPHIC



A unique opportunity to increase the value of your Olympic Collection

Series I Geographic (two 10 Rouble Coins and four 5 Rouble Coins) in Brilliant Uncirculated quality is now available at select coin dealers.

The 1980 Olympic Coins are of unusual interest to collectors because:
- These Coins commemorate the first Olympics ever held in the Soviet Union.
- They are the first silver Rouble Coins minted in over half a century.
- They are legal tender and guaranteed for their full face value in the Soviet Union by the Government of the USSR, as authorized in accordance with an act of the Government, the Ministry of Finance, and the State Bank of the USSR.
- They will be issued in such limited quantity that only a fraction of 1976 Canadian Olympic Coin collectors will be able to own them.

An extremely limited issue

The total number of the first Series of solid silver 1980 Olympic Coins minted—the first silver Rouble Coins minted in over half a century—will be strictly limited to only 450,000. 100,000 will be reserved for distribution within the Soviet Union and other related Socialist countries—leaving a total of only 350,000 for the rest of the world.

The obverse of all Coins shows entwined wreaths encircling the globe. Coin shown actual size.

This is by far the most limited issue of individual Olympic Coins minted since the beginning of the modern Olympic Games. For example, the 1976 Montreal minting was 650,000 to 1,480,000, depending on the Series issued. The 1952 Helsinki minting was 600,000. The 1964 Innsbruck minting was 2,900,000.

The Coins in Series I—two 10 Rouble Coins and four 5 Rouble Coins—depict cities where the Olympic events will take place. On one of the 10 Rouble Coins is a map of the Soviet Union. On the other, scenes of Moscow. The 5 Rouble Coins depict scenes of Leningrad, Tallinn, Minsk and Kiev.

1980 Olympic Coin Specifications

SILVER	5 Roubles	10 Roubles
Diameter	33 mm.	39 mm.
Thickness (gauge)	2.4 mm.	3.3 mm.
Weight	.54 troy oz.	1.07 troy oz.

3% of the face value of the Coins sold in Canada will be contributed to the Canadian Olympic Association.

The first gold 1980 Olympic Coin

Six Brilliant Uncirculated .900 fine gold 1980 Olympic Coins will also be issued in extremely limited numbers. The first Coin is now available—the first gold 100 Rouble Coin ever minted.

Only 130,000 of the first gold Coin will be minted—30,000 will be reserved for distribution within the Soviet Union and other related Socialist countries, leaving a total of only 100,000 for the rest of the world.

In addition, five platinum Coins will be available at a later date.

Order these Coins through your local coin dealer. But don't delay. Only a limited number are available.

Bomb Ticks More Slowly

Too many people in the world and not enough food or resources for all of them — this is the central problem of our age. Conditions in many countries are bleak; however, there are some encouraging developments.

The "population bomb" may not have been defused yet but, according to the United Nations' special agency which is attempting to come to grips with the world's population problems, it is definitely ticking away at a slower rate.

The UN Fund for Population Activities reports that there has developed in the last decade a significant decline in fertility. The world is far from achieving zero population growth, and the numbers of births still far outnumber deaths almost everywhere but the rate of increase is slowing down.

Since the 1960s, a 15 per cent slowing of the world's birth rates has occurred. What is most impressive about the decline is that it has not been limited to the industrial, urbanized nations of the developed world. It has been spotted in the small, mostly island nations with about 12 per cent of the developing world's population and it has happened in large mainland countries with 30 per cent of the underdeveloped nations' population.

This good news is tempered by the realization that the decline is occurring at a very high level of actual numbers of people. A decline in India's population growth rate from two per cent a year to 1.8 per cent, for example, translates as 11 million more mouths to feed in a year instead of 12 million.

The decline is also quite uneven. Western Europe's population growth rate has been cut in half, North America's is down by less than a third, India's has dropped 10 per cent. Individual nations considered to have achieved a static balance of births and deaths — zero population growth — are the European Common Market (minus Italy, France and the Netherlands) plus East Germany. Some countries, especially islands or small, densely populated states, have achieved quite remarkable decreases in the fertility rate. As a result, the most recent UN world population estimate for the end of the century has been revised downwards to 6.2 billion from 6.4 billion. Now, the world holds about 4.2 billion people.

Many questions have been stirred up by this development. Has the world's population entered a new epoch? Or is this only a temporary plateau in growth rates? Will fertility increase again along the familiar historical lines?

As UNFPA director Rafael Salas stated in his annual report, it calls for considerable academic analysis. There is no common agreement on the factors which might explain the decline that has already taken place. Do more effective birth control programs explain it? Or has increased urbanization been the prime mover? (The headlong rush to the cities continues in much of the world. Mexico City had 8½ million residents in 1970, and is expected by the year 2000 to grow to 31.6 million! The Tokyo-Yokohoma sprawl should nearly double to 26 million.)

Have increased literacy, the improved status of women, a rise in the age of marriage and international migration affected the decline to a greater degree?

Mortality rates, the other half of the population equation, have also gone down. There has been an unprecedented rise in life expectancy. On average, people now can expect to live 54 years in the developing countries, where formerly the lifespan was 42 years. In the developed world, average life expectancy has gone up from 65 years to 71.

Infant mortality is the most important factor affecting over-all mortality rates, and here too there has been a marked decline in the high rate of a decade ago — in the developing world, 180 deaths per thousand births (some individual nations hit over 200) against 57 in the developed world.

Another part of the population problem is the increasing number of young people and the elderly. The number of young adults has increased from about 500 million in 1955 to about 750 million in 1975. And the portion of the population under 15 years of age — in some countries up to 40 per cent — is becoming more significant.

Declining mortality rates mean more people are living to old age. The percentage of the world population over 60 is still small, 8.4 per cent in 1970 forecast to rise to 9.3 per cent by the year 2000. But the absolute numbers are expected nearly to double, from 304 million to 581 million. Aging is associated with an increase in the number of women, who tend to outlive men, and these relative proportions are expected to increase in the next two decades.

These figures provide a rudimentary sketch of the state of the world's population and demonstrate the still very wide gap between the developed and underdeveloped sectors. If they teach us anything, it is that the population problem cannot be treated in isolation from economic, social and political issues.

MAURICE WESTERN

A Constitutional Constitution

OTTAWA — It is no easy business to unscramble an omelette as the government is attempting to do with its constitutional proposals.

In the absence of general agreement on constitutional change, the government is proceeding by stages. Ministers believe that they are free now to reshape institutions at the centre, such as the senate and supreme court. Their bill also includes provisions in the charter of rights imposing obligations on provinces in matters within provincial jurisdiction. These, however, would become binding only upon adoption by the affected province.

The justification for proceeding in this fashion is found in section 91 (1) of the British North America Act (the St. Laurent amendment) which states that the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada extends to "the amendment from time to time of the Constitution of Canada . . ." Certain exceptions follow.

This sounds quite reasonable. With the egg nicely unscrambled, Ottawa will deal with the white, the provinces the yolk. In a well-managed kitchen, neither side will interfere with the work of the other.

Provinces' Rights

But matters are rather complicated. In government there are rules to be observed, even when leaping with gay abandon from the frying pan to the fire. If we are to have a new constitution, it must be achieved constitutionally.

Several sections of the bill suggest, however, that the federal chef is being a bit presumptuous. If Ottawa is free, as it claims, to do what it chooses with the upper house, the right surely does not include power to instruct the provinces in the conduct of their business.

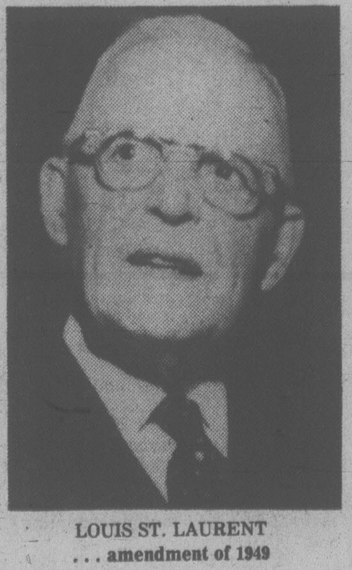
This is exactly what is contemplated in various sections dealing with the House of the Federation. Ottawa would not dare to say how much time the Manitoba legislature should allot for the debate on the throne speech or when the provincial budget should be brought down. But in dealing with provincial appointments, it says that one-half of the members "shall be selected by the legislative assembly of that province within the first 30 sitting days of the legislative assembly next following each general election of members of that assembly."

What is this but simple, unblushing dictation of provincial business? How could any provincial legislature be expected to concede that such a power reside in Ottawa?

It is important to observe also that the St. Laurent amendment aroused controversy. As noted in an official paper published in 1965 by the Pearson government (The Amendment of the Constitution of Canada): "most of the provinces objected. . . . They felt that it went too far; that in the absence of rights of participation by the provincial legislatures, it could enable Parliament unilaterally to make changes that could be of great importance to the provinces."

Far from treating the objections lightly, then-prime minister St. Laurent took the position that the government would be willing to make accommodations to meet legitimate provincial concerns within the context of an overall agreement. This spirit is not evident in the draft bill.

There is a certain symmetry in our constitutional arrangements, which is normal in federations. Thus we have a constitutional monarchy at the centre and this is reproduced in the provinces. (In the United States the republican principle is carried through in the same way). This, it seems to me, creates a provincial interest in the central institutions. For how, to take an extreme case, could Her Majesty continue to be Queen of Manitoba or Saskatchewan, if she ceased, through unilateral Ottawa action, to be Queen of the federation?



LOUIS ST. LAURENT
. . . amendment of 1949

In fact the draft bill would effect changes in the respective positions of the Queen and the governor-general. It is the argument of the government that these are not of major significance. But clearly we cannot know what construction would be placed upon them by a future government with much more in mind. If Ottawa is seeking co-operation, it might be wise to recognize at least a moral obligation to consult with the provinces before proceeding with such changes.

In matters involving the constitution, the government appears to suffer from progressive schizophrenia. To buy provincial consent for patriation, Ottawa is willing in most matters to pay a price in vetoes, double vetoes, double majorities and freedoms for the unbound that increase with every venture. In respect to fundamental institutions, however, it has been moving in exactly the opposite direction.

The Fulton-Favreau formula asserted Parliament's exclusive right to amend the constitution in relation to the executive government and the Senate and House of Commons "except as regards (a) the functions of the Queen and the Governor-General in relation to the Parliament or Government of Canada." That certainly has been forgotten.

After some years came the Victoria charter — Trudeau's own handiwork. That document provided that "the following matters may be amended only in accordance with the procedure in Article 49: (1) the office of the Queen, of the Governor-General and of the Lieutenant- Governor."

Article 49 was the famous provincial veto provision.

But that too has been forgotten.

As matters now stand, Parliament may have the unfettered legal right, claimed by ministers, to re-cast our central institutions; for example, by replacing constitutional monarchy with a republican system. But there is at least one potential check — the upper house. While the Senate, understandably, is very reluctant to set itself in opposition to the elected chamber, it might well feel justified in making a stand if there was serious reason to believe that a transient Commons majority was bent on imposing changes against the will of the electors. The intent of a holding action would be to afford time for nation-wide debate (or perhaps an election) in which the public will would become manifest.

Unfettered

When discussing the modernization of Parliament, the Trudeau government is fond of citing British examples. At Westminster there is a suspensive upper house veto, limited to one year. What is contemplated for this much more complex country is a mere two month check (or much less if urgency is detected by the government majority). While this remarkably mild discipline might be enough to encourage an obstreperous second chamber to make a general nuisance of itself in unimportant matters, it seems altogether inadequate for ensuring that the people will have an opportunity to express themselves in vital concerns.

If the federal government, going it alone and consulting only its own wizards, can come up with nothing more sensible than this scheme, there is additional reason for consultation with the provinces. Not all wisdom is concentrated in Ottawa, as indicated by the fact that today's impeccable policies are commonly the reverse of those which were deemed impeccable yesterday. There was quite a lot to be said for the joint enterprise approach to constitutional renewal. How unfortunate that the government lost patience with it!

Oak Bay Council: Where Politics is Fun

At Oak Bay municipal council, there are no rough edges, no jarring notes, no harsh discords.

The physical arrangements set the tone for a meeting of muted harmony — tasteful panelling on the walls, striped curtains in soft tones over the floor-to-ceiling windows, tweedy rug, a large cork board with artistically-drawn plans of proposed developments.

Curiously, the chamber is almost always crowded when council meets. Even when no major issues are at stake, several dozen Oak Bay residents come to listen to the deliberations of mayor and aldermen. One reason for this is undoubtedly the legendary political awareness of the Oak Bay citizenry. But another reason must be the sincerely warm welcome the public receives.

The councils of Victoria and Saanich have recently bowed to pressure from the public and from a few new councillors and they ostentatiously allow a little public participation through question periods or by holding meetings in various parts of the municipality. But the feeling that comes from those councils remains that public participation is tolerated on sufferance at best.

At Oak Bay council, the atmosphere is quite different. There is a fundamental attitude that what the public says matters just as much as what the aldermen or the civic staff say. It is not perhaps an attitude that council members have carefully thought out or could even articulate, but an attitude so basic that there seems no possibility it could be any other way.

Thus, when audience participation begins to flag at a meeting to discuss the future use of the Victoria Riding Academy site, Mayor Brian Smith suggests the civic staff explain the proposals in more depth to offer the citizens more information and also to give them a few minutes to put together any further thoughts they may have.

Thus, when the public comments finally end, council immediately moves to make its decision while the public still is present, a pleasant change from Victoria where three or more hours of council business often intervene between a public hearing and a discussion by council of the same issue.

Thus, Smith knows and calls by name every member of the audience who stands up to speak. (He admits that he cannot do this at every Oak Bay meeting — occasionally a new face or two turns up in the crowd.)

An interesting point is made by representatives of the Association of Women Electors: one of the best things about Oak Bay meetings, as compared with those in other municipalities, they say, is that the hall is set up so the public can see the faces of the aldermen as they speak. This, they believe, is far better than the arrangements of other councils where the audience sees just the backs of some aldermen and others not at all.

When the time comes for council itself to debate a major issue, Oak Bay's other gigantic difference emerges. This is the legislative process as read about in political science textbooks — a group of serious, dedicated people holding logical, reasonable debates on issues of importance to their municipality. Here there is no name-calling, no playing for political points, no speeches made on the basis of ideology, dogma or sentiment.

There are differences of opinion certainly — the riding academy question was decided by a vote of four to three — but the varying opinions are put calmly, quietly, in speeches backed up by stern logic and dozens of facts and statistics. And the attitude is refreshing: a difference of opinion is seen as just that, not as a cause for war nor as a sign that another council member is either dimwitted, a Maoist or a fascist.

The council members do their homework carefully — they can cite the history of the property in question back for 30 years or more, quote the economic facts referring to its development and recite lists of other parks and open spaces in Oak Bay, complete with acreages and facilities available.

If there is a complaint to be made about the council, it is perhaps that of a lack of fire or passion, a certain monotony of tone that pervades the proceedings. It may be the legislative process as stated in the political science textbooks, but many of those political science textbooks were pretty dull tomes.

Still, that may have been the result only of the subjects up for discussion at council this week. Rumor has it that when the question of sewage treatment plants comes up, Oak Bay can produce as much fire as the rest of them.

Perhaps the best comment about the political process in Oak Bay came from one of the council members after the meeting. "We do have fun, don't we?" he said in all sincerity. What other council in the Greater Victoria area can say that? — B.McL.

Folk Festival

Thanks and congratulations to participants in Folk Festival which honored Victoria last week. They presented most admirable and inspiring performances and the refreshments they treated us with will never be forgotten.

The time, thought and labor devoted to this wonderful display have indeed been amply repaid.

The foundation has been laid for future Folk Festivals here in Victoria. Let us all help to build such a structure and make it world famous. — Miss Barbara E. Mather, 9-1069 Southgate.

Tsitika Watershed

I have been asked to write this letter, on behalf of the Committee to Extend the Moratorium on Logging of the Tsitika Watershed to demand that the Tsitika Resource Planning Committee (TRPC) take up its responsibility to organize public meetings in Victoria and Vancouver on the proposed logging plans for the Tsitika watershed. There are two main reasons why public meetings should be organized in Victoria and Vancouver:

1. In other population centres where the proposed logging plans for the Tsitika watershed were on display during the period June 5-16 at Port McNeill, Sayward, Campbell River and Nanaimo — public meetings were subsequently organized to discuss these plans. Why should the situation be different for Victoria and Vancouver, where the plans were also on display?

2. The Tsitika is of interest not only for northern Vancouver Island residents. Apart from the watershed having high recreation and vacation potential, our committee has pointed out that "it is not only the Tsitika but also the question of future timberland management in B.C. which is at stake in the Tsitika struggle. What does it mean that one of the terms of reference given for the TRPC, according to a brochure available at the displays of the logging plans, was to "solicit input from the public and provide an opportunity for the public to comment on the preliminary plan"? It was because of the intervention of the Moratorium Committee at the Port McNeil public meeting that the meetings organized up-Island became "open forums" where everyone could give their views.

The reality of the Tsitika is that the original moratorium area in February 1973 was 310,000 acres. Now, quite a few years later and many letters, briefs, meetings, etc. down the road, we ae down to 84,839 acres.

The reality of the "integrated resource plan" developed for the Tsitika is that it accepts essentially the position of the logging company of "forest management for the primary production of timber." Protection of the fisheries, wildlife and the environment must accept this. This is not what the members of the Moratorium Committee understand by integrated resource use. This is why we have rejected the Tsitika Resource Management Plan.

The business-as-usual logging methods being advocated for the Tsitika i.e. lrge clear-cuts which can be up to 600 acres, in a mountainous watershed with over 100 inches a year of precipitation, will fundamentally degrade and change te environment of this last unlogged watershed on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

If the Tsitika Integrated Resource Planning Committee will not organize a public meeting in Vancouver — so that open-forum public discussion can take place on the proposed logging plan for the watershed, as well as to raise the question of why log the Tsitika — the Federation of B.C. Naturalists will. — David Orton, for the Committee to Extend the Moratorium on Logging of the Tsitika Watershed.

French or Joual?

When the Official Languages Act was first introduced, I thought that the Trudeau government might be making a mistake in designating French as the other official language in view of all the evidence that the French spoken by many Quebecers was a dialect form of the language not always understood in France.

I remembered reading of the protracted struggle in South Africa between those few who wanted High Dutch to be the other official language and those who supported Afrikaans, the language spoken by the great majority of Afrikaners, which finally resulted in the recognition of Afrikaans in 1925.

We are now told (Times, May 31) by University of Montreal sociologist Stanley Aleong that attempts to bring joual, the colloquial French of the Quebecker, more into line with modern French, have not been successful.

I would have thought that one of the main purposes of the Official Languages Act was to give official recognition to the language spoken by the majority of French-Canadians. In designating French as the other official language, without actually specifying what kind of French, did Mr. Trudeau hope that no one would notice that there were significant differences between joual and modern French? Did he perhaps hope — mistakenly as it turns out — that in promoting modern French, he would upgrade Quebec's speech habits?

Among other things, these differences may mean that the young English-speaking Canadian who has spent many long years studying modern French may find, upon applying for a bilingual position in the federal civil service, that his examiner is speaking a form of the language which he cannot understand.

What concerns me are the hundreds of millions of dollars already spent in promoting modern French. They, I fear, have disappeared for good down that huge and bottomless drain known as the federal government of Canada. — Peter Gage, 308-250 Douglas Street.

Nashville North Salutes Itself

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM
The Sun

Was that really Canada? Was what you saw on your birthday party, through the $4.5 million TV satellite haze of your taxes, the Canada that you know? Three hours of fiddles and guitars. The standard folksy cliche.

Someone should make a study sometime of the brainstorming sessions around the CBC and the Ottawa professional boosters that produced the three-hour sameness that clogged your screen last Saturday night. Tap dancers in Newfoundland. Fiddlers in Prince Edward Island. Nasal cowboy whiners in Calgary. Petticoats here, petticoats there. And everywhere, the tired cliches of the 1960s, the folk and rockabilly singers.

Is that the Canada you know? Recognize anyone? Anything you didn't find on last year's July 1 frenetic answer-to-Levesque hype of pseudo-Canada? Nope, not a thing.

There are two matters here. One is that this is the easiest, laziest way of going about it. Let's take 4.5 million bucks, let's set up an elaborate CBC hookup via satellite to beam the provinces to one another.

Easiest way to do it? Hire a bundle of semi-unknown folk singers, who are grateful for a dollar these days in an over-supplied market. Line them up on stages in 10 provinces and press a button on a camera.

Covering a band on a stage is the second greatest TV copout of all. (No. 1 is covering a fire. TV loves a major fire: It doesn't move and it burns for a long time, allowing laggard crews to get there. How could you ever tell if they are late? It beats covering bank robberies.) Bands jiggle around, jump, smile and make a lot of noise. Great TV.

Because it is the easiest, laziest, that is what you got as your supposed cross-section of Canada on July 1.

The second point is that it is all so disgracefully derivative. The whole guitar-twanging, lament-through-the-nose trend comes out of the great U.S. protest movement of 15 years or so ago. To see a band of bearded and overweight young men standing on a P.E.I. stage in the rain and singing in an undistinguished manner in their boring jean jackets — and have that passed off to me as some authentic mint of my Canada tends to make me want to either weep or go to sleep.

It would take a little more imagination of course (though no more money) to display on a three-hour birthday party something that is unique to Canada, rather than Nashville. Not a single Canadian poet was heard, with something that might be original and feeling. Not an authentic Canadian comedian. Not an athlete seen, hardly a serious artist, not an intellect, a W. O. Mitchell with a short sermon on his country, neither taste nor flavor of what is a grown up country in 1978.

Instead, fiddles and git-tars. Canada strained through the remnants of the Kingston Trio.

Lazy, lazy, lazy.

A Dreadful Place, But Fascinating

Monaco's 'insane architecture' to impress the very rich

MONTE CARLO—The well publicized privacy of the marriage in Monaco last week sent the world, as represented by the press, wild with curiosity. That was unintentional, for the marriage was considered unsuitable.

What happens in Monaco, however outrageous or odd, is not important to the world. Yet because it is so strange an anomaly, it arouses an ungovernable curiosity.

The place is the size of a suburb. It is only an incident in the long line of inessential building, narrowed by rock cliffs, that stares out over a blue and polluted sea. It is dedicated to professional pleasure, and it shows. It is a disaster area, like the face of a beauty that has been lifted too often, too thickly coated with cosmetics, so greedy that the eyes shine like gun barrels, impersonal, unlovable, loaded with jewellery and junk, dressed to kill and for ever on the point of death.

Flag changes

It is a dreadful place, but fascinating.

There has to be a notice to tell you at which road junction the Sovereign Principaliy of Monaco begins, and the French Tricolor changes into a red and white flag for a few miles.

Monaco used to be chiefly notable for its insane architecture. The hotel I stayed in was built for the Russian archdukes who wanted to get out of the snow. It was therefore called the Hermitage.

It is long, low and frantic with decoration. Its dining room makes the Blessed Sacrament Chapel in St. Peter's look austere. Pillars, chandeliers, gilded plasterwork, bronze decoration, long corridors with frescoed ceilings, everything in perfect order, and this is only the second best hotel in the Principality.

The best is the Hotel de Paris, and there the dining room shows signs of insanity. The dining room ceiling is almost out of sight.

This is a determined and successful attempt to impress the intolerably rich, and next to it, all run by the simple-sounding Societe des Bains de Mer, is the Casino.

Here the statues do not even bother to be allegorical. They are simply female. The huge wall paintings are vague and ladylike, and pale as if powdered. The underdressed tourists trailing through it look like Huns in a sanctuary.

The old city which is Monaco is a fortified peninsula. It is a steep acropolis which holds aloft the undistinguished Pink Palace and a dark, Romanesque cathedral, built at the turn of the century. The rich, apart from the Prince, live in the comparatively new town of Monte Carlo at its feet.

Prince Rainier must be one of the most successful rulers in the world. There is a perfectly respectable constitution, but he rules. Within his Principality there are 4,039 Monegasques. There are some 14,000 French, some 4,000 Italians, and 623 British who tend to look like Somerset Maugham.

The Prince's achievements in 25 years of rule have been considerable. When he came to power the economy was sick. He persuaded Aristotle Onassis to invest in the omnipotent Societe des Bains, and when the economy had been safely refloated, he eased the Greek Croesus out.

He married Miss Grace Kelly, who was then the Ice Queen of Hollywood. This was a dynastic marriage that effectively allied him with the conservative side of the United States. It produced not only Princess Caroline and Princess Stephanie, but also an heir in Prince Albert, who is now at an American university.

Prince Rainier had a major hand in building the many tower blocks that now shadow the glories of the Belle Epoque. But who cares? A one-bedroom apartment in a shabby building will cost £200,000 to buy or £1,000 a month to rent. Inexplicably, people compete to live there.

Tax trouble

True, in 1963 he had trouble with the French over taxation. The French wanted to impose their fiscal system on the Principality, and the Prince, who conducts foreign affairs, considered that an infringement of his sovereignty.

It was agreed that Frenchmen who came in after the treaty would have to pay French income tax. Otherwise there is no income tax in Monaco, and to become a citizen is a long drawn-out process.

Estate and inheritance taxes, however, are easy, and businesses are lightly taxed. So a number of very rich people, financiers, fortunate inheritors and very successful professional sportsmen, find it an advantage to live here. (Princess Grace appears to spend most of her time in her Paris home.)

To make this system work two conditions had to be met. The place must be secure and it must appear to be respectable.

To achieve the first there are some 300 well armed police as well as the 80 palace guards. The idea is that kidnapping may start at Menton, just up the road to the right, and communism in Nice, in the other direction to the left, but here it is safe to walk back to your hotel with all your diamonds blazing.

The respectability is provided by the Royal Family. It was the fact that this marriage did not quite fit the desired image that caused the air of constraint that made it, technically, a private occasion.

Phillipe Junot does not quite fit. He is 17 years older than his bride and has a reputation for worldly experience.

His precise financial function seemed to be uncertain to the Princess of Monaco and, of course, her Serene Highness is a Catholic of the most proud and puritannical Irish sort.

List pruned

Her father had made his money in the hard and honorable way, at a time when the American Irish were expected to be poor. The Junots did not present a great catch. They were not, it seems, even descendants of the Napoleonic Marshal.

It was rather like a 'mixed' marriage in the old days in Ireland, with the groom being not only a Protestant but a Freemason as well.

He is, in fact, formally a Catholic, but there was a royal hope that the equivalent of a Father Murphy could do the thing quietly

So the guest list was pruned, though it did include some pretty spectacular divorcees — Frank Sinatra, for one. The royals tended to be out of the second drawer and to have no hope of ever being anything but rich. And the great, dark cathedral was left empty and the public display muted to the blessing of a bouquet in a chapel.

Not that there is anything gimcrack about the royal family of Monaco. The Prince may look and behave like a tired businessman, but the Grimaldis can outrank the Windsors.

Their origins are a little uncertain, but the uncertainty goes back to the twelfth century. They were Genoese nobles. The King of Spain made them princes.

The Monegasques have been fortunate to have a royal family. It has kept the French at bay, though one of their women was guillotined in the Revolution. It has given them an identity that could have been overwhelmed by the offensive sprawl of the Cote d'Azur.

It draws the tourists and puts up the prices, and if the Monegasques are not mad, romantic royalists, they are extremely practical ones. For without the Grimaldis they would be mere Frenchmen and forced to pay real taxes and serve in the Army and not be the keepers of the most sacred shrine to pleasure in all the world.

TV Trials of Unsporting Wife

katharine whitehorn

LONDON — In France, Mme. Claudia Trichard decided that the only way to take her husband's attention away from the World Cup on television was to take his gun out of a cupboard and shoot him.

In Britain, naturally, things are more restrained: Suzy Harris, realizing that her husband was surfacing from the international soccer championship only to go down again under two weeks of Wimbledon tennis, simply took the TV set into the garden and battered it to pieces with a sledgehammer. They both have the sympathy of half the women of Europe.

The BBC plans to give 26 more hours coverage to the tennis than it gave to the football. Figures for that, we are told, were disapponting; but that didn't stop the Cup being on both major British channels for two weeks.

It doesn't stop Saturday afternoons being totally given over to sport, again on both major channels. And it doesn't stop half the year being dominated by Jimmy Hill's Match of the Day at 10 o'clock on a Saturday evening. As this is the traditional mating time of the British, the program is held solely responsible for the recent drop in the birthrate.

What are the kids supposed to watch? Ah, they're supposed to be out playing games — but not, of course, with Dad, because Dad is glued to the TV and probably with the curtain drawn as well, in case the sun makes a distracting reflection on the screen. And the women? Oh, they can have a bit of time to themselves — as if they didn't have only too much of it all week; they can — ah — knit, or do a little sewing; but they'd better not talk or turn on the radio while they do it.

The next time anyone tells you that the reason women don't get on in business is because, after all, man is traditionally the hunter, you could go and show him one of these hunters: slumped in front of the TV, his spear at his side, his arteries like old rubber, his stomach in the At Ease position; watching younger, tougher, fitter, prettier men running around in twos and elevens and fifteens after a ball. Maybe they're conserving their energies, but I do feel inclined to ask, as the men used to ask the girls in the days when they carefully guarded their virtue, "But what are you saving it for?"

Me, the only game I'm interested in is polo — the original kind, played not with a ball but with the head of an enemy. Is there such a thing as Ladies Polo? If so, I know whose head I would choose — Jimmy Hill's, straight off the TV screen.

Moulting Mallards Signal Change

Here it is barely July and already I'm looking ahead to the end of summer. Madness, you say! Maybe so, but it's a kind of mid-summer madness that's usual for me. I'm a cool weather man. You can keep your hot, dry days of summer; give me those cool, bracing days of autumn.

Weather aside, the demise of summer has particular attraction for any birding buff because as July fades into August the birding dog-days fade into the excitement and anticipation of migration. But there's no need to wait 'till August for this; it has already begun — rather inconspicuously to be sure — but begun it has. The first of the host of birds that spread north just a few months ago are already heading south again.

I saw what I took to be my first southbound migrants before June was out — a score of small sandpipers wheeling and flashing over the tidal flats of Witty's Lagoon. Soon, and some birders will have already seen them, these sandpipers will be followed by others — turnstones, yellowlegs, dunlin — to again enliven the now quiet flats of these lagoons.

But these early arrivals aren't migrants in the sense that they are dedicated travellers with a mission. No, these early arrivals are more like drifters. Deprived of an opportunity to nest, or having lost their nests — and there are many reasons why either of these things could happen — these birds drift slowly south. They are far ahead of the stimulus of autumn storms that will send them on their way with enthusiasm. And the shortening days, already becoming apparent, have not yet reached the point where they signal that the days of true migration have arrived.

The birds are not the only signs of the advancing season. For one thing, the Indian plums are already ripening and soon fruit and nuts of thousands of plants will be ready for the picking. But in Beacon Hill Park there is one unmistakable sign of the changing season and that is changing Mallards.

Where even only a month ago the place was dominated by saucy green-headed drake Mallards, only a rather untidy remnant of this former glory remains. The Mallards have begun their moult.

Moulting will be a feature of life for nearly all birds in the next few weeks as they lose their worn spring finery and replace it with the working dress of autumn, but nowhere is this phenomenon of being a bird more apparent to the eyes of men than among the ducks, particularly our old familiar friends the Mallards. Almost before our eyes, the drakes discard their spring garb for the threads of autumn.

For most birds, moulting is simply a matter of shedding old, worn feathers a few at a time and replacing them with new, strong feathers. While the process draws heavily on their energy reserves, it does not incapacitate them greatly. But for mallards, and most of their waterfowl relatives, moulting is a particularly demanding period because they lose all their flight feathers at one time and until new ones sprout and strengthen — usually a period of several weeks — they are flightless. Then they must seek the shelter of lakes and marshes, or for those that nest in the Arctic the protective isolation of the tundra, and await their new flying gear.

But there's another reason why birders look forward to the end of summer — rarities. Fall always seems to being a spate of records of birds turning up far from where they should be; why should this coming fall be any different? In the past, fall has brought Victoria such oddities as a Wheatear from Siberia, a Tropical Kingbird from Mexico, and a Slaty-backed Gull from Asia.

But there's no need to look so far afield for rarities. In the next few weeks Victoria's birders can be expected to turn up others from closer to home — Caspian Terns from the west coast of Washington, possibly a Cattle Egret or Snowy Egret from the south, and maybe a Stilt Sandpiper from the north.

And what this all adds up to is the sooner we get these dog days of summer behind us, the better.

Numac Oil

The known extent of a major Saskatchewan uranium property in which Numac Oil and Gas Ltd. has an interest has been expanded substantially, the company's annual meeting was told.

The uranium ore body under Midwest Lake in north-central Saskatchewan now is known from diamond drilling to be about 4,100 feet long and has a width ranging from less than 200 feet to more than 400 feet.

Forty of 54 holes drilled to date have found minteralization and the high-grade deposits appear to average well over two per cent uranium.

Numac has a 25-per-cent interest in the property. Esso Minerals Canada, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd., is the operator and has a 50-per-cent interest, while Bow Valley Industries Ltd. and an unnamed private company each have 12.5 per cent.

Numac will spend about $14 million for exploration and development of oil and gas in 1978, most of it in Alberta and British Columbia.

Numac had net earnings of $1,186,776 or 27 cents a share in the first quarter of 1978, compared with $974,993 or 22 cents a share in the first three months of 1977.

Northair Mines

Northair Mines Ltd.'s first full 12 months of operations ended Feb. 28 with a net income of $295,858 or 9 3-4 cents a share for the period.

Company president Don McLeod said total revenues from operations was $3,057,623.

McLeod also told shareholders the company has received a $200,000 grant from the B.C. government under its recently introduced accelerated mining development plan.

He said the grant will be used to accelerate development of the company's Brandywine gold property, about 140 kilometres north of Vancouver.

Lochiel Expl.

Net income for Lochiel Explorations Ltd. over three months ending April 30 was $134,000, or 2.3 cents a share, up from $122,000, or 2.1 cents, for the same period last year.

Cash flow from operations was $234,000, or 4.1 cents a share, against $223,000, or 3.9 cents, for the corresponding last quarter.

Higher oil and gas prices was the primary reason for increased earnings.

Cornat Ind.

The B.C. Supreme Court approved the amalgamation of Cornat Industries Ltd. and Versatile Manufacturing Ltd. and a certificate of amalgamation was issued by the B.C. Registrar of Companies.

The amalgamation is effective July 1 and shares of the new company, Versatiile Cornat Corp., will begin trading July 4 on the Vancouver and Toronto stock exchanges.

Shareholders voted a meetings here last week to amalgamate the two companies.

United Church chooses first woman as chairman

Mrs. Jara Smith was elected chairman of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada at its June meeting at Camp Pringle marking the first time in history a lay women has been chosen.

Mrs. Smith has been active in the Presbytery for a number of years and was chairman of the Victoria Presbyterial of the United Church Women. She has had considerable experience of the wider church, at the B.C. conference and as a delegate to general council. In addition, with her husband, Rev. Geoffrey Smith, she served the church overseas for 20 years in West China and Zambia.

The Rev. Hugh Hunter of First United is the new vice—chairman, Rev. Franck Patterson immediate past president, Mr. Rod MacLeod continues as secretary and Rev. Alec Calder as treasurer.

The Presbytery, which includes Lake Cowichan, Duncan, Mill Bay and Sidney, as well as the Victoria churches accepted Bob Humble and Dorcas Larsen as candidates for the ordained ministry. Humble is a graduate of the University of Victoria and a member of Fairfield United while Dorcas is from Oak Bay and has completed his second year at UVIC. There are now seven ministerial candidates from this Presbytery. Janet Silman from Gordon United at Langford was ordained at the recent meeting of the B.C. Conference.

Retiring ministers this year are Harold Wingfield from Lake Cowichan and Bob Dobson, who is serving part time as Western Field Secretary of the United Church Renewal Fellowship. Revs. Gerald McMechan of Centennial and Vernon McEachern of Salt Spring Island were recognized for their 25 years in the ordained ministry.

A Festival of Faith is planned for next March in co—operation with Comox—Nanaimo Presbytery at the new Ecumenical Centre at N. Wellington. The theme is "Telling Your Story, Sharing Your Faith."

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

Malcolm Muggeridge, the sprightly and controversial English journalist and broadcaster who rather late in life embraced Christian faith, said this in a magazine article:

> "Institutional Christianity, it seems to me, is now in total disarray, and visibly decomposing, to the point that, short of a miracle, it may never be put together again with any semblance of order or credibility. In its present state of decomposition, institutional Christianity is not even an impediment to Christian belief, but just a joke."

As part of that decomposing joke, I find it ironic that those words should appear in an article calling for the revitalization of Christian faith to give people today a sense that life has meaning and purpose.

Institutional Christianity is, of course, to a significant degree a failure and a folly. But then, is not institutional anything a failure and a folly, to a significant degree?

I am too deeply involved in institutional Christianity, and have made too many contributions to its failure and folly, to wish to do a whitewash job on it. But is blackwashing the church any more realistic? And is it realistic to suggest, as Muggeridge suggests, that Christian faith can prevail without institutional expression and nurturing?

Jesus himself did not reject institutional religion. He tried to drive the moneychangers and the dove-hucksters from the courtyard of the Jerusalem temple, not because he repudiated what the temple represented, but because he cherished it and was angered by the perverting of it by petty racketeering.

He warned against putting the wine of a new way in faith in the old institutional wineskins but he did call for the use of new, flexible wineskins. Ayone who thinks that all institutionalism runs counter to the spirit of Jesus will have to explain away some substantial chunks of the Gospels.

Would a more vigorous, more creative Christianity result from the closing of the churches, from eliminating the institutional dimension? It could work that way, of course, for a small spiritual elite who feel no need for the institutions of religion, no need for rituals in special buildings at special times, no need for organized programs in Christian nurture and outreach and all that. But most of us do require some institutional support and sustenance for our faith. I can tell you that I need it.

As an insider I am painfully aware that the church today does show signs of its coming unstuck. Hard facts keep me from complacency about the church.

But other hard facts give me a cautious optimism about the church. I do not think that its Jericho walls are going to be tumbled down either by the blasts of strident trumpets outside or by the kazoo-chorus within. I believe that the church, despite its failures and follies, has the resilience, the reserves of creative faith, and the dogged courage to meet the challenges and opportunities of these days.

Through its history the church has always had the capability to reform itself radically and here and there in the church today there are encouraging signs that a new reformation is under way.

From Israel with Joy

Merv and Merla Watson and Family, a Canadian-born group who now live and work in Israel, will be giving a concert in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral on Sunday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. The family has appeared in 37 countries, bringing to their Christian vision finely-trained voices, and a wide variety of musical skills. The evening is being sponsored by the Bethany Joy Society.

This church is truly on the record

By CORBAN GOBLE

What does a church do when it finds some of its members can't attend services because of illness or infirmity?

One Victoria church has the answer. It has started a tape ministry. From a modest beginning on Feb. 6, 1977, when only two tapes were made, the operation has grown to the point that 25 or 30 copies are made of each week's service at Oak Bay United Church.

The church found that the tapes of Sunday services had a ready audience among the shut-ins. Then people on holidays or working started borrowing the tapes to hear what they had missed. One woman, a choir member who was a patient at Royal Jubilee Hospital, played the tape three times for herself and a delighted wardmate.

Then a few members started their own tape libraries. One man has a collection which he plays while fishing for salmon and herring from his seiner. Some have saved tapes with messages from guest speakers and youth leaders or with especially-liked sermons by the pastor, Rev. Bill Van Druten.

The outreach message goes beyond the Victoria area, with tapes sent each week to Baie Vert, Nfld., Fort Franklin, N.W.T., Berea, Kentucky, Nanaimo, Prince George and Dawson's Landing. These tapes go mostly to absent or former church members or families. At Dawson's Landing, though, the tapes are the weekly church service for people who gather in the home of John Moore. The community is in an area where the United Church mission boat, Thomas Crosby V, calls on a regular basis at isolated lighthouses and remote villages.

For these reasons, the minstry's Sunday morning welcome is extended not only to those present at the service, but also to those who will join in worship when they listen to the tapes. For regular listeners, the church will also send a weekly bulletin, hymnbook and a picture of the minister and his wife.

The tape ministry at Oak Bay United is a happy blend of need, vision, dedication and outreach. The program is organized through a special committee of session, the church organization concerned with worship. Dena Wishart, committee chairman, said the group drew on the experience of Oak Bay's Emmanuel Baptist Church, whose tape ministry has been running for about 10 years.

For the most part, the equipment for recording and loaned-out tape players was donated. "There were contributions, too, from individuals and the committee of stewards for the tape purchases," said Mrs. Wishart. The 90-minute cassette tapes are mailed free and are loaned at no charge. The price for those sold is $2.75. After the tapes are returned, they are recycled for later services.

The key person in the tape operation is Bill Kilbey, who retired about a year ago as a senior cook at a nearby hospital. He serves as production manager and recording director.

The preparation of the master tape takes several hours as he edits out the noisy microphones and long pauses, and then balances the sound. The complete service at Oak Bay United is on the tapes, and Kilbey adds to the end of it some musical selections from previous services or from appropriate records in his collection. Copies are then made on his new copier in five or six minutes.

A dedicated group of men and women deliver the tapes each week to the congregation who are shut in or in hospital. "They also stay for a visit, sharing with the tape recipients the same warm, friendly Christian fellowship we have in our church," Mrs. Wishart says.

The tape cabinet, built by a member, also has in it tapes of special programs, workshops, conference theme addresses and institute speakers. These are available for study and discussion groups.

The committee also will tape verbal messages to friends and families of shut-ins who can no longer write or see.

Pope pleased, troubled over moves by church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul, who talks of the approaching end of his days, says he is pleased but troubled at new directions the church has taken during his reign.

Fifteen years ago, he ascended to the leadership of the world's 600 million Roman Catholics at a time when new ideas were giving the church an excitement not felt since the Middle Ages.

Now he speaks of his "fleeting and nearly ended pontificate" and in his final years worries about a church whose unity is threatened by dissent and potential schism.

The 80-year-old pope says the Second Vatican Council was the dominant theme of his papacy, and he appears determined in his final years to avoid a schism over implementing it.

Initiated by Pope John, with Pope Paul guiding its completion and followup, the council gave the church a reformed liturgy, a restructured government, and a vitality it had not enjoyed since the Middle Ages.

At the same time, though, the stimulus to theological discussion led to the new dissent within the church. Leading radical theologians now write books challenging papal infallibility, the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist, the virgin birth of Jesus from Mary, and the traditional church teachings on sexual morality.

Attacking from the other side, French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre and traditionalist followers refuse to accept the council's reforms with Lefebvre holding forbidden ordinations in defiance of the pope.

But Pope Paul seems determined to avoid any final confrontation that would produce an official schism, or division within the church. He has held back from a public excommunication of the rebel archbishop, and his successor will have to decide whether to crack down on the two-pronged dissent or continue the policy of persuasion.

Among other problems the pope has had to face is a decline in the ranks of the faithful and in the priesthood.

The openness of the council and heightened discussions about celibacy also led to a decrease in the ranks of both priests and the religious. The trend has been slowed since the years just after the council, when an estimated 5,000 priests and 10,000 nuns were leaving each year. But it has not been reversed and Pope Paul says this has caused him immense pain.

There is also the question of birth control.

When Catholics accustomed to a changeless religion suddenly were shaken by the radical reforms of the council, they carried over the new attitude into a revolt against one of Pope Paul's most important encyclicals, that of banning artificial birth control.

A Gallup Poll of American Catholics this year showed 73 per cent believe the church should allow birth control. The pope, speaking about the approaching 10th anniversary of his encyclical, acknowledged that many Catholics continue to ignore the ban.

The pope is in generally good health for a man of his age, but has arthrosis that makes it almost impossible for him to walk and has been bedridden by recurrent colds and influenza in recent years.

Several times recently, he has spoken of the approach of his death.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Singing groups offering local concerts

THE 35-MEMBER Arise Singers will perform a live concert of contemporary Christian music on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Free Methodist Church, 1620 Cook Street.

Blending contemporary gospel music, anthems, and hymn arrangements, this year's program will feature many of the most popular Christian songs being heard around the country today.

The singers are made up of 35 high school and college-age young people who are excited about sharing the message of the Gospel through music.

This year, the Arise Singers are visiting the Pacific Northwest of the United States and Western Canada on their 16-day tour. They are a presentation of the Music Ministry of the Free Methodist Church in Moose Jaw, Sask.

IN AN ERA WHEN families are being isolated in society and driven apart, Parkdale Evangelical Free Church is doing something to restore a measure of old-fashioned family fellowship.

By moving the evening fellowship service from 7 p.m. to 6 p.m., starting this Sunday, younger families will be able to participate in the service and invite friends home afterward for an evening of deeper getting-to-know-each-other.

THE FIFTH IN THE series of 12 Christian gospel services for Sunday evenings during the summer will be held at the Cameron bandshell in Beacon Hill Park on July 9 at 7 p.m.

It will be a joint operation by the Victoria Alliance Church under its pastor, Rev. H. Orlin Craig, who will conduct the service; and the Victoria Chinese Alliance Church under its pastor, Rev. Daniel Ho, who will bring the gospel message in both English and Chinese. A second speaker will be Alan MacPhirter.

The musical program will include items by the two churches' combined youth choirs conducted by Simon Leung. Two of these will be Tis Marvelous and Wonderful and I Believe. Accompanist will be Helen Craig.

These special services are sponsored by Parks Services Interdenominational.

THE SINGING GROUP Spiritborne, a Lutheran youth encounter regional team based in Bowie, Maryland, will give a concert in Lutheran Church of the Cross, 3781 Cedar Hill Road, on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Also on Tuesday, the group will perform at the Empress hotel and on Wednesday will be at Butchart Gardens.

JAMES BAY UNITED Church, 511 Michigan St. will hold a church cleaning partySaturday at 10 a.m. Volunteers will be welcome (pot luck, sack lunch).

CHRIST CHURCH Cathedral will host Music in the Cathedral—1978, Saturday at 4 p.m. Organist will be Patrick Wedd, of Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver.

Pierce sharing duties with pastor

New associate at Emmanuel

Emmanuel Baptist Church has a new associate pastor, Dr. Lloyd Pierce.

Pierce will be specifically responsible for evangelistic outreach, follow-up of new Christians and residents to the community, grafting new families into the fellowship, development of cell groups and fostering of daughter churches.

He will also share the preaching and teaching ministry with Pastor Archer, both in Sunday evening worship and in the Wednesday night adult bible study.

Pierce was born in Winnipeg, where he received both his public and high school education. Following 6½ years of business in the grain exchange there, he joined the RCAF in 1942. Later he served as a flying instructor in Calgary—where he held the squadron championship for the 440.

Pierce obtained his B.A. from United College, Winnipeg, in 1949, and subsequently enrolled in McMaster Divinity School, where he was active in the student body. Upon graduation he was called to Facer Street Baptist Church in St. Catherine's, Ont. In all cases his pastorship was marked by considerable growth.

From 1969 to 1971, he served as the B.C. area minister for the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

He comes to Victoria from his most recent pastorate at Blythwood Road Baptist Church, Toronto, during which he earned his doctorate in evangelism from Southern Theological Seminary.

The church is pleased to welcome Lloyd and his wife Jean, and to introduce them to the fellowship and the city.

Sunday day for prairies

The first of three Sundays of the Provinces at St. John's Church will have a special guest preacher at both services in the person of the Rev. Dr. James I. Packer. Dr. Packer is a special lecturer at Regent College, Vancouver, for the summer school program.

Packer is a well known theologian and writer. He attended Oxford University and served at St. John's church, Harbourne, Birmingham. He has more recently taught at Tyndale Hall in Bristol, Latimer House in Oxford and is currently principal of Trinity College, Bristol.

Visitors and former residents of Manitoba will be especially welcomed at the 9:30 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. services. At the parish coffee hour at 10:15 a.m. an informal welcome will be extended by the wardens and people of St. John's Church. All are welcome to attend and renew former friendships and meet people from home communities.

The rector of St. John's, The Rev. Robert MacRae, describes the Manitoba Sunday as "a time of re-creation, holiday and thanksgiving for God's abundance in the land."

The Rev. Canon Minto Swan, former rector of Portage la Prairie, will read lessons at the 9:30 service and at the 11 o'clock service a special guest will be the Rev. R. N. R. Holmes, one time Archdeacon of Selkirk and travelling missionary in Rupert's Land. Bishop Gerald Burch, former rector of St. Luke's parish in Winnipeg, will also read one of the lessons at the 11 o'clock service. All are welcome to attend Manitoba Sunday in historic St. John's "Iron" Church on Quadra.

Evangelical Lutherans seek merge

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — The 35,000-member Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada plans to seek mergers with other Lutheran groups in order to establish an autonomous Canadian church.

A resolution passed unanimously at the church's bi-annual convention this past week called for renewed efforts in Lutheran unity.

If successful, the merger would unite the country's estimated 250,000 Lutherans.

The decision of the convention follows a recommendation from the church's governing council and from its president, Dr. S. T. Jacobson.

An invitation to negotiate a merger was first issued in 1972 by the Lutheran Church in America, Canada section.

Dressing to Kill . . .Literally

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Over-dressing is bad form anywhere but it's really taboo if you're going to walk the West Coast Trail.

Ron McKee of Pachena Bay, who keeps a count of hikers for Parks Canada, has done some research on hiking clothing and finds that too many West Coast adventurers are dressing to kill — themselves.

To avoid discomfort, he says they should pay more attention to the clothes they wear.

He says hikers also carry too much gear.

"They wear clothes more fit for alpine and sub-alpine country where temperatures can suddenly drop and snow may even fall during the summer, he said.

"They forget that temperatures along the coast of Vancouver Island are warm and moderate and spells of rain are to be expected."

A hiker, he says, should wear nothing more than a T-shirt, bathing shorts, thick socks and boots. When raining, a poncho should be worn to cover the packsack and head.

"The worst thing a hiker can wear is tight-fitting jeans or cut-offs," he said. "The former are difficult to dry out. The tight shorts often result in chafing of the thighs.

"The main thing to remember is to wear shorts that stretch and dry quickly."

Long trousers should be carried and worn at the end of the day's hike, McKee said.

He said a young woman last year tested wearing a T-shirt, bathing shorts and a poncho in pouring rain. She hiked the whole day. She wasn't cold and was ready next day to continue the journey.

"Wearing minimum clothing in the rain does no harm as long a you are walking," he said. "When you camp down, change to warm dry clothes."

Not all experienced hikers will agree with McKee, but they won't quarrel with his views that cotton jeans or cut-offs are the worst things to wear while hiking.

They also agree that many walkers carry too much gear and food. Experienced hikers keep their packsacks down to 30 pounds for a week's trip.

They cut down on the load by selecting lightweight food and do away with frills.

For example, even a compass is unnecessary on the trail as long as the hiker sticks to the footpath and beaches.

Experienced outdoorsmen note there are two types of hikers on the trail — those who undertake the trail as an endurance test, wasting little time on the way, and those who walk to enjoy the experience of camping on a wilderness coast.

Those who want to enjoy the outdoor experience should walk between 3½ and 4½ hours a day, they say. If a walker starts at 9 a.m., he should be pitching his tent no later than 3 p.m.

The remainder of the day is spent relaxing and enjoying the surroundings.

Hikers report the trail is in excellent condition except for an 18-mile section at its southern end, starting from Port Renfrew.

A Parks Canada works crew is working to restore the trail in this area.

SOLOMON TIES SET

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has established diplomatic relations with the newly-independent Solomon Islands a 1,400 kilometre string of islands northeast of Australia, the external affairs department announced Friday.

Alan Beesley, Canadian high commissioner to Australia, has been appointed high commissioner to the Solomon Islands as well, a news release said.

The Solomon Islands will name its Canadian representative at a later date.

Color-Bar Wall Now Down

LEEDS, England (AP) — An Asian immigrant from Uganda who built a wall around his factory workbench to protect himself from white co-workers agreed Friday to remove the barrier when his employers promised to prevent racist acts.

Sohan Saggu, a 42-year-old lathe operator at Clayton, Son and Co., erected the six-foot-high hardboard barricade three years ago, claiming white workers threw stones at him and spat at him because of his color.

He came to Britain from Uganda several years ago after Idi Amin, the dictator of that African country, began expelling residents of Indian and Pakistani descent.

Saggu, supported in his complaint by the government-sponsored Commission for Racial Equality, took his case to an industrial tribunal, seeking compensation for suffering and humiliation because of racial discrimination.

An agreement was reached with the employers before the hearing ended.

The terms were not announced, but Saggu said, "I'm happy now. I can work like a human being again. I think my workmates will have changed.

"I'm as British as the next man, only my color is different."

Company sources said Saggu was assured that the company would not tolerate any form of discrimination.

He is one of three nonwhites in Clayton's 130-man work force.

Saggu's complaint had drawn attention as a test case under Britain's Race Relations Act that prohibits racial discrimination.

Racial tensions have been rising in some British cities in recent years, with some right-wing nationalist groups demanding that some 1.9 million non-whites be sent back to their countries of orgin. Many of the non-white immigrants are from former British colonies that now are members of the Commonwealth.

NEW METHOD ENDS SMOKING FOR LIFE

RESEARCHED AT U.B.C.

Recently published results of research at U.B.C. report on a new, simple, pleasant way to end smoking permanently. Proven effective for even heavy smokers, smoking can be ended easily in just 24 hours without drugs, discomfort or weight gain. The new method now available in Victoria is called R.E.S.T. (Reduced Environmental Stimulation Technique). Private, personalized and professionally supervised, it can be used in your own home. 75% to 95% of the smokers who tried R.E.S.T. quit successfully. If you want to stop smoking, or if your doctor has told you to stop, phone now for free information or an appointment. Results are guaranteed.

Smokers who want to stop smoking for life can — Phone toll free, through Operator, Zenith 2280, Personal Improvement Centre, Monday to Friday, 8:30 to 5:00. P.I.C. 1177 W. Hastings.

Drugs . . . fees to fill doctors' orders hike the bills.

Prescription Charges Painful to Pocketbook

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Vic Williams had a toothache but the real pain came when he went to the pharmacist to pick up medication prescribed by his dentist.

The pharmacist counted out eight tablets into one vial and 12 different tablets into another.

Then he handed Williams the bill. Cost of the drugs — $2.37; cost of filling the perscription — $7, for a total of $9.37.

Williams was dumbfounded.

"Seven dollars for counting out some pills!" he complained in a Times interview.

"It's a rip-off. If trade unions set such rates there'd be a revolution."

He said he took his case to Health Minister Bob McClelland.

McClelland said he is "not unaware" of the problem and hinted the government is planning to do something.

But McClelland didn't elaborate and Williams said he's still waiting for an explanation why the fee was so high for only two minutes work.

It's not that prescription fees are anything new. Pharmacists have been charging them for the past seven years. In the past, the profit came on the price of drugs but now they must sell the drugs at cost. Their profit now is included in their fees which average about $3.50 per prescription in B.C..

Jim Swanson, manager of the United Pharmacy in Colwood and past president of the B.C. Pharmacists Society, says despite the fact more than 95 per cent of drugs dispensed are pre-made and manufactured rather than hand-compounded, the profit factor is only a matter of pennies or quarters.

"It costs on the average $3 to fill a prescription," he says.

This takes into account rents, salaries and customer services like "free" delivery, patient drug profiles and time spent counselling patients on drug use and interactions.

He compares fees for service to those charged by accountants or lawyers.

One James Bay pharmacist pegs his dispensing profit at only about five per cent.

Swanson says for years, because of competition and a lack of knowledge about cost breakdowns, the front end business in most drug stores subsidized the dispensary operation.

That's no longer the case with the fee system. Now pharmcists have the mechanism to ensure the dispensary shows a return.

The problem from the consumer standpoint is there is no set fee, nor is there any onus on a pharmacist to provide a particular range of services.

Swanson, who charges a flat $3.75 a prescription, would like to see a one-fee system. But a Times survey of 13 pharmacies in the Greater Victoria area revealed wide variation with fees ranging from as low as $3.15 to a high of $4.35 per prescription.

Many pharmacists reported they use sliding scales, adjusting the fee according to the cost of the drug.

The kinds of services offered also varied.

The majority advertised free delivery within a five mile radius. Several phamacists said they keep detailed records on the types of drugs patients receive.

One pharmacist admitted he gave none of these services yet charges prescription fees ranging from $3.15 to $3.99.

Some doctors to minimize fee costs are writing prescriptions for larger quantities of drugs so patients won't have to return as often to the pharmacist to have the order filled.

But that's a practice Swanson brands irresponsible.

To hand out larger quantities would be to invite abuse, he says.

UIC Claimants Pay Price For Ottawa's Goof

Some 500 people who collected unemployment insurance in April and May last year will receive a bit of bad news in the mail next week.

Ottawa wants some of the money back.

"We regret to inform you that an error has been made," say the computer form letters going out to 400 people in Victoria and 100 in Duncan.

The error was a clerical mistake in the spring of 1977 that programmed computers to pay out an extra $100,000 in unemployment insurance.

Now the federal government is attempting to collect. Bob Haines, manager of the Victoria unemployment insurance office, said Friday the amounts vary from $11 to $532 but average about $250 each.

The error affected a number of regions across Canada and about $5 million extra was paid out. Victoria and Vancouver unemployment insurance offices lost about $1 million.

The Unemployment Insurance Act says that when regional unemployment is more than one per cent above the national rate, then many unemployment insurance claims go into an extended period of benefits. Last spring the national rate was 7.2 per cent, the B.C. rate 8.2 per cent — exactly one per cent difference and just .1 per cent short of triggering the extra payments. But someone programmed the computers to do so anyway, and the cheques were mailed.

Haines said many people who receive the dunning letters will be angry, but shouting at the local unemployment insurance staff will accomplish nothing; the law says overpayments must be recovered. It's a national policy and only your MP can effect a change.

He said that unfortunately, many of those affected were on the fringes of the labor market — those in their 60s, people who had been unemployed for a very long time — and may have left the work force entirely since then.

He also added that everyone who gets a letter has the right to appeal the special levy to an independent board of referees.

'Quit Or Be Fired'

Saanich personnel director Arthur Wilkes was given the option of either resigning or being fired, acting mayor Ald. Mary Casilio said today.

Casilio said council at a closed-door meeting Tuesday agreed to approve a recommendation from municipal manager Bill Tremayne that Wilkes be removed from his job.

The announcement that Wilkes' relationship with the municipality had ended came earlier this week.

Casilio said she was the only alderman to vote against the recommendation.

She said she did so, because she felt Wilkes should have had an opportunity to defend himself.

"He (Wilkes) has the right to come before council and I feel we should have been able to bear his side of the story," she said.

The reason for Wilkes's dismissal has not been made public but apparently stems from his dealings with unions.

Wilkes was involved in the negotiations for a new police contract which have become bogged down over interpretation of a cost-of-living clause.

Artist Faces Charges Of Tax Evasion

A former Victoria artist and his company have been charged with evasion of $43,000 in income taxes.

Geoffrey Allan Rock, now of Vancouver, has been ordered to appear in Victoria provincial court Aug. 4.

A Revenue Canada spokesman said the charges allege that Rock failed to report 1973 income of $8,042.37 and 1974 income of $13,103.42.

There are also two charges against his company, Unicorn House (Cheltenham) Ltd., totalling about $22,000.

Tennis Trip Defended

Saanich parks and recreation chairman Ald. Fred Severson today defended a trip made by himself, Ald. Dave Paterson and two municipal officials to view tennis facilities in the U.S. and Canada.

Severson said the trip, which cost about $2,600, will save thousands of dollars for the municipality.

Severson was answering criticism from municipal ombudsman Ald. Mary Casilio who questioned the value of the trip and the selection of those who went along.

Casilio said she's been inundated with complaints from taxpayers who say the trip was a waste of public funds.

She said she can understand Severson and recreation director Bill Young going on the trip but not Paterson or Alan Colombo, supervisor of the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Severson called Casilio's complaints a cheap shot.

He said council at an open meeting unanimously decided to undertake the survey and if Casilio had any questions it she should have brought them up then.

Mayor Mel Couvelier made the selection of who would go.

Severson said Paterson was chosen because he is chairman of the finance committee and Colombo because he will be in charge of the tennis operation when it's in place.

The group left Wednesday and returned late Friday after touring facilities in Denver, Col., Terre Haute, Indiana, and Calgary.

All were built by the five companies bidding on a four-court tennis bubble at Cedar Hill.

Severson said that as result of the trip, the group is better able to negotiate the kind of warranties and guarantees the municipality should be seeking.

In addition the group feels there could be several areas where the municipality could cut costs.

A recommendation is expected to go before council sometime next week.

FERRY SEX BIAS PROBE STARTS

The provincial Human Rights Branch has launched an investigation into allegations of sex discrimination in the B.C. Ferries Corporation's hiring policies.

The probe was sparked by a complaint that the corporation has failed to give equal opportunity to men and women and denied women senior management positions.

Branch director Kathleen Ruff declined to comment when reached at her home in Victoria this morning.

She said details of such investigations are strictly confidential.

Police Lay Charge Of Attempted Murder

A 25-year-old man was charged today with attempted murder following an early morning stabbing in an apartment in James Bay.

Anthony David Lowe, of 273 West Burnside, was remanded in custody until early next week for plea.

Victoria police said a 26-year-old woman is in good condition in Victoria General Hospital recovering from a stab wound in her abdomen.

Her name is being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Police were called to the woman's resident at 302-114 Menzies at about 3 a.m.

Nearby residents reported loud noises coming from the apartment.

When officers arrived they found the woman stabbed.

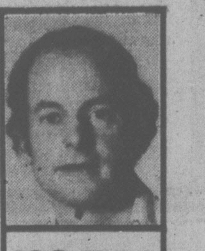
BURNED-OUT FAMILY STARTS AGAIN

'Nowhere To Go But Up'



max low

Pain showed in Jim Holt's eyes as he looked at the ashes.

It had been a home he'd built with his own hands and a few basic tools. A home that, though containing few of the amenities most of us are used to, he was proud of.

But in those eyes there was also a quiet resolution that the fire which Tuesday destroyed his house and blackened some of his land in the beautiful Highlands area will not change a lifestyle he believes is right.

"I'll go the same route again," Jim said simply as we wandered through the rubble Wednesday. "I won't be put off my original concept of finding an alternative energy source. Someone's got to do it."

Going the same route for Jim Holt, his wife Daphne and their children 10-year-old Christopher and four-year-old Genevieve (Jenny) will mean rebuilding the wood-frame house they lost and continuing to live in a manner that would make most of us shudder.

Lifestyles fascinate me, though, so I popped back for a long chat with the family Friday and came away feeling inspired at all that courage and determination.

When they rebuild their home, once again it will have no electricity and no running water.

"We did all our cooking and heating with wood stoves and used coal oil lamps at night," explained Jim. "For a long time we carried buckets of water up to the house from a creek below but then I installed a small generator and we pumped the water up to a big rain barrel."

Drinking water was stored in bottles, there was a baby bath for everyone to use in the winter and in summer a shower was rigged up outside the house in a tin can. Nearby stands an outdoor toilet that has no front and looks more like a small bus shelter waiting for passengers.

"We like to sit and watch the snowflakes fall," Jim explained with a smile. "Some of our friends are a bit funny about it. Like, a few of the women won't use it. But most of them think it's neat."

And what does a working mother (Daphne has been a lab technician at the CFB base at Naden and at the moment works for a telephone answering service) with two small children think of this back-to-nature existance?

"I really enjoy it," she said. "I don't like to sit around doing nothing. I like to keep busy and we always have something to do.

"The way we live really teaches you to be frugal, too, to conserve things like water. We lived for a while in a new subdivision in Central Saanich where you flick a switch and get everything. Well, our Hydro bill there for the first two months was $187! You just abuse it. City water and power are like credit cards — and you know how they are abused."

Television is something they don't miss at all.

"No, we read a lot, play games like chess and cards and listen to all the CBC radio shows," said Daphne.

"Chris is doing much better now at school," Jim pointed out, "He reads much more and is far more aware of the life around him. Besides, it's good for children growing up not to have too many work-saving appliances and for them to share in the family chores. All these modern gadgets today are destroying family unity."

"Yes," echoed Daphne, "you can't be together and watch TV because the screen takes people's attention away from each other."

For years Jim Holt has studied all forms of alternate energy. He has looked at solar heating, which he believes is something people here should treat lightly as we simply don't get enough sun.

"Because we live on the coast, wind is the alternative energy source we should be looking at here," pointed out Jim, who also said hydrogen power will be the thing of the future.

The Holts had ultimately intended to have power in their home, with the aid of a wind turbine he had hoped to build high on the hill above the house this summer.

"I wanted to have a home with no input — oil, propane or electricity — and then bring architects, builders and tradesmen up here to see it to show them it can be done," Jim explained. "Contractors are so out of date. Just to make a buck, they're still building ticky tacky boxes that aren't efficient."

Alas, all this will have to wait a while now. A new home must be built before the wind turbine and other innovations can come.

"It's just set us back a year or so," Jim said with a shrug.

And as I left he was philosophical.

"I have a strange attitude to life I guess, but once these things happen they've happened. There's no use getting too upset.

"You're as far down as you can go. The only way for us to go now is up."

B.C. Vows Fight Over Steel Duty

The provincial government has warned the federal government it intends to fight last month's decision to bring back duties on imported wide flange construction steel, Premier Bill Bennett said Friday.

Bennett said he has sent a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau to protest the federal decision to reimpose the duty and not to provide any assistance to B.C. industries which depend on imports of the steel.

He said he is not prepared to watch the B.C. construction industry suffer at the hands of an unwarranted federal move.

"I have therefore instructed our solicitors to seek remedy on our behalf under the laws of Canada," the premier said.

Critics say the duty imposed this week might lead to the loss of about 2,000 jobs in B.C.

The duty is designed to prevent foreign companies from dumping low-cost wide flange steel in Canada, something which would hurt Algoma Steel Ltd. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the only manufacturer of the beams in Canada.

CONDOMIMIUM CHARGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city businessman has been charged with 15 counts of theft in the promotion and sale of holiday condominiums in Hawaii and Texas.

William Ling is charged with theft of $143,000 from 15 persons in real estate transactions involving two companies, Cantex Development Ltd. and Texcan Development Ltd.

Supt. Bob Mullock of the RCMP commercial crime section said an investigation started in 1976.

BCR LENDS A HAND TO BENNETT JAUNT

The Crown-owned B.C. Railway is lending the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway one of its self-propelled dayliner cars to accommodate people who want to join Premier Bill Bennett on Tuesday when he rides the line.

Bennett said he will travel the line between here and Courtenay to get a first hand look at the service he wants to keep alive. CP Rail, which owns the E and N, has been given permission to end the service at the end of the year.

The E and N only owns one 65-seat dayliner and CP Rail said an extra isn't available. BCR — which uses dayliners between North Vancouver and Prince George — has agreed to lend one for the day to help transport the extra passengers.

Nishgas Seek Top Meeting

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Nishga Tribal Council said Friday it is frustrated by the inability of the federal and British Columbia governments to agree on responsibilities for settling land claims in the Nass River Valley and wants a ministerial-level meeting to break the impasse.

The council said in a news release that negotiations between the two levels of government and the Nishga on Friday revealed deep disagreement between the bargainers for the federal native claims office and the provincial labor ministry, which is responsible for native issues in B.C.

The council tabled a June 16 letter at the meeting from B.C. Labor Minister Allan Williams to Nishga President James Gosnell in which the minister expressed his frustration at the inability of the two governments "to agree on the respective responsibilities and liabilities that will be incurred upon settlement of the Nishga claim."

"The dispute isn't between the Nishga and the two levels of government at all," Gosnell said. "Once again we're caught in the middle like political footballs waiting for Ottawa and Victoria to decide who will take responsibility for our claim."

The Nishga release said the dispute seems to hinge on who will pay for any B.C. land and resources that may be allocated to the Nishga.

The Friday meeting had been called to receive a submission from the Nishga on its proposals for developing the forest resources in the 8,800-square-kilometre land claim in northwestern B.C.

Williams' letter said clarification of the federal position was required first and the forestry proposal was postponed to a later meeting.

90,000-Pound Fish Poser

VANCOUVER (CP) — A boat which left here last week after failing to unload 90,000 pounds of salmon is back at sea fishing this week with no word on what happened to the cargo.

The motor vessel Freeport became entangled in a dispute between the Amalgamated Shoreworkers and Clerks Union and the Prince Rupert Co-op Fishermen's Guild, both affiliates of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Before the Freeport left here, the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the federal fisheries department also became involved when the UFAWU refused to unload the fish except under certain conditions.

The Freeport arrived at the Norpac Fisheries Fairview plant June 27, but the shoreworkers union, which had been locked out by the guild June 23, obtained an unfair declaration on guild boats.

The shoreworkers identified the Freeport as a guild boat, which meant that union members were prohibited from unloading its cargo unless the shoreworkers union allowed it.

UFAWU president Jack Nichol said that fishing companies would go along with a UFAWU refusal to handle the cargo because the union "is in a legal position to strike."

After consulting with the shoreworkers, Nichol said he offered to allow the Freeport to be unloaded if the crew agreed to cease fishing until the dispute had ended and to pay $1,000 from the owners' proceeds for the fish into the shoreworkers' strike fund.

Although the crew members had told him earlier that the fish was rotting, Nichol said they refused his offer.

The boat then disappeared, Nichol said, and now is back on the fishing grounds after unloading its cargo.

Guild business agent Sid Dickens said there has been no progress in its dispute with the shoreworkers since the B.C. Federation of Labor intervened unsuccessfully Wednesday, asking guild members to stop fishing and support the shoreworkers.

Data Processing Manager
To $28,000

The City of Nanaimo has established a new management position in the Financial Services Department. The position has been created due to the City's rapid growth and a commitment to up-grade its information systems.

The responsibilities involved include, initially, a key role in educating user staff in broad data processing concepts and in assisting originating departments in the preparation of cost/benefit analyses of proposed systems. On-going responsibilities will involve the management of a small data processing group, the development of new systems and the continual improvement and monitoring of the City's existing computerized systems and procedures. A TRW Data Point 5500 interactive system has been installed.

A further responsibility will be to undertake specific analytical projects for the Director of Financial Services.

Candidates need not be specialists in data processing. Rather, we seek management skills acquired in an environment where constant use is made of computerized information systems, and where the team approach is adopted in implementing change. Experience in Municipal Government is preferred but not mandatory. The suitable applicant will be familiar with the EDP function and, ideally, will have participated in a transition from manual to computerized systems.

The right individual will find this appointment an attractive opportunity to exercise initiative, management and interpersonal skills in a progressive and growing community.

Please reply in confidence to C.L. Olsson.

Power Buy Hope High

BOISE (AP)—After a conference with British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett, Idaho Gov. John Evans said Friday he's optimistic a deal can be worked out so the Canadian province can supply some of the state's future power needs.

"There's a real possibility it can be worked out," the governor told a news conference. He met with Bennett on Thursday in Victoria. Main topic was the possibility British Columbia might want to send some of its surplus electricity in the summer to Idaho.

Idaho's power peak is in the summer, mainly due to ever-increasing demands for irrigation pump electricity while B.C. hits peak electrical loads in the winter. Idaho has power to export in the winter.

Spokesmen for Idaho's utilities say there won't be enough power to meet demand in a few years unless new sources are found.

Evans said the conference didn't get down to specifics, but he's optimistic something can be worked out.

"We've opened the lines of communication. We went up there to see if they're interested. They are interested," he said.

Evans said he and Bennett also discussed a big surplus of natural gas in Canada. "They have a tremendous surplus because of reduced demand for their product," said Evans.

"We're encouraging people to use natural gas as a replacement fuel," the governor said.

The governor said Idaho's utilities weren't involved in his meeting with Bennett, even though surplus electricity from Canada would have to move over private utility transmission lines to reach users.

"It would take full cooperation of all private utilities to make this work," he said.

Although existing facilities could be used in many cases, new transmission lines might be necessary, Evans said.

The governor said he and Bennett didn't get down to discussing how much electricity might be available and what it would cost. But he said he feels he must explore new sources of power.

"We cannot afford to take a shortsighted view of this state's energy problem," Evans said. "Solutions must be sought from all corners and to do less would not be in the best interest of the state or of the region."

Evans said the Canadian officials said they were considering speeding development of a major hydroelectric plant to produce more power for export.

Lung-Test Unit In Works

VANCOUVER (CP) — A mobile lung-testing unit worth $130,000 will travel throughout British Columbia to test workers and others exposed to conditions which may damage their lungs, says the Workers' Compensation Board.

The unit has been donated by the WCB and the B.C. Lung Association to the respiratory division of the University of B.C. department of medicine.

"I hope the travelling unit will create a greater degree of activity and involvement in vocational medicine, especially respiratory diseases," said Dr. Adam Little, chairman of the WCB.

Bill King, president of the lung association, said he sees the project as a joining of hands in the search for better health.

Trades Favored?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Cement Masons International Union Local 919 said Friday that unions representing electricians, carpenters and operating engineers have received favored treatment in talks with Construction Labor Relations Association.

Business manager Frank Stevens said CLRA negotiators "obviously are trying to buy off the biggies and the bargaining council is doing them a favor."

He said that is the reason the three unions voted last Friday to accept a two-year, $1.62-an-hour settlement while 14 other unions opposed it.

He said negotiations so far this year could destroy the newly-created joint bargaining council of 17 unions that was designed to bring stability to the British Columbia construction industry.

He connected the three unions and the leaders of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council—president Jim Kinnaird of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, secretary Roy Gautier of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and first vice-president Mike Parr of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Indians Rap Rights Stand

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The British Columbia government was criticized by a federal human rights commissioner Friday for failing to fill vacancies in its human rights commision.

Gloria George, speaking to a United Native Nations conference said Labor Minister Alan Williams had put human rights legislation "at the bottom of his pile, in the same category as he put the native people when he went back on his word in respect to native claims."

Two discrimination charges in Smithers, where Ms. George was director of the frienship centre, each took two years to complete, she claimed.

The new Canadian Human Rights Act gives native people an opportunity to look for affirmative action by the government, she said.

Bill Wilson, UNN president, said the federal position on aboriginal rights and land claims is slowly improving.

He said native people must be kept informed of the issues and the public must be aware of native aspirations. He said the answer lay in educating the non-Indian public that Indian and non-Indian goals differ little over the long term.

Also discussed at the meeting was a new effort at province-wide negotiation of aboriginal claims, called the Aboriginal Council of B.C. (ACBC).

At last count there were 33 native organizations in B.C. and Wilson said ACBC would be a joint efort at unity.

NEW WEST CHIEF NAMED

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Vancouver police inspector Ken Brown, 45, was named Friday as the new police chief.

He will take over Aug. 1 from Rod Keary who retired June 30.

Brown, with the Vancouver police for 23 years, was one of 27 candidates for the job as head of the 88-member force. He has been on leave from the Vancouver force since early this year and has been serving as executive officer of the British Columbia Police Commission.

Nabob Lockout Looming

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nabob Foods Ltd. has served 72-hour lockout notice on about 250 employees at its Burnaby plant in a contract dispute centred on the four-day work week.

Nabob president Bill Grant said here the action was taken because the union has refused during negotiations to discuss a return to the five-day week employees had prior to their 1975 contract.

Workers at the Burnaby plant, which specializes in coffee, tea, peanut butter and jam, could be locked out as early as Monday, he said.

Jack Diamond, business agent for the Canadian Allied Manufacturing, Wholesale and Retail Union, which represents Nabob workers, agreed the major issue in the dispute is the company's attempt to take away the four-day week, with which employees are happy.

Other issues involve fringe benefits and wages, he said, although the union has not yet tabled specific demands. The union's last contract expired May 31, placing the workers outside federal anti-inflation guidelines which were lifted in April, he said.

In the event of discrepancy between the above list and the official computer print-out of prize winning numbers, the latter shall prevail. Surprise packages issued right up to the August 4th main draw may contain a Lucky Seven Draw winning ticket number...check your Loto Canada ticket number carefully with this list of Lucky Seven Draw winning numbers...you could be $7,000, $5,000 or $500 richer.

EDMONTON 1978

YOUR TICKET IS STILL GOOD FOR THE MAIN DRAW ON AUGUST 4TH.

IF YOU HOLD A WINNING TICKET:

1. Fill out the stub on the back of the ticket.
2. Mail the stub by registered mail to Loto Canada Inc. P.O. Box 1,000,000, Ottawa, Canada K1G 3Z3 or if there is a regional office of Loto Canada Inc. near you, present it to that office and they will give you a receipt for it.
3. You will receive a cheque for the amount of your prize by mail when your stub has been verified by Loto Canada Inc.
4. Retain the other portion of your ticket — remember it is still eligible to win in the main drawing August 4th, 1978.
5. If this ticket is a winner in the main draw, Loto Canada will by reference to the stub already provided by you, ensure that your prize cheque comes to you automatically after the draw on August 4th, 1978.

Belfast Plan Hit by Veto

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government vetoed a proposed bid by Belfast to stage the 1986 Commonwealth Games, Lord Melchett, Northern Ireland minister of state, has announced.

Lord Melchett said a proposal to stage the Games in Belfast, backed by the Belfast City Council and the Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games council, would involve too much expense — $26-45 million.

Boxla Leaders in Key Clash

Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal and Hampton Park Hustlers, running one-two and separated by only two points, meet for the final time this season Sunday in South Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League action at Pearkes Arena. at 6 p.m.

Hustlers, who have signed former Victoria Shamrocks' players Gordie Neilson, Bill Munro and Muzz Bryant, have hopes of catching the Esquimalt club, which faces a much-improved Victoria Athletics team in their final regular-season game.

Athletics, who face Saanich in the other game at 8 p.m., have been bolstered with the recent signing of late Shamrock cuts Andy Reid and Bill Marechek.

LARGE LOT

Extra parking, lots of trees and a beautiful big home, compare these sizes, super kitchen 22' long with sliding glass doors to large sundeck. The dining room is 24' long with fireplace and we have a nice bright living room with fireplace, 4 bedrooms (1 down), 2 bathrooms and family room. Excellent quality floors and rugs. None of this can be seen from the street so if Colwood is your area and $69,900 is your price, call today to view.

Borg Destroys Connors in Final

LONDON (AP) — Bjorn Borg won his third consecutive Wimbledon men's singles title today by putting down American Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 in a comparatively mild rematch of their battle in the final last year.

The 22-year-old Swede became the first man since Fred Perry in the 1930s to win the crown three times in a row.

His victory this time was far more decisive than the five-set brawl he struggled through last year, when he finally downed Connors 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

He adds the crown to spectacular victories earlier this year in the French and Italian open championships.

Borg took the first two sets with identical scores and each in 35 minutes.

Connors won the first two games of the opening set, breaking in the second, but Borg suddenly fired ahead to win six games in a row and the set. His serve was deadly and his play commanding as he broke Connors three times.

The Swede didn't let up in the next set and broke in the third game. Although Connors came desperately close to breaking back in the fourth with four break points, he allowed Borg to recover.

Connors held service for 2-3, but Borg held at love in the next game and broke again for 5-2. He had to fight for the last game, playing three set points.

The first six games of the third set went with service, but Borg gave notice of his intentions by holding serve to love in the sixth game.

He then broke Connors in the seventh game and held serve for 5-3. He accomplished one more break and the title was his once again.

It was all over in in one hour, 47 minutes.

Bjorn defeated Victor Amaya, Paul McNamara, Jaime Fillol, Geoff Masters, Sandy Mayer and Tom Okker to get to the final.

Connors' victims were Russell Simpson, Kim Warwick, Tom Gorman, John Alexander, Raul Ramirez and Vitas Gerulaitis.

Borg thus joined Martina Navratilova on Wimbledon's 1978 roll of honor. She downed two-time champion Chris Evert 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 Friday for the women's championship.

Carey Brings Mussels In

First baseman Mike Carey is the man of the hour for Victoria Mussels of the Northwest Baseball League today.

Carey Friday night slammed out five hits in five trips to the plate, including a home run; and, more important, a game-winning single in the ninth inning as the Mussels broke a 4-4 tie for a 5-4 victory over Eugene Emeralds.

It was the first win for the Mussels in their three-game series with Eugene at Athletic Park and was accomplished before 333 fans.

Mussels now have a 5-12 record and trail in the Northern Division while Eugene (13-5) leads the Southern Division.

Reliefer Brian Peterson, who took over from starter Frank Lucarelli in the ninth, got the win for the Mussels, his first.

Lucarelli held Eugene scoreless for six innings. Meanwhile, the Mussels got away to a fast start with two runs in the first inning when Carey hit his home run with Doug Morganti on base.

It was Carey's third home run of the season.

Tad Venger of Eugene broke the shutout string in the sixth, scoring on a wild pitch by Lucarelli and the visitors went ahead with two runs in the eighth.

John Halasz, with his third hit, and Ray Corbett each drove in a run.

Mussels regained the lead in their half of the inning. They loaded the bases on two bases on balls and a bunt single by Carey. Bob Potts then walked to force in one run and Jim Thamann drove in the second with a single to centre off Eugene's fourth pitcher, Mark King, who took the loss.

Emeralds got even in the ninth when the first two runners got on base and Kevin Jacobsen singled home the tying run.

That's when Lucarelli was lifted and Peterson took over to put down the rally, Mark Cauley of the Emeralds hitting into a double play.

Mussels had the bases loaded with only one out when Carey delivered his game-winning blow in the ninth.

Mussels meet Salem at Athletic Park Sunday at 7 p.m.

Jim TAYLOR

What You See Now Ain't Necessarily It

Vic Rapp has chosen the 33 men with whom B.C. Lions will start the Canadian Football League schedule—the operative word being "start".

True, there is a certain amount of job security in making the final roster on cutdown day. The fortunate 33 can heave a sigh and relax, secure in the knowledge that the job is theirs until the instant Rapp finds someone a fraction better. When he does they are gone. Lion tamers have better job security.

Trivia (I): What do Jim Schneitz, John Sciarra, Jim Harrison, Mike Strickland and Sam Cvijanovich have in common? Answer: They were all on the Lions' roster when the 1977 season opened—and weren't there when it ended.

Trivia (II): What do Ken Hinton and Leon Bright have in common? Answer: They weren't on the opening day roster. They were stashed in a hotel, two guys who couldn't make it. When the season ended both were starters and Bright was CFL rookie of the year.

The point being that what you see Tuesday when the Lions open against Winnipeg ain't necessarily what you're going to get for the rest of the year. Like every coach in the CFL Rapp will be scouring waiver lists, his own injury list and the National Football League's cut list—not because he is particularly dissatisfied with his openers, but because he's always willing to draw if he sees better cards coming.

Keeping that in mind, let us consider the 1978 Lions in the light of what Rapp said he wanted.

His priorities going in were, in no particular order, a running game, a better pass rush and stronger linebacking. On the basis of four pre-season games he is hitting around .333. The running game will be better. It has to be. Harrison and the '77 model Strickland aren't there, and Bright doesn't have to run with the ball in one hand and playbook in the other.

It will be better because Larry Key has begun to blossom, because Calvin Culliver shows promise, and because guard John Blain has a training camp under his belt this time. But it may not be as good as it could be. With respect to Jim Lohmann, who earned his starting tackle spot, they will miss the quiet leadership of Layne McDowell, and there is considerable pressure on Tom Kudaba at the other guard as Rapp tries to go with two import linemen instead of three to get an extra import into the secondary.

Rapp would agree, I suspect, that the pass rush he hoped for hasn't quite materialized although the ingredients may be there.

He opted for potential over experience in choosing Drew Taylor over the in-and-out Jesse O'Neal as one defensive end. Louie Richardson's raw talent is awesome. Stardom seems inevitable. But he is a rookie with plenty to learn. The good part is that he knows it. Still, that outside rush may be a while developing.

Essentially, the linebacking problem was named Charles Anthony—a tryer and a leader and a worker who in the minds of the coaching staff lacked the fractional difference between journeyman and dominant force. Rapp never said as much, but he recruited five import linebackers and had a sixth on the hook before he wriggled off.

Now the middle rests with Sam Britts, who was more than good enough in Edmonton until the Esks found Dan Kepley. Britts played the outside in Hamilton. He's back home in the middle and on the basis of one game, he fits. He'll have to, as will Doug Seymour if Rapp sticks with his plan to go with three linemen and four linebackers a fair part of the time.

So, one for three—if only because, confident though he may be, Rapp can't yet be sure that the rush or the linebacking is truly there.

There are other questions, more matters of speed and youth attempting to outrun experience. Not having Rocky Long will cost them, if only on kick returns. The secondary should be stronger inside with import Frank Oliver, but you cannot buy the experience of a Ted Dushinski—a step too slow this time out but still the best open-field tackler of them all.

It is a team that will have to grow, a team that started quickly last year, staggered into a three-way tie with Edmonton and Winnipeg, and has made more changes than either. But it is also a team of promise.

Rapp, ever the realist, has said from the start that this could be a better team than last year's and not do as well. The west is that balanced, that much tougher—and the Lions will take no one by surprise this time around.

Still, if there are negatives there are also positives.

Jerry Tagge came to the Lions last season not knowing the league, its rules or its personnel. Ask him and he'll tell you he did not have a great year despite the western Schenley nomination. He had a good year with a great start and a poor finish. That year, a winter's work and a training program that's left him trimmer than at any time in his pro career, will make him better than the Tagge of '77.

Bright started last year at 185 and finished it at 169, learning to run patterns in league games. He came in this year at 192. If that nagging hamstring clears up, he should be one of the league's top receivers—as should Al Charuk.

Rapp stays cool about Key because he doesn't want his prize rookie to feel any more pressure than necessary. But in an unguarded moment in training camp he said "Larry Key is the fastest running back at getting off the mark that I've seen in my years in the CFL. And I've seen some great ones." The running game may not be overwhelming at first, but by late season when it's really needed it should be there.

Where will they finish? Don't ask me. I can't be trusted. I think Saskatchewan is going to finish last.

HONG KONG GIRL WINS TWO TITLES

Twelve-year old Patricia Hy of Hong Kong was a double winner at the Pacific Junior Regional tennis tournament that concluded Friday at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Hy won the girls' under-14 and the girls' under-16 titles defeating Vivian McAdam of Vancouver in both finals. She won 6-0, 6-4, in the under-14, and 6-1, 6-0, in the under-16 division.

Bobby Moore With Sounders

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Sounders have announced the signing of Bobby Moore, captain of England's 1966 World Cup championship team, for the remainder of the North American Soccer League season. Moore, 37, who will arrive as soon as he obtains his American visa, has played more than 540 games in British soccer and participated in 108 matches with the English national team.

BOOM BOOM'S BOY DEFECTS TO WHA

QUEBEC (CP) — Shrewd Sam Pollock of Montreal Canadiens has lost another first-round pick from the National Hockey League annual June draft of amateur players to the rival World Hockey Association.

Thanks to a trade with Los Angeles Kings several seasons ago, general manager Pollock had acquired that team's first-round pick from the 1978 crop of juniors, the eighth over-all.

In a touching moment at the June meetings, Pollock named Danny Geoffrion, a right winger with Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, as Montreal's top choice.

The moment was touching because Danny's father, Bernard (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, had been a star with the Canadiens for most of his 16-year NHL career, and his grandfather, immortal Howie Morenz, had been the top Montreal scorer in five different seasons.

On Friday, the third generation defected. At a news conference in Quebec City, the WHA's Quebec Nordiques announced they had signed the younger Geoffrion to a five-year contract.

Terms of the pact were not released but one Quebec newspaper said Geoffrion could receive as much as $800,000 over the five years.

The younger Geoffrion scored 68 goals for Cornwall last season. He had indicated after being selected by Montreal that he would probably sign with the Canadiens.

Vistas Still Undefeated

BURNABY — Vancouver Island Vistas knocked off league-leading Vancouver Pegasus 1-0 in the Northwest Soccer League Friday to stay alive in the fight for the championship in the league's inaugural season.

Garnet Moen scored the only goal of the match at the 16-minute mark. Goalkeeper Ted Van Waes of Vistas was severely tested in the second half before gaining his shutout.

Vistas held a good margin in the first half and were unlucky not to have added to their margin. Mark Robb hit the crossbar on one try and had another shot cleared off the goal line by a defender at the last moment.

Victory was the fourth of the year for the undefeated Vistas. They have drawn three matches. Vistas trail Pegasus by three points but have two games in hand.

Houston Sold To Winnipeg

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston hockey fans, titillated with visions of the National Hockey League through months of fruitless negotiations, may now have to settle for the Central Hockey League.

Kenneth Schnitzer, part owner of the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros, Friday ended a long struggle to obtain an NHL franchise for the city by selling the Aeros franchise and all player contracts to the WHA Winnipeg Jets.

Schnitzer told a news conference the Aeros losses last season exceeded $1.5 million.

Schnitzer, who kept the Aeros from folding last November by taking control of the financially strapped team, had tried to purchase an NHL franchise and when that failed, applied for membership in the NHL as an expansion team.

"I am relieved but certainly not happy," Schnitzer said after his announcement. "I have said earlier that I believe there will be NHL hockey in Houston some day. I still believe that, but I can't say when that day will be."

Even before Schnitzer's announcement, reports already were circulating that a Central Hockey League team might come to Houston.

Schnitzer said if the Aeros played another season in the WHA, they still would be no closer to an elusive NHL invitation.

"The NHL would need an even number of teams, so we would be in no better condition than we are today," he said, "and we would have the added burden of another season's operating losses, almost certainly well in excess of $1 million."

Two days before the franchise folded, coach Bill Dineen was named WHA coach of the year. He is not included in the sale.

SCALPERS SKYROCKET PRICES

LONDON (AP) — Black market prices for tickets to the Wimbledon tennis finals today rocketed to incredible prices as scalpers hustled among crowds waiting to enter the grounds.

After reports that wealthy Swedes were flying in to see their hero, Bjorn Borg, the scalpers were demanding $550 for a pair of centre court tickets with a face value of $17.76.

Scalpers, who discuss their trade with reporters so long as they are not photographed or named, said they were increasing their prices to take advantage of the situation, after rain in the first week of the tournament caused an unexpected fall-off in their income.

It Wasn't Superstition; Just Larry Hisle's Bat

By Associated Press

Thirteen proved to be an unlucky number for Ron Guidry Friday night.

But it wasn't supersitition that did in the New York Yankees' brilliant left-hander after a 13-0 start this season. Rather it was the booming bat of Milwaukee's Larry Hisle who had two homers and four RBIs, and the four-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell as the Brewers beat the Yankees 6-0.

"I threw a good ball game, and all the ground balls kept going to the infielders," said Caldwell. "I kept the ball down, I was keeping in front of the hitters and they played great defence behind me.

"Guidry is really a great pitcher. He's 13-1 and going to the all-star game. I'm sitting home watching, but at least I know I beat him."

In other American League baseball action, Cleveland Indians beat Boston Red Sox 10-9, California Angels defeated Seattle Mariners 9-5 for Frank Tanana's 12th victory, Kansas City Royals beat Baltimore Orioles 3-1, Detroit Tigers beat Texas Rangers 12-7, Minnesota Twins swept Oakland A's 3-2 and 1-0 and Toronto Blue Jays edged Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Guidry, who brought a 1.75 earned-run average into the game, ran into trouble in the first inning when Don Money doubled with one out, Sal Bando walked and Hisle rocked a fast ball halfway up the left-field bleachers. He added his 17th home run, a solo shot, in the sixth.

Guidry was gone from the Yankees' clubhouse by the end of the game but manager Billy Martin said the left-hander wasn't really himself.

"He didn't have his best stuff tonight," Martin said. "He didn't have a good fast ball and he didn't have his good slider. You know, he's no exception, even being the great pitcher he is."

Guidry fell two short of the AL record of 15-0 set by Cleveland's Johnny Allen in 1937 and matched by Baltimore's Dave McNally in 1969.

The 27-year-old southpaw pitched six innings, allowing eight hits and five runs.

In the National League, San Francisco's Vida Blue recorded the best winning total in the league with his 12th victory. But the Giants, after beating Cincinnati Reds 7-6 on homers by Willie McCovey and Darrell Evans and Mike Ivie's decisive ninth-inning RBI double, couldn't complete the doubleheader sweep. Mike Lum's two-run homer in the fifth inning of the nightcap sank them 2-1.

The split kept the Giants three games ahead of the third-place Reds in the National League West. Second-place Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston Astros 7-4 to trim San Francisco's lead to 2½ games.

"No matter how you look at it, it's coming down to a three-team race," said Blue. "It'll be that way to the end."

Elsewhere, Montreal Expos edged Philadelphia Phillies 7-6, Chicago Cubs beat New York Mets 9-7, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 and Atlanta Braves beat San Diego Padres 11-3.

"Mind your own business! This is how I like it."

Pitcher Shows Batting Power

Len Carolan was the standout in Friday's Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

The Juan de Fuca pitcher not only threw a three-hit shutout at Bateson's in Juan de Fuca's 6-0 victory, but he also hit a home run in the sixth inning after coming close on his first two attempts.

Carolan struck out seven and walked one.

In Heywood Avenue League action, Skip Standish singled and scored on another single by Duane Bertrand to give Taylor House Moving a 10-inning, 5-4 victory over Webb and Trace.

Barry Moen and Al Pearce hit home runs for Webb and Trace. Bruce Thompson scored three runs for the winners.

OAK BAY REACHES FINAL

It was Oak Bay and Layritz in the Greater Victoria Little League baseball championship game at Amassador Park today.

With pitcher Paul Gubbels contributing a home run, Oak Bay hammered National 15-5 in Friday's semi-final game at Ambassador. Tim Porcellato also hit a home run for Oak Bay.

Vonk Leading

Gerry Vonk of Juan de Fuca Whalers is the runaway leader of the Vancouver Island Junior "B" Lacrosse League scoring race.

Vonk leads the league in goals (47), assists (64) and points (111). He holds a 50-point lead over runner-up clubmate Tom Lothian (27-34—61).

Saanich leads the league with 20 points. Victoria has 19, Juan de Fuca 14 and Nanaimo one.

Scoring leaders follow:

Herb Carnegie Retains Crown

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending-champion Herb Carnegie of Richmond Hill, Ont. held off a final round challenge from Vancouver's Hank Mitchell to win the 1978 Canadian senior men's golf championship Friday.

Carnegie, 58, posted a 74 Friday for his winning 215 total in the 54-hole event for golfers of 55 years and over.

Mitchell, the 1971 winner at Montreal, fired an even-par 72 at the Point Grey golf club to finish at 219, tied for second with Nick Weslock of Oakville, Ont. Weslock, 61, shot a two-over 74, but putting trouble kept him from threatening Carnegie.

In third spot was Vancouver's Jack McGill after a final round 77. His 222 total put him one stroke ahead of Winnipeg's Bill Pidlaski, who shot a 76 Friday.

Tied for fifth at 224 were Victoria's Bill Thompson, with a 78 Friday, and Thom Hunter of Hudson Height, Que., who shot a 76.

While Carnegie did not feel there was any specific turning point in his win, the result of the par-four, 360-yard 11th hole may have given him the title.

It was a two-stroke turnaround in Carnegie's favor. Mitchell three-putted from 25 feet while Carnegie rolled in an eight-foot putt for birdie to restore a three-shot advantage.

Mitchell, recently turned 63, had three, three-putt bogies on the last nine holes.

Weslock, two-time senior champion, never got his game rolling in the hot conditions Friday.

"That was a nightmare round for me," he said. 'I just couldn't get it together no matter what I did. I just couldn't putt. I had a number of five and six-footers that wouldn't drop."

Flora in Games

Flora Martin of Burnside Lawn Bowling Club earned a trip to the B.C. Summer Games on Friday.

Mrs. Martin, who earlier in the week had lost out in the rinks, triples and pairs, defeated clubmate Leona Peterson 15-9 in the final of the Island zone women's singles at Gordon Head.

The Dogwood triples competition to declare the Island representative for the B.C. championship started today at Lake Hill while the Anne Webster Trophy triples competition begins Tuesday at Lake Hill.

The B.C. men's pairs championship starts today at Victoria West.

Oohs, Aahs At Sandown

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

There was a little bit of everything for the harness racing punter at Sandown Friday.

While the chalk was holding up fairly well for the "form" players — six of the public picks or near favorites getting home first — there were enough surprises down the line to provide some healthy exactors, all of which brought "oohs" and "aahs" from the crowd of 1,350.

Trying to put the place horse with the winner was the main problem and four of the exactors were worth over $70, three over $100 and the best of the night a neat $263.90.

It started off normally enough when the 10-year old trotter Bethel Champ ($4.00), a converted pacer, and Moon Eagle combined for a $12.10 payoff.

Then things started to happen.

In the second, Flamingos Pride ($18.20) got away at 13-1, and combined with Castro, another outsider, for that $263.90 reward.

In the third the victory of Senga Kay ($5.70) was formful enough but Kahoka Jeff's staggering finish for second wasn't. Result: $164.90.

In the fourth, it was Charmin Dusty ($9.40) and Mark Dominion for $87.70; in the fifth, Miss Rajan ($6.10), a logical pick, and the overlooked Sava Dominion for $106.60; in the sixth, favored Michaels Derby broke just after the start and the second choice Senga Nola ($6.10) and Sodale paid $84.40; in the seventh, Holridge Elaine ($6.30) and Dilly Jim, a longshot, rewarded backers with $74.30; in the eighth, the favored Exel B Mac ran third and Hunter's Quill ($9.80) and Robbie Boy took over for $144.50.

There wasn't much to pick from in the ninth, because there weren't many running.

Only four hourses started and, for the third straight time, Bud Michell's Fort Tilden took second, this time by a nose, from Mitchs Butch ($5.80). Surprisingly ,that combo was worth $11.40.

Then, in the 10th, it was the case of two lightly-regarded entries, Meadow Bay ($11.30) at 9-2, and Dunhoe, at better than 15-1, who sent the late stayers home happy with an $88.30 payoff.

Joe Rankin and Joe Hudon each drove two winners. Dave Jungquist, who scored on Meadow Bay in the 10th, leads all drivers with 25 wins.

Results and entries are on page 14.

Lee Looking for Luck

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A third-round jinx has cost Lee Elder several big paycheques on the professional golf tour this year, so he is gambling that a fast horse or two may help change his luck.

Elder, first-day leader at six-under-par 66, came back with a steady 70 Friday for a 136 total and a two-stroke lead over Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., John Mahaffey and Bob Zender in the $150,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Then, given a tip by Lee Trevino, Elder left Tuckaway Country Club and headed for the horse races 90 minutes away in Chicago.

"I'm going to Arlington Park, fellas," a relaxed and confident Elder said. "I need some luck. I need a big lead because the next day is that round that has been a jinx for me. Hopefully, we can overcome that."

Elder, whose second and most recent victory in his 11 years on the tour came at Houston in 1976, has earned $29,918 this year for 68th place on the tour's money list. He would be much higher, but has averaged 75 strokes on his third rounds this year.

Barr, a tour rookie who had been in a three-way tie for third after a first-round 68, came back with a 70 but bogeyed his last hole when he three-putted from nearly 70 feet.

"I didn't get going until the wind died down on the last four or five holes," said Barr, 26. "I'm quite pleased with how I played, but that bogey on the last hole leaves a bad taste."

Mahaffey and Zender each posted a second successive 69.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., just survived the cut with 73-72—145.

Three Share Top Spot

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Jane Blalock and JoAnne Carner, two of the hottest players on the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour, and Kathy Martin, trying to shake a year-long slump, fired four-under par 68s Friday and shared the first-round lead in a $75,000 tournament.

One shot behind the leaders was Peggy Conley, a third-year pro who, like Martin, is seeking her first professional victory. M. J. Smith and Pat Meyers were tied with two-under-par 70s.

Six golfers, including former Canadian Sandra Post, were deadlocked at 71 over the 6,265-yard par-72 Speidel Golf Course.

Carner, winner of more than $43,000 in a month's span after a visit to veteran pro Sam Snead straightened out her game, was six-under-par until suffering a double-bogey six on the 375-yard, par-four 17th hole.

"I hate that hole," said Carner, noting she had bad memories of it from the 1976 tournament. She finished 31st that year, her worst finish of the year.

Both Carner and Blalock, winner of last week's tournament at Noblesville, Ind., and a winner here two years ago, credited their past play on hilly courses with helping them adapt to the mountainous Speidel course.

Defending champion Debbie Austin shot a 74, six shots off the pace.

Another stroke back was Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que. Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., had an opening-round 80.

Dream Fulfilled

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A 54-year-old Topeka man is back home after fulfilling a long-time dream.

He visited all 26 major league baseball stadiums, saw 25 games and drove 16,466 miles in 25 days.

He was invited to throw out the first ball at three of the games, but not in Royals Stadium in Kansas City. And, the Royals are his favorite team.

Henry Schmidt wanted to set a record by seeing a game in every one of the parks on consecutive days. He didn't make it because a game in Toronto got rained out.

Schmidt left Topeka on June 3. He went south first, to Houston, then drove to St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, etc.

His longest haul was from Dallas to Los Angeles, which he drove in 24 hours without stopping.

He said the Astrodome in Houston is the most comfortable park in which to watch baseball, and that the Royals Stadium is the prettiest.

His biggest thrill, he said, was throwing out the first ball in Candlestick Stadium at San Francisco.

Why did he do it? "Because I love baseball."

Pinafore Production Dragging Its Anchor

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Gilbert and Sullivan purists — probably by now a minority group — might purse their lips over the current G and S offerings at McPherson Playhouse, but audiences for the first round in a repertory of four abridged operettas have loved them, so who cares about purists?

The McPherson has joined this summer in collaboration with the Four Seasons Musical Theatre which has been presenting potted G and S as part of Victoria's summer entertainment since 1975. Former presentations have been in Newcombe Auditorium and The Belfry, smaller and more intimate accommodations. However, except in one respect, the Four Seasons production format has weathered the transition to a larger house quite comfortably.

The exception is tempo. Tempos that will pass without intruding their wrongness in a small hall from a platform stage, suddenly stand out when taken into a traditional proscenium theatre.

So far I have only seen one-half the current Four Seasons repertory at the McPherson — Princess Ida and HMS Pinafore — and enjoyed them with the one reservation that the tempos did not "get up and go" with the characteristic Gilbert and Sullivan sparkle. The Pinafore opening chorus, for example, "We sail the ocean blue," in G and S terms needed quickening considerably and some of the lovely limpid solo numbers on the tempo scale set by musical director Alan Magee, tended to become drawn out.

In short, what has happened I believe, is that the company has failed to up the over-all tempo to scale with the McPherson. That they can do it, I am convinced, for the vocal ability is competent, there is a good deal of theatrical professional expertise in evidence and I have nothing but admiration for Magee's talents as arranger, conductor and piano accompanist.

As formerly there is excellent use made of simple basic white costumes with color and character superimposed through the use of shawls, vests and cloaks. The staging is quite stark but it says something for the quality of the performance as a whole, that this company can convey so much without the support of elaborate sets.

Tenor Richard Margison is vocally outstanding in Ida and Pinafore but the total stand-out is nimble John Heath who slithers, skips and oozes about the stage, neatly executing dance steps and acrobatic manouevres. He proves as nimble of tongue as of foot in singing the famous patter songs, every word intelligible, rising to heights reminiscent of the great Sir Henry Lytton with his Sir Joseph Porter K.C.B. Lytton was, and Heath could be accused of getting carried away to the point where farce becomes ham, but director Peter Mannering would lose a brilliant half of his show if Heath's startling leap into the pit at one point, should meet with disaster.

The ensemble writing, which is one of the most delightful strengths of all Arthur Sullivan'scores, is also a high point of performance in these productions, thanks to vocal quality and Magee's direction.

It is vital in performing these works that articulation should be excellent otherwise much of the scathing humor is lost. Most of this company does well, but some could work harder, particularly newcomer Susan North whose diction is not clear in solos that are truly difficult and do not lie comfortably in the tessitura of many sopranos.

Mannering is the stage director for all four. Patience and Pirates of Penzance share a bill, alternating Wednesday through Saturday with Ida and Pinafore until Aug. 12.

Noon Shows

A summer series of free noon-time concerts and entertainment will be initiated Tuesday at McPherson Playhouse, presented by the McPherson in conjunction with a liaison committee of the Community Arts Council. These events take place in the mezzanine foyer from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m.Tuesdays and Thursdays through Aug. 16.

Next Tuesday's program will be presented by the Westmacott Family Trio and the Thursday event will be theatrical, with Anthony Jenkins, Sylvia Hatchman and Helen Smith performing "Battle of Wits" — three confrontation scenes from plays.

Box lunches can be purchased at a nominal charge.

SLATE PICKED

Theatre BC is the new title chosen at its annual meeting by the B.C. Drama Association. The meeting took place in conjunction with the Provincial Drama Festival recently in Powell River.

Elected as the 1978-79 executive were Jay Norton of Courtenay, president; Greg Blundell, Victoria, first vice-president; Annette Reeves, Vernon, second; Gillian Summers, Nanaimo, secretary; Ron Butler, Ladysmith, treasurer. The past president is Mien Van Heek of West Vancouver. Honorary presidents are Anne Adamson, Jessie Richardson and Norman Young.

Theatre BC has 72 member groups in 51 communities throughout the province.

Tea and 'Smile'

The ubiquitous Smile Show has joined hands with yet another "typically" British phenomenon — crumpets and afternoon tea.

The popular Empress Hotel mid-afternoon pastime will be embellished on Saturdays throughout the summer by an hour of the Smile Show performed in the lobby starting at 2 p.m. followed by tea and crumpets (plus sandwiches and cake), shared with the cast.

The arrangement between Jerry Gosley, producer of the show, and Empress catering manager Geoffry Bennum is open to reservations. Call 383-3337. Following tea the cast will relax before reassembling for the Tuesday-through-Saturday Ballroom show which begins at 8:30 p.m.

Festival Puts City in the Big-Time

audrey johnson

Many Victorians may not be aware of it yet, and many more who are, including some leading citizens of the metropolitan area, may be indifferent at present, but this city has already — while they were busy looking in other directions for international attention — become one of the magical "Festival Cities" of North America.

Sure, you might agree, a festival city in floral terms. They drip from lamp posts, burgeon in by-ways and alleys, rim every green spot, call to passers-by from the window ledges of banks and civic buildings. Or a festival city in terms of a climate and geography that permit a long and varied season of outdoor pastimes; the ideal holiday place where every prospect pleases and a fair amount of light, bright entertainment is available to while away the dark hours.

Still all this does not make Victoria one of the important festival cities of the continent as measured against major festival centres. To achieve that highly desirable distinction there must be something more. Well, we have had that something more for the past three years but few people have recognized it and therefore there was no clamor from the housetops, no sounding of trumpets abroad as there should have been.

What Victoria has become, in fact, and will be again for six weeks, starting July 13, is not merely one of the "Festival Cities" of North America, but a festival city of world calibre!

Skeptical? Check it out. Come in from the garden, in from the sea, away from the television, in from the country cottage on any Sunday, Tuesday or Thursday during the six weeks or even one of three Saturdays. No need to accept this evaluation second-hand. If great music and great artists mean something to you, the switch in your summer routine is almost certain to reward you with a winging of the spirit.

The Victoria International Festival starts its fourth season in Victoria as a separate entity from its founding partner, the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts, and must from now on make its separate bid for the world attention it warrants. Its ties to the Shawnigan Summer School are less overt, although invaluable — in fact, inevitable. But like the author or the stage artist whose successes place their name in type equal to that of the book or play, the International Festival has earned its separate and equal status.

In any of the great centres of continental Europe, the British Isles or the United States at various times of the year, you might come upon the opportunity of hearing acclaimed American pianists Abbey Simon or Robin McCabe; one of the world's half-dozen or so superb clarinetists, Gervase de Peyer; Canadian flutist Robert Aitken, who rates now alongside the revered Jean Pierre Rampeau in European eyes; legendary violinist Ruggiero Ricci, who will perform his 50th anniversary concert here July 30; or the Philadelphia String Quartet.

The Philadelphia String Quartet

But they will in fact all be performing here in one or several of the 28 concerts that comprise the 1978 Victoria International Festival. These and more. Gary Karr, renowned string bass performer and his duo partner, harpsichordist Harmon Lewis; violinists Yuri and Dana Mazurkevich who dazzled audiences in last year's festival; cellist Hakuro Mori and guitarist Mario Escudero; Canada's lovely and celebrated mezzo soprano, Phyllis Mailing, and violist Leslie Malowany.

Anyone with a taste for opera should try not to miss the Festival's first venture into this field, appropriately with opera piccola (which only means small). The little charmer chosen for this debut is Arthur Benjamin's La Prima Donna. To stage it Founder-Director J.J. Johannesen has brought former opera star and recent operatic director at the Banff School of Fine Arts, Pierette Alarie, to Victoria, and the production will be presented twice, on Aug. 21 and 22.

But the international significance of this event is not its only value to B.C.'s capital city. The communion and collaboration of the Festival with resident professional musical organizations is an important factor and is reflected this summer in the participation of violinist Sydney Humphreys, Trio Victoria, Robin Wood, and the University of Victoria Faculty Ensemble.

This year, for the first time, an excellent brochure is available listing artists who will be participating in each concert over the six weeks and major works to be performed. Beside the Ricci anniversary concert, specials include programs entitled Keyboard Opulence, which will feature many of the keyboard artists in programs of favorite keyboard classics, a Great Composers series of four concerts devoted to Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Schubert, and a concert of contemporary Canadian music.

The brochures can be picked up at the McPherson Playhouse, where the Sunday and Tuesday concerts and the opera will take place, at St.Michael's School on Richmond Road, where the rest of the concerts will be held, and at many stores and libraries, particularly music and book stores throughout the city.

Confusion still exists in many people's minds with regard to the title, Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts, and with its relationship to the festival. In simple terms, we would not have this great international event if it were not for the fact that the artists are present as a distinguished faculty conducting master classes for a creme-de-la-creme of students from all over the world. Incidentally the Shawnigan Summer School has a record enrolment this year of more than 200 tape-auditioned students.

The name Shawnigan now has no connection with Victoria's neighboring resort area. It's a carry-over from the fact that when Johannesen first conceived the idea as a centennial project in 1970, he established it at Shawnigan Lake Boys School. Since 1975 it has been resident at St.Michael's, but changing the name presents problems in international circles where the school has created an impressive reputation.

In the meantime, with little effort on our part, we have become the hosts of an annual event that closely parallels the famous events of Tanglewood, Aldeburgh, Salzberg, Edinburgh, and other festival centres, and could and probably will become as famous in a few years.

It's up to us. Do we have the vision? Can we put our priorities in the right perspective to achieve so appropriate and golden a destiny for this city?

Curator Named

A new curator of contemporary art has been appointed by the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, effective July 1. Willard Holmes, 29, holds a degree in Art History from the University of B.C., where he was employed as Assistant to the Director of the Fine Arts Gallery.

He has had a varied experience, including being Curator of Exhibitions at the Vancouver Art Gallery and founder-director of the Pender Street Gallery, an experimental non-profit art gallery focusing on contemporary art from British Columbia. He is also a published writer on visual arts and served as art critic for the Vancouver Province and CBC-FM Vancouver.

An exhibition that has been put together in an effort to correct a distorted view of Emily Carr went up at the gallery, 1040 Moss, this week. It is historically inaccurate, says an accompanying commentary, to depict Carr as a rebel, unique in vision and eccentric in nature. She was in fact keenly aware of those artists around her, both in Victoria and across Canada, it is stated.

The exhibition shows a wide sampling of her contemporary Victoria and B.C. artists who have been overshadowed by her posthumous reputation.

Among the many artists represented are Ina D.D. Uhthoff, W.P. Weston, Mildred Valley Thornton, Charles John Collings and Nell Bradshaw. The exhibition provides a more balanced perspective of the period in which Carr worked.

An Affectionate parody on the movie musicals of the '30s, 'Dames At Sea' opens at The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone, Thursday at 8:30 p.m. Hank Stinson and Connie Martin, above, are members of a strong professional cast directed by Glynis Leyshon. The musical ran for two years in New York, sailing on a tide of delighted comments from leading critics and cheers from sell-out audiences. Dames is The Belfry's first production since last summer's smash hit, Puttin' On the Ritz. It will run through Sept. 2.

MUSICAL NOTEBOOK

Stan Keen, musical director of the Emmy Award-winning children's TV series, Boomerang!, has replaced the previously announced Joan Beckow as musical director of The Belfry's Dames at Sea, which starts its summer run next week.

Keen is also musical director of Seattle's A Contemporary Theatre. He has a distinguished list of credits which include many years in the New York theatre, where he was associated with such hits as West Side Story and the Carol Channing company of Hello Dolly! and Damn Yankees.

He has conducted Seattle Symphony's Inner City concerts and worked in Canada, among other things being featured soloist in the CBC production, Mr. Candyman. After Dames At Sea Keen will go to Toronto to work on a musical revue with Leon Bibb and Gail Nelson.

Ms. Beckow, who was forced to withdraw owing to family illness, was the musical director of last summer's Puttin' On the Ritz.

Victoria Symphony principal violist Sonja Delavoryas finds herself in competition with her own orchestra Sunday. She had scheduled a 3 p.m.recital at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for that day and only subsequently discovered that the first free Beacon Hill Park Sunday symphony concert sponsored by the Music Performance Trust Fund had been arranged by the Musicians' Association for the same afternoon.

Delevoryas, however, was committed to going ahead with her recital in which she will be assisted by pianist Robert Holliston in works by Hummel, Schumann, Brahms and Debussy.

A few blocks away as the crow flies, Glen Fast will conduct the Summer Symphony in a program that includes Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker, Sibelius' Finlandia and excerpts from My Fair Lady and Marriage of Figaro. Featured soloist will be soprano Karen Smith. Starting time is 2:30 p.m.

At the Conservatory of Music Music the summer music program is under way for three weeks. It offers special classes to students from preliminary to senior levels in piano, cello, voice, recorder, modern and baroque flute. The piano program is offering in addition to individual lessons for each student, daily master classes with members of the senior faculty, including Robin Wood and Winifred Scott.

This summer the Conservatory is also conducting three courses for piano teachers; one in piano materials and pedagogy, one in practical pedagogy and teaching techniques, and a group piano teaching course.

Winners of the Musical Art Society's Open Scholarship competition for 1978 were announced at the recent annual meeting of the society. President Mrs. Molly Watts reported that 15 students auditioned before a panel of three adjudicators who awarded first prize of $500 to soprano Jane MacKenzie. The second prize of $250 went to violinist Mark Neumann and the third, $250, to tenor Richard Margison.

The Ethel James prize of $200 was awarded to soprano Ingrid Attrot and the Goater award for strings to Neumann. Pianist Monica Pfau and violinist Paul Thompson were each awarded $100.

Highlight of a successful year had been the special Walter Prossnitz benefit recital at the McPherson, as a result of which a cheque for $5,000 was presented to the gifted pianist.

CORNELIA ENTERS RACE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Cornelia Wallace, former wife of Gov. George C. Wallace, entered the race for the Democratic nomination for governor Friday.

Mrs. Wallace entered state Democratic party headquarters unannounced and filed 15 minutes before the 5 p.m. deadline.

"I wanted to give the people the chance to vote for someone honest," Mrs. Wallace told reporters. While not calling it a spur of-the-moment decision, she said, "just call it an insurance policy."

Poignant Farewell From Reasoner

NEW YORK — Harry Reasoner, who was lost in the shuffle during the recent revamping of The ABC Evening News, ended his final broadcast as anchorman on the show Friday with brief thanks to his colleagues and viewers.

"It is obviously an occasion of some poignance for me," said Reasoner, who is returning to CBS after 7½ years as ABC's anchorman.

There will be no regular anchor to replace Reasoner in his New York studio.

ABC News president Roone Arledge has announced that the revamped program will feature chief reporters Frank Reynolds in Washington, Peter Jennings in London and Max Robinson in Chicago. In addition, there will be interviews and reporting by Barbara Walters in New York.

Miss Walters, who was co-anchor with Reasoner under the just-expired format, was announced as "on vacation" on the final show.

Reasoner joined ABC in 1971 to join Howard K. Smith as co-anchor. That team increased the show's ratings, but ABC still remained in third place behind CBS and NBC.

In 1975, Smith was limited to doing commentaries, which he continues doing, while Reasoner began a year as sole anchor.

Then ABC lured Miss Walters from the NBC Today Show to join Reasoner as co-anchor in the fall of 1976, but the new team still could not budge ABC's chief news program out of third place.

Arledge, also president of ABC's highly successful sports division, was called in to head the news division last year and turn the operation around.

A New Role for Maggie T.

MONTREAL — Margaret Trudeau has been given the lead role in a movie tentatively set to be shot in southern France soon.

Richard Hellman, vice-president of Prospec Films Inc., said the prime minister's estranged wife would act in L'Ange Guardien (The Guardian Angel), a $1-million budget France-Canada production.

Mrs. Trudeau is currently writing her memoirs in London.

The romantic comedy, due to begin production by the end of the month, will feature her as the wife of a wealthy industrialist who falls in love with a cabaret singer, played by Quebecer Michel Louvain, said Hellman.

"She's delighted with the part," he added. "It's the lead."

Hellman said 70 per cent of the production is controlled by French interests and in order to qualify for tax benefits, the company needs the approval of both governments.

The script was written by Jacques Fournier, a French television writer.

Last year Mrs. Trudeau starred alongside Patrick McGoohan in her first film, All The King's Men, a thriller still to be released.

AN EXCITING DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITY

A Call For Proposals to Develop This Key Site in Downtown VICTORIA

The Provincial Capital Commission is seeking proposals to develop a major retail complex on the waterfront of downtown Victoria, which is the major business centre in the region with a population of approximately 225,000 and visited by some 2 million tourists annually.

The complex, for which general plans have already been prepared, will contain approximately 100,000 sq. ft. of retail and related uses. The central element of the project is a downtown retail food centre and plans include provision for parking of up to 200 cars to augment nearby parking together with substantial areas of public open space.

This project is a logical further step in the continuing program of revitalization of Victoria's Inner Harbour and Old Town area in which the Commission, the City and the private sector have already substantially invested.

The site being offered consists of 2.8 acres located on the waterfront within 200 yards of Eaton's and the Government Street mall via historic Bastion Square. The site is linked by waterfront walkways to the Legislative Buildings, the Empress Hotel and two ferry terminals. Approximately 70,000 people reside within two miles of the site which is owned by the Province and administered by the Provincial Capital Commission.

The successful bidder will finance, construct, own and manage this complex under a long-term land lease with the rent being established by competitive bid within specific guidelines.

The bids will be evaluated on the basis of rent offered, combined with qualitative considerations and with a high priority being placed on the demonstrable ability of the proponent to develop and manage a retail centre of this type.

Closing date for proposals is August 31, 1978. Adjudication of proposals will be expedited to enable construction to commence before the end of this year and completion in 1979.

Persons interested and capable of submitting a proposal can obtain terms and guidlines for proposals, preliminary drawings and relevant market data by contacting:

There's a lot more to Hawaii in the summer.

More savings.
More beautiful weather.
More comfort.

All the more reason to take a Hawaiian summer holiday on Western Airlines.

The savings: Fly Western to Hawaii from Vancouver and take advantage of our special money-saving airfares. We've got family fares, youth fares and, of course, special fares that apply when you buy a tour package.

The weather: Hawaii's climate, famous for being temperate year-round, is even more delightful in summer.

Temperatures and humidity are comfortably low.

There's little rain.

And you can always depend on plenty of sun for your beach fun, picnics, sightseeing, shopping and other outdoor activities.

The comfort: Western Airlines offers the only DC-10 Spaceships to Hawaii.

These roomy, wide-body planes offer extra comfort, even in Coach. And all seats are in pairs, so you're never more than one seat from an aisle.

There's also our fabulous Islander Service® that features delicious dining with choice of entrees in First Class and Coach. Plus complimentary refreshments.

For your entertainment, Western offers first-run movies and stereo between Vancouver and Hawaii (nominal charge in Coach).

Here are just a few of the many exciting Hawaii vacations from Western Airlines:

Condo Vacations including tax and return airfare.

Acapulco adds the problems of any big city

By JOHN PINKERMAN

ACAPULCO, Mexico — There are more than 200 hotels here and counting, the beaches still are among the world's best, there is every kind of food imaginable, the night life is endless and the prices are no worse than at any other swingers' resort.

One thing, however. Watch yourself and watch your pocketbook. What once was a quiet and lovely place where one could get away from it all is now a big city, a city of more than 250,000. As such, Acapulco, its public relations tub thumpers notwithstanding, has many of the problems of big cities. These include muggers, thiefs, cheats and the like. Just listen to the warning the Paraiso Marriott Hotel issues to its guests:

"Do not take large sums of money to the beach with you and try to keep it on your person. Leave any valuable jewels or large sums of cash in the safe deposit box, available for a modest sum in your hotel.

"Do not go for night strolls on lonely beaches. That is asking for trouble just as if you were strolling after dark in Central Park in New York. If you are going picnicking outside the bay area, go in a group, preferably a large one. Take no valuables. Lock your car and if possible park it within your realm of vision. Do not stay after dark.

"When paying for gasoline at whatever gas station, check the amount on the tank before paying and then carefully count your money into the hand of the attendant. If, for instance, you give him a 100-peso bill, call his attention to the fact. Don't give him a chance to give you that wide-eyed innocent bit, 'but, senor, you only gave me 10 pesos.' In the market, on buses and in crowded areas, keep your wallet or pocketbook in a safe place. You'd be careful in the New York subway, wouldn't you?"

If this warning hasn't scared you off, you may still find a few days in Acapulco worth the time, effort and price. But, don't look for any history. There isn't any visible. Even the name Acapulco is difficult to trace. It comes from the Aztec word "Nahuatl," meaning "the place where the reeds were destroyed," but no historian has been able to discover what reeds were destroyed or when.

Neither is there anything of archaeological interest in Acapulco — and that is a bit strange in ruins-conscious Mexico. What is known is that Cortes came here in 1530 and helped establish a lucrative trading route to the riches of the Orient. One still existing historical relic, the San Diego Fort, was built by the Spaniards in 1616 but seized when the Mexicans took over in 1818. Acapulco then practically ceased to exist mostly because of transportation problems — it took a week to get here from Mexico City by train and horse.

However, the first automobile arrived here Nov. 12, 1927, the first hotel went up in 1934 and then came the post-Second World War boom. The result: There are too many cars now for the road system and not enough hotels for all the gringos and gringas from north of the border. The jet age has arrived.

Despite the crowded conditions, North Americans continue to flock here. They love the swimming, the diving, the surfing, the fishing, the opportunity to enjoy the luxury of relaxing on a hotel balcony or on gleaming light brown beaches under a friendly southern sun.

Shopping is an expensive adventure except in the Zocalo, where you can haggle with the small shop owners. The potent cocoloco is the favorite drink — or anything with tequila.

There is occasional observance of traditional siesta time, from 1 to 4 p.m., and there are bullfights from December until Eastertime.

One acceptable thrill is a look at the famed divers of La Quebrada. You can enjoy a delicious meal at La Perla Club at El Mirador Hotel and watch the divers hurtle 136 feet into a narrow cove with just a few feet of water — and they must time their dives just as the tide rushes in with sufficient sea to save them from a broken neck.

You can shop in Woolworth's if that is your wish, or eat at Kentucky Fried Chicken. However, you can do much better, too: Try, for instance, a Sunday seafood special at Bambuco, or if you want lively atmosphere, try D'Joint and eat Acapulco goldfish. The finest hotel in town still is the Princess.

As the fishery goes

So goes Lunenburg

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — This seaport town, home of some of the greatest mariners and ships in the age of wooden ships and iron men, celebrated its 225th anniversary last month.

The picturesque town of 3,000 gave birth to whole fleets of wooden fishing vessels, including the famous racing schooner Bluenose, immortalized on Canadian dimes.

THE FIRST settlers came ashore in Lunenburg harbor in the summer of 1753. They were mostly German Protestants, but Nova Scotians, misinterpreting the word Deutsch, referred to them as Dutch.

Before sailing to Lunenburg they had spent the winter on the outskirts of Halifax, where their memory survives in the still-standing Little Dutch Church and the Dutch Village Road.

THE SETTLERS named their new settlement Lunenburg in honor of King George II of England, who also happened to be Duke of Brunswick-Lunenburg.

Within 30 years, the settlers were building fishing vessels for grounds as far away as Labrador.

DURING the next two centuries the city gained a reputation as home of some of the world's finest shipbuilders, mariners and fishermen. By the end of the 19th century, the Lunenburg fishing fleet numbered almost 150 vessels.

Seaport around 225 years

Fishing is still Lunenburg's economic base. Near the settlers' landing site stands the largest North American fish-processing plant, owned by National Sea Products.

IT IS A TOWN of gracious old homes, narrow streets and steep hills. Lunenburgers still decorate their yards with weathered conch shells, souvenirs of long-forgotten voyages to the West Indies by Lunenburg mariners.

The townspeople stick to the tried-and-true recipes of their ancestors, preserved in their world-famous Dutch Oven Cookbook. Among the specialties: buttermilk pie, blueberry buckle, turnip kraut, hugger-in-buff and house-bankin. Lunenburg sauerkraut is known throughout Nova Scotia.

THE TOWN has been celebrating the 225th anniversary since February, but June events highlighted the festivities.

The events included a costumed re-enactment of the landing of the settlers, a parade, concerts and the judging of a beard-growing contest.

THE CELEBRATION comes at a time of optimism for Lunenburg. With Canada's declaration of the 200-mile limit, the town looks forward to renewed prosperity in a mainstay industry that had been declining only a few years ago.

"The fishery is here to stay," said Mayor Sherran Zwicker. "And as the fishery goes, so goes Lunenburg."

LOVABLE PUP HUGE TOURIST ATTRACTION

Snoopyville boasts of 'air so sweet it's a pleasure to drink it in'

ON THE GO

with Jerry Hulse

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — North of San Francisco where springtime is perfumed by apple blossoms, there lives a flop-eared beagle named Snoopy — the very same beagle who entertains millions of newspaper readers around the world.

THE TOWN where Snoopy makes his home is a pleasant agricultural community, and before Snoopy's arrival its fame sprang from the fact that it was also the home of the late Luther Burbank.

In describing Santa Rosa, the famed horticulturist called it the "chosen spot on earth, the air so sweet it's a pleasure to drink it in."

Couldn't then a beagle find happiness among the red barns and green hills and the sweetness of apple blossoms in springtime?

OF COURSE he should, and has.

It having been several years since I paid a visit to Snoopy's home, it seemed appropriate to drop by again. After all, this lovable pup is a huge tourist attraction — he and his creator Charles Schulz.

To the residents of Santa Rosa, Snoopy isn't merely a comic strip character who runs happily through Schulz's make-believe world. No indeed. He is alive and happy; those who would scoff need only stroll over to the ice rink where Snoopy performs for visitors.

SNOOPY, Charlie Brown, Lucy and other members of the comic strip gang call it the Redwood Empire Arena, the owner being Snoopy's creator, Charles Schulz.

One day recently the artist stood waching Snoopy go through his act. The head beagle was showing off by skating on one leg, performing for the filming of a television ice show — one of those Charles Schulz specials.

On ice — just as on his doghouse — Snoopy was starring. Never mind that it was a bit of Disney-like foolishness, with a human dressed up like Snoopy. Just as Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck seem alive marching up Main Strreet in Disneyland, Snoopy appeared real this day in Santa Rosa.

SCHULZ SMILED. "I get the feelng he's alive, too," he said.

The artist is Santa Rosa's most famous living resident (Santa Rosa was also the home of the late cartoonist Robert Ripley). Schulz, mild-mannered and unassuming, is Santa Rosa's two-legged tourist attraction.

Schulz smiled again. "We used to have a dog named Snoopy, you know — a real live dog." He shook his head in that shy way Charlie Brown does. "I suppose people who love Snoopy won't like it, but we gave him away. He fought with other dogs, so we traded him for a load of gravel..."

TRADED Snoopy for a load of gravel! Good grief!

Well, now, before tempers flare, please be advised that Schulz is truly a nice fellow. Almost too nice, some feel. He lets the tourists steal his time freely, signing autographs and drawing Snoopy cartoons for them.

A realtor in Santa Rosa told me: "Sparky (Schulz' nickname) isn't one of those smug, unattainable celebrities. He's a nice guy who'll see almost anyone, even when he's busy."

AS FOR THE famous comic-strip beagle, his likeness is based on a dog Schulz owned as a boy in Minnesota. To this day he grieves over the animal's loss.

To the citizens of Santa Rosa, Snoopy is alive. In fact, Snoopy, Schulz and the ice arena are responsible for a totally new industry in Santa Rosa. Tourism.

Snoopyville being only an hour by car from San Francisco, the tourists flock here by the carload. At the arena they often find Schulz skating with the crowd, the famed comic strip artist clearly unimpressed by all his fame and fortune.

THE TOURISTS put up at Los Robles Inn, go sight-seeing in the Napa Valley and the Valley of the Moon — and pester poor Schulz until he grows weary from it all.

Schulz built his arena because he likes to skate. He hails from Minnesota, where there was plenty of ice. (Too much, which is why he settled here in California). Besides, his five children like to skate, too.

The arena cost him a whopping $2,143,000. Designed like an Alpine lodge, it is surrounded by flowers and redwoods and fir trees.

TO CREATE a feeling of Alpine reality, Schulz sent two photographers to Switzerland to prepare the lifelike murals that cover the arena's walls. It's the sort of wholesome atmosphere you sense at Disneyland, a refreshing flashback to a time when children for the most were scrubbed and well-mannered and North America entertained itself with county fairs and old-fashioned picnics.

On this particular visit I found Schulz in his office at No. 1 Snoopy Place. He sat at his easel in a sleeveless sweater and red and white tennis shoes and steel-rimmed glasses.

VISITORS by the dozen still flock to his studio, he said. They are after autographs and pictures. He threw up his arms.

"I'm getting less easy to get along with," he confessed. "Some things go on forever and finally you lose your patience."

For one thing he won't see groups who arrive unannounced. An entire busload of foreign tourists pulled up to the door one day recently. Schulz flat out refused to go outside.

"IT ISN'T FAIR," he said. "I just can't keep up with all the interruptions. I'm a nice guy. I don't step on bugs or try to hurt anyone. I'm not a crabby person. But how do you put up with all this? I defy anyone to keep a good humor and be interrupted as much as I am."

Still, the tourists arrive, their cars filled with kids and autograph books to be signed, Instamatic cameras slung around their necks. Schulz poses inside his studio. Then he's asked to come outside for a picture. It's a routine.

"They'll hand me a strip of paper," said Schulz, "and ask me to draw Snoopy. What upsets me are the theatre stubs or gum wrappers or match covers. It makes no sense doing a picture on the back of a gum wrapper."

EVEN THOUGH he has become slightly agitated, he continues to mail out thousands of drawings. He once said he has a Charlie Brown complex. He wants to be liked. (In his eyes, Charlie Brown is every kid in town, the nice boy next door — when the world was a much nicer place.)

His comic strip runs in more than 1,800 newspapers around the world. The Peanuts gang has made him wealthy. So he drives a Mercedes sports car and lives in a comfortable home. But none of the success has changed Charles Schulz.

HE ENJOYS living a simple life. Schulz travels little — although he's been to Europe twice, once with the army during the Second World War.

At 55 he prefers to stay close to home.

While attracted to tennis and golf, Schultz, given the choice, prefers playing hockey or broom ball with his cronies in town. You can't help asking if he intends perhaps to emulate Walt Disney, creating an enormous Snoopyville next door to the arena in Santa Rosa.

HE SAYS NO. "Walt Disney was a great producer. I have no show-business ambitions. Rather, I would like to be known as one of the greatest comic strip artists who ever lived. I have no desire to do any grandiose thing such as Disney did with Disneyland."

Schulz is an enigma, a super-decent human being who doesn't drink or smoke or swear. Like Charlie Brown, his only dramatic outburst is "Good Grief!"

ORDINARILY he can be found mornings having breakfast in the Warm Puppy, a coffee shop in a corner of the ice arena. He hangs around other times, too, to watch his children skate.

Mothers sit at the fireplace watching their own children on the ice. These regulars don't impose themselves on Schulz. The strangers are the ones who give him a fit. As he said, they hand him gum wrappers and match covers and ask him to draw Snoopy.

SOMETIMES he's tempted to cry out like Lucy does when Snoopy slips up and gives her a wet kiss.

"Bleah! Aaugh!" he wants to say.

Instead he scratches out a drawing, bows his head like Charlie Brown and slips away into the crowd.

Kindness, friendliness Filipino trademark

By PHILIP SOUSA

MANILA — Some of travel's travails are worth the agony.

A broken bone, for instance.

I've had my share of near misses on land, at sea and in the air during more than four decades of roaming around the world on business and pleasure. But not a single injury — until Manila. Here I put my right foot in the wrong place and broke it neatly in three places.

My mishap warrants a few lines because of two of the lessons I learned from it, excluding the need to watch my step.

A Manila hotel hostess was showing me around the landmark establishment when I put my foot in a narrow trough near the swimming pool. Within a couple of hours I was in great pain and unable to walk. What followed — a great show of concern and a display of medical expertise I will never forget.

The hotel's resident physician and several nurses came to my aid first. Then I was taken to the excellent Medical Centre Manila. A couple of lovely Filipinas from the department of tourism quickly became Florence Nightingales.

And countless members of the superb staff of the Manila Hotel got in the act, solicitously looking after my every need.

Granted, I was their guest. But I witnessed the same extraordinary hospitality and attention when I later rode in cabs, used elevators and otherwise got around this dazzling city.

You don't need to go around on crutches with your foot in a cast to elicit kindness and friendliness from the Filipinos — that's intrinsic to their personality. Through my accident I learned that those qualities can be boundless.

On a more personal level, I got a brief taste of what it's like to have a physical handicap.

In a previous report on the Philippines I paid lip service to the attractions of this relatively new tourist destination, this combination of Oriental bazaar, South Seas haven and 21st century metropolis that is the cultural, political and commercial heart of the country. Why then this story?

Simple.

A good thing has just gotten better.

And on at least two fronts.

The first and most important news has to do with money, your money. Philippine Airlines recently put into effect new "budget fares" across the Pacific which practically halve the cost of a visit here and to other destinations it serves in the region.

The new budget fare from San Francisco to Manila is $345 one way, compared to $598 for the standard one-way economy fare. The new rates have certain restrictions, but the savings make them more than acceptable. In the example cited here it amounts to a whopping 42 per cent.

Figured on a round-trip basis, we're talking about $506 per adult passenger, a substantial amount which could go a long way to take care of your expenses while in this country, or for that matter, elsewhere.

Philippine Airlines, by the way, saves you money graciously. Its San Francisco-Manila flights — the only daily wide-body aircraft service between the two cities — are flying showcases of Filipino courtesy. The 7,800 miles across the Pacific pass quickly and enjoyably under the attentive care of PAL's crews. It's a good preview of what you'll find here.

Something else, in addition to the new fares, led me to state that this destination is more worthwhile than it was, say, a couple of years back.

Manila has just experienced an unprecedented attack of hotel-building fever. And the hotel boom is a visitor's boon.

No less than 14 new luxury hotels costing an estimated $500 million were completed here last year. This burst of construction boosted the number of the city's hotel rooms by 150 per cent.

The subject is a bit touchy around local circles. Supporters of the government, which backed the building project, say it was a daring effort to put Manila at a par with, if not above, other major tourist centres such as Hong Kong, a short 90 jet minutes away. Opponents, on the other hand, point to the hotels' current occupancy rate of 50 per cent or lower and claim the costly undertaking used money that could have, or should have, been spent on urban housing and rural development.

Savvy travellers, however, leave politics at the border. Or should, so as to make their travel experience — here or elsewhere — a rewarding one.

For the visitor, the silver lining in this hotel business is happy news indeed: Obviously there's room at the inn; the choice of accommodations is larger than ever; competition is greater than it has ever been and thus service, always good, is even better now; and since rates are also competitive, it's easier to select the place you'll make your temporary home.

Compared to similar luxury hotels elsewhere in Asia and Europe, rates here are moderate indeed: A standard single at the impressive Philippine Plaza is $30 a day, a double room $34; this hotel's top restaurant, Abelardos's, is a gastronomic and visual treat.

The Manila Mandarin, a member of the prestigious group with "Mandarin" properties in Hong Kong and Singapore, is a dazzler located in the heart of Manila's futuristic business hub, the Makati section; rates average $40 for a single and $45 for a double.

The attractive Silahi's International, whose second-floor Capriccio Restaurant is one of the best around, offers even lower tabs, $25 for a moderate single, $30 for a double.

Around some of the big U.S. military installations out of town you still hear about fights, robberies and other problems; but Manila itself is still quite safe, in fact, one of the safest capitals you'll find. The old attractions — the walled city of Intramuros, Manila Cathedral, Fort Santiago, etc. — remain, while new ones, such as the Cultural Centre, go up.

Country pub owner rates in community

Around the World

with Stan Delaplane

"The country pub owner usually tends the bar himself," a friendly London journalist advised me. "You address him as 'Landlord'. He's a man of status in the community.

"If the wife is taking over for the moment, call her 'Madame.' "

English pubs usually hire barmaids rather than men.

The journalist said: "Speak to her as 'Miss'. After the second beer, you can buy her a beer and address her as 'luv'. If she seems the jolly type: 'May I shout you a beer, luv?' "

You can buy them a drink, but nobody behind the pub bar is tipped cash.

You do tip a waitress in the "saloon" or "lounge" bar. Pubs have two sides. The "public" bar — a stand-up bar for men with dart board entertainment.

The "saloon" or "lounge" bar has tables. Used by ladies getting their elevenses, or by couples. The two rooms are served from the same bar which runs down the middle and divides them.

The journalist said: "Perfectly proper for a woman alone to go into the lounge bar for a nip. Girls occasionally go in the public bar. Generally local birds who are the enlightened type."

He said: "If you ask for ice in your whisky, they know you're a North American. Actually, they know before you open your mouth. Something about the way you dress — I'm not sure what it is."

English beer is ordered by the pint or half pint. It is drawn warm from a brass-polished beer pump. Two flavors: "Mild" or "bitter." North Americans remark that it tastes like soapsuds.

If you want the kind of beer you're used to, ask for "a cold lager."

Local knowledge: Sign at Faaa Airport, Tahiti: "No tipping in Tahiti." Australian friend: "Why should you tip the taxi driver? Nobody tips you, do they?" In Australia, a man passenger sits up front beside the taxi driver. "More friendly-like, you might say. He's not a bloody servant, you know. Only Pommies (Englishmen) sit in the back seat."

A public relations man in Athens told me: "Greek restaurants add 15 per cent service charge to your check. But it's the custom to leave 10 per cent more. Leave part on the plate with the bill — that's for the waiter. Leave a little on the tablecloth — that's for the busboy."

"It must be divided carefully. For whatever you give the waiter — say a dollar — then 10 cents for the boy. If you give him more, you put the waiter too near the same level. The waiter has his pride to consider."

No tipping in Japan. A percentage is added to your hotel bill. Except in ryokans — Japanese inns. A holdover from the days of the haughty samurai. You give a "present-o" to your room maid called "chai-dai". Tea money.

This must be placed in a gift envelope. (You buy them in stationery stores.). It is terribly gross to hand over unwrapped, raw money. This does not apply to airport porters. They make their money on tips. Raw and unwrapped. Tip your own change. He can turn it into yen at the airport bank. (Complicated? That's the mysterious East.)

New York, Paris and Rome are the most aggressive tip cities.

Cruise ship tipping — as advised by cruise directors — is ridiculous: $3 a day per couple for the room steward; $3 a day per couple for the table steward. (How come? The table steward does three times the work.)

Waiters in Spain accept tips with the finest manners. They also give the best service. A personal touch that is warming.

Russian cruise ships — there are a lot of them in the Pacific and Caribbean — don't let waiters or maids take tips. I tried out 5 dollars on my maid. She took it, at last, reluctantly. Went down to the ship's store and bought me a $5 Russian doll.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man who sold a quarter-ounce of marijuana Wednesday night to an undercover policeman was handed an eight-month jail term Friday in Victoria provincial court.

James Edward Allen, 20, no fixed address, pleaded guilty Thursday before Judge Fred Green to trafficking in marijuana.

Court was told by Crown counsel Derek Finall that the transaction took place in the Ingraham Hotel at about 8:35 p.m. and that the officer gave Allen $25 for the "Columbian gold."

Finall also said that Allen was on two years' probation at the time. He said Allen was convicted March 15, 1978, for theft under $200 and assault with intent to resist arrest and was fined $75 on each count and placed on probation.

Legal-aid lawyer Barry Mah Ming said Allen was extremely "stoned" or intoxicated at the time. Mah Ming also asked if Allen could address the court and Green allowed it.

"I realize what I've done is wrong," Allen stated, "and I expect to take punishment for it."

Judge Blake Allan expressed astonishment that employees of three stores in Victoria took a cheque from a man who may have been intoxicated at the time without making even one phone call to the man's bank.

Allan made his comments before sentencing 48-year-old Murray Henry Horton, now of Vancouver, to three concurrent, 90-day sentences for false pretences.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Horton purchased a Sony radio valued at $213.95 from The Bay with a cheque, a leather jacket from Dorman's Men's Wear valued at $299.60 with a cheque, and a Viking radio-cassette unit from T. Eaton's for $139.50 with a cheque on June 24 and 25 last year.

Laughton said all three cheques were returned marked insufficient funds. He told the court Horton opened an account at the bank on June 6 with a $50 deposit but had overdrawn the account by $15 on the dates of the three cheques.

He also informed Allan that Horton pawned the radio from The Bay for $50 and that the department store had to eventually redeem the radio from the pawn shop for the $50 and that the other two items were never recovered by the other stores.

Defence-lawyer Paul Scambler told the court Horton admitted that his signatures appeared on the cheques but said he had no recollection of the incidents. Scambler said his client had a drinking problem and had taken the Miracle Valley treatment program.

Laughton asked the judge to note that Horton was convicted of three counts of false pretences on Aug. 19, 1976, when he was fined $50 on each count and given a one-day jail sentence.

Allan said he would recommend Horton's sentence be served at the Alouette River prison unit for the treatment of alcoholism.

A 17-year-old youth who drew the attention of Sidney RCMP because he was shaking a tree violently shortly after midnight June 15 was fined $35.

Robert Arthur Sparling, 945 Downey, pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage.

Court was told RCMP spotted Sparling shaking a small tree at Beacon and Fifth and also noted a number of cement garbage containers pushed over.

Sparling told police he knocked over one of the garbage cans because he was mad.

A 23-year-old woman who failed to turn up for trial Friday morning changed her plea to guilty in the afternoon to a charge of refusing a breath test demand.

Martine Junkar, 825 Vernon, was to face trial earlier in the day on charges of impaired driving and refusing a breath test demand made March 2 by Saanich police.

However, she didn't show for her trial and a warrant was issued for her arrest.

After she was brought into court in the afternoon, she applied to change her plea and Laughton entered a stay of proceedings on the impaired driving charge.

Allan fined the woman $300.

ROSS

Victoria City police Friday released a photograph of a man wanted in connection with the murder of a 26-year-old Victoria woman May 14.

Police have charged Tommy Ross, 19, an American from the Los Angeles area, with first degree murder in the slaying of Janice Aili Forbes.

Mrs. Forbes, a mother of two small children was discovered bound and strangled in her apartment at 1017 Queens.

There was no apparent motive for the killing.

Ross is also wanted for the murder of a 20-year-old woman in Port Angeles on April 24 and is sought by police in Los Angeles, San Diego, and Ventura for killings and sex crimes in their areas.

The wanted man was last seen in Bellingham the weekend of May 26-28.

Police throughout B.C. and the western United States have joined in the hunt for Ross, described in a police circular as extremely dangerous and probably armed with a knife.

A city police spokesman said Ross has been known to use several aliases including Tommy Lyndell Ross and Marvin Johnson Ross.

He is five feet nine inches tall, 155 pounds, with a scar on the left side of his nose extending to the nostril.

A MEATY PROTEST

COLOMBO (Reuter) — A Sri Lankan legislator lodged a strong complaint in parliament Thursday over a restaurant and bar named The Happy Buddha Steak House in Houston, Tex.

A government backbencher protested that naming a bar and restaurant after Buddha was an isnult to the founder of a world religion and millions of his followers.

The matter is to be referred to Foreign Minister Sahul Hameed to see whether it can be taken up with the U.S. government.

Baby Bids Blocked

The provincial government tightened regulations of the Adoption Act on Friday to ensure that a black market for babies does not crop up in B.C.

The new regulations follow a May 30 classified advertisement in Vancouver newspapers in which a lawyer said certain unnamed clients wished to adopt a baby or young child and were willing to assume pre-natal and-or post-natal expenses.

Former Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said the offer amounted to little more than bidding money for babies, something one step removed from slavery.

While the new regulations don't put an end to privately-arranged adoptions in B.C., they do require that the superintendent of child welfare be fully informed of all circumstances surrounding the adoption.

Cathie Fornssler, information officer with the human resources ministry, said Friday the regulations will ensure the rights of children at the same time as they shut off the loophole in the Adoption Act.

STYLISH WINDS BLOWING FOR MEN

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

SPRING LAKE, N.J. (AP) — Change is the nature of fashion. Caution is the nature of men. And so men have clung to sober suits and flannel apparel. But wait.

Stylish winds are blowing into boring closets. Fashion-wary men are becoming as fashion-wily as women, and fall will herald a striking change in what the gentlemen wear.

"Men's clothes are losing their uptightness as men begin to feel more creative," says Lee Wright, a designer who calls the new style "facile"—Italian for "easy."

"Men are conditioned to be the navy blue suit in the corner and not to care how they look," said Wright, who designs subtle, relaxed, richly textured clothes. "That is changing."

The loose, easy look. The traditional tailored look. The tight-fitting disco look—all are competing for a corner of a man's wardrobe and piece of his pocketbook.

Men's wear is becoming as dynamic as women's wear as designers try to loosen men's collars and unbutton their thinking.

New-guard designers, like Wright, want to dress men in soft, "unconstructed"—or slightly lined—clothes. It is the first major silhouette change in 10 years and it is slimmer and less macho.

While padded shoulders are back for women, the new men's look calls for trimmer, realistic shoulders. Lapels are narrower, ties are skinnier and looser, collars are slight, even round. Pants are straight and pleated at the waist.

The flowing neck scarf is almost a standard accessory.

"I think that changing styles definitely reflect changing sexual images," says Wright, one of many designers at the recent fall preview here of the Men's Fashion Association of America.

It is not just high fashion for the few, although sweatshirt blazers, round collars and stringy ties will probably not abound.

The traditionalist need not fear. The old guard, like designer Donald Brooks, still opts for classic tailoring, refuses to bend to trendy breezes and says today's unconstructed jacket looks like tomorrow's laundry bag.

Brooks, a women's designer who entered men's wear and designed for Robert Redford, says the new unconstructed look is merely a slovenly fad disguised as style.

"Sloppiness is over and men are through with gimmicks," said Brooks.

AN ALUMINUM FLOAT IS THE BEST TOOL FOR WORKING DUST-ON COLOR INTO THE CONCRETE.

Copyright © 1978 POPULAR SCIENCE

Jazz Up Concrete By Mixing Colors

Most of the concrete you see is a pale gray color, just about the dullest hue on earth. But it needn't be that way. Concrete can be as colorful as you like, and there are three ways to make it that way.

the first is integral coloring — adding colored pigments to the concrete as it is mixed — gives it color clear through that can't wear off.

Order ready-mix precolored, or custom mix itusing pigments sold by most well stocked supply outlets.

If you buy colored ready mix it will probably cost about $6 a yard more than the plain gray stuff. Your ready mix dealer should have samples of colored concrete to show you, but don't expect the mix you buy to match the sample perfectly.

Mixing your own is no harder than mixing uncolored concrete. If you measure carefully, you can make up test batches to arrive at a formula that gives you the exact color you want.

To mix light colors you should use white sand and white cement. This produces the cleanest, brightest colors.

Use about two per cent pigment for pastels, double or triple that amount for stronger colors. For earth tones you can get by with ordinary sand, and dark sombre colors as well as gray and black can be made with ordinary gray cement.

The second method, dust-on color,is cheaper than integral coloring, yet it still gives reliable, durable color. It's based on powdered dust-on mixtures sold in 100-pound bags by masonry supply outlets. You sprinkle the powder onto freshly poured concrete after the surface water has disappeared. Then you trowel the dust in with an aluminum or magnesium float. Overtrowelling will bring water to the surface and cause uneven coloring, so don't trowel any more than necessary to work the powder in. Follow with another lighter dusting, then trowel again.

For a smooth finish, go over the surface with a steel trowel. If this brings water to the surface, wait a while, then try again.

The third method, staining and painting,is the cheapest and easiest way to color concrete. It's the only way to color existing concrete. But the colors are not as permanent as integral or dust-on colors, and the stains are usually not as bright. On the other hand, paints give you the widest assortment of colors and the brightest tones of all.

Special metallic salt type stains made specifically for concrete are the most durable. In a mild climate they may last 10 years. But you shouldn't use them on concrete over a year old or they won't react chemically with the concrete to produce the desired color. These stains are sold by masonry supply outlets.

Paint stores sell oil-base concrete stains made by well-known wood stain makers. You can brush or roll these stains on, and they will do a good job of hiding imperfections such as patches. But they don't wear well on slabs.

Paints for concrete come in a variety of types. Some are formulated to waterproof as well as color. Some are intended for walls only, some for walls and interior walls, and some for walls, floors and slabs. Whenever you buy a paint, make sure it is suitable for the use you have in mind.

For example, some floor paints are not good for garage floors; car tires will lift them. Other paints work well on concrete above ground, but not on slabs or on concrete below ground. Read labels and ask questions before you buy.

Clearing Some Cataract Queries

By JANE E. BRODY
The Washington Post

A pilot for a major airline was removed from flight duty at age 41 because cataracts had seriously reduced his visual clarity. The cataracts were removed surgically and his own defective lenses replaced by implanted artificial lenses. Now he's back working as a top-grade pilot.

A seven-year-old boy accidentally pushed a fork into his baby brother's eye and a cataract developed in the injured lens. The cataract was removed and the baby was fitted with a contact lens, which he, at age three, is now able to insert and remove himself.

Thus far, there is no way to prevent the development of most cataracts or to slow their growth. But better than 95 per cent of patients who undergo cataract surgery see better as a result. Thanks to improved techniques, the operation today is one of the safest in the surgical repertory, even for aged and chronically ill persons, and convalescence is far simpler and shorter than in the past. Nor is it necessary any longer to postpone surgery until a cataract is "ripe" and has caused near-blindness.

A cataract is an opacity, or clouding up, of the normally transparent lens of the eyes. The lens, a tiny oval capsule about an eighth-of-an-inch thick and convex on both sides, fits behind the pupil and iris, the colored part of the eye. Its job is to focus light rays so that they converge on the light-sensitive cells of the retina. Muscle fibres attached to the lens contract or relax, enabling the lens to flatten so that distant objects are in focus or to fatten so that near objects can be seen clearly.

Cataracts are the result of a chemical change in the protein of the lens which converts the lens from transparent to opaque, thus interfering with the passage of light rays. A cataract usually starts as a very small spot in the centre or near the side of the lens. At first, there may be no noticeable effect on vision. But as the cataract enlarges, the clouding of vision becomes apparent.

As one victim described it, "It's as if there was a veil in front of your eye and you always had to look through it." Gradually more veils are added and vision becomes cloudier and cloudier.

In addition to fuzzy or blurred vision, which may prompt the cataract victim constantly to seek brighter light for reading or to hold things very close to his eyes, other symptoms of cataracts include occasional double vision and difficulty with night driving because light from oncoming headlights is scattered by the cloudy lens. As a cataract develops, frequent changes of eyeglasses prescriptions may be necessary, but after a while new glasses no longer help.

Cataracts may form in only one eye or in both eyes at the same time. They may grow very slowly and never develop to the point where surgery is needed. Or they may enlarge rapidly. If there are cataracts in both eyes, they may not grow at the same rate.

The most common cause of cataracts is simply the degeneration associated with age.

Other causes of degeneration cataracts include exposure to X-rays, microwaves and infrared radiation; an injury in which the eye is penetrated; an illness such as diabetes associated with high blood sugar levels; an inflammation of the eye called uveitis, and certain drugs and chemicals taken orally or by injection, including cortisone and its derivatives, a cholesterol-lowering agent called MER-29 (no longer marketed), and a now-banned food chemical, dinitrophenol.

Some cataracts are developmental, rather than degenerative. These may be congenital (present at birth), caused by some noxious prenatal influence, or they may develop shortly after birth, possible the result of a genetic disorder.

If the mother has rubella (German Measles) early in pregnancy, her baby may be born with cataracts. Infants afflicted with the hereditary metabolic disease galactosemia will develop cataracts shortly after birth. Both these types of devlopmental cataracts can be prevented, the first by rubella vaccine or the actual infection before pregnancy, the second by placing the newborn infant on a special diet that lacks galactose, a sugar found in milk.

However, no drug, diet or exercise can prevent or dissolve cataracts. Surgery is the only effective treatment, and it is best done by an ophthalmologist who has a lot of experience with cataract surgery or has been trained in microsurgical techniques. The operation should be done when the cataract has reached the point where it interferes with a person's normal life.

Big reduction on Calvin Klein collection . . .

We know women who collect Calvin Klein pieces like other women collect fine china or what-have-you . . . So for you who collect . . . or you who would like to own an outfit by this brilliant young designer . . . we're happy to report that in Eaton's Signature Shop there's a 20% reduction on all the Calvin Klein spring and summer collection! . . . One group consists of cotton knit shirts and tops . . . the latter in several styles . . . wrap, pullover and button front . . . Next is the cotton damask group with dirndl skirts and matching short-sleeved tops . . . Then there's a group of pure silk knits . . . unbelievably soft and fine . . . dirndl skirts in a couple of different styles . . . short and long-sleeved tops . . . The short-sleeved one which buttons on one shoulder is particularly nice, we think . . . Colors in these are cream, peach, cinnamon and taupe . . . There's a dressy group too . . . Pure silk crepe de chine in a cream background with peach or pink floral pattern . . . Here too the skirts are Calvin Klein classics, meaning the softly gathered dirndl . . . Matching tops are either V-neck pullovers or a collared front buttoned blouse . . . In this group there is one mid-calf dress with V-neck . . . Another dressy group consists of parchment or peach silk crepe de chine skirt with elasticized waist, and tailored blouse . . . all with price tags slashed by 20%! . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 382-7141, loc. 242.

Decorator drama . . .

The curtain has finally rung down on Beston's big pre-inventory sale, and by Monday the store will be aglow with a lot of beautiful new lamps which have been waiting for a place to be displayed! . . . Earlier this week we got a peak at some of the new merchandise . . . We very much admired the ceramic lamps . . . both large and small . . . in neutral colors, which would fit particularly well into a decor that has striped or plaid upholstery . . . Saw quite a few brass lamps with shades in a new material . . . an almost random pleated silk in a light beige . . . These are very simple, very good-looking . . . and the color seems to blend in with off-white walls much better than white or even off-white shades do . . . There are floor lamps, swags and table lamps in these . . . and of course the brass never needs polishing since it has a baked-on lacquer finish . . . There are just a few beautiful pieces of wood . . . table lamps and swags with the great Regency look . . . dull black shades with gold banding . . . Very handsome indeed! With the likes of these in stock, no wonder people come over here from Vancouver to buy their lamps at Beston's! . . . If you need reading light and have nowhere to stand a lamp, see the little lamps with a flat heavy base which you can perch on a piano, bed headboard, shelf or small desk . . . They twist up, down and around, and are smart and functional . . . Beston's Lighting Exclusive, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-0332.

Happy hunting ground for gifts . . .

Shower gifts . . . wedding gifts . . . even Christmas gifts if you've vowed you're going to get an early start on them this year! . . . And where's it all at? Bath & Kitchen, no less! We guarantee you'll get more super gift ideas in ten minutes here than in half a day wandering around most other stores! . . . Just some "f'rinstnaces" . . . Luxurious scented padded draw liners . . . Aroma Discs to hang inside a lampshade for delicately perfuming a room . . . Bath back and neck protector pillows . . . one in a multi-color floral the other white with gold fleur de lis . . . plus solid colors of white, brown, cognac, yellow, blue and navy . . . Same plain color selection in smaller bath pillows plus pink, yellow, blue and gold floral designs . . . A set of fine quality towels would make a lovely wedding gift . . . There are such a lot of pretty patterns you seldom see elsewhere . . . Make up a set of bath and hand towel and wash cloth . . . Tuck a little fancy soap in with it and voila! A gift no bride could resist! . . . Something else which struck us as very "giftable" is the big salmon poacher . . . and while we're on the subject of wedding gifts . . . B & K have a bridal registry you should know about . . . The lucky girl can record everything she'd like for her kitchen and bathroom, along with colors and styles! . . . This week we noticed a new line of beach towels, very attractive, and considerably less expensive than most . . . just $8.98 at . . . Bath & Kitchen, James Bay Square, Simcoe & Menzies St., 385-2523.

Hot weather favorites . . .

Someone gave us some Purdy's brittles the other day and we're munching on it now . . . Mmmmm it's good! Just about one of the best hot weather candies imaginable! . . . There's smooth, crispy Almond Brittle . . . Chocolate-coated Almond Brittle . . . crunchy Butter Crisp and Peanut Brittle . . . every one of them a winner! . . . Now that summer's really here, you're probably getting weekend invitations from friends with cottages or boats . . . Husbands on their own are being invited out to dinner . . . All sorts of things happening which call for small tokens of appreciation on your part! . . . Our suggestion is that you drop in to one of Purdy's stores and pick up some of their delectable chocolates, candies or nut goodies to take with you on these sorties . . . There's the brittles we told you about . . . Mints are real hot weather favorites too . . . The small colored drops called Party Mints . . . Layer Mints . . . dark chocolate with a cool green mint filling . . . Mint Wafers, with white centres, and Bavarian Mint Melties . . . mint-flavored chocolate cream fillings . . . Fruit jellies are another nice summer confection . . . and Purdy's fudge is really yummy! . . . Another good suggestion for a hostess gift is a box of Purdy's salted nuts . . . and get some for yourself while you're at it . . . You'll never know how fresh and tasty nuts can be until you've tried Purdy's! . . . Purdy's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1241; Mayfair Shopping Centre, 385-5032, and Empress Hotel, 385-3555.

Wall units ring exciting changes . . .

A lot of people are moving from place to place these days . . . out of one apartment . . . in to another . . . There never seems to be enough storage space . . . and apartments have a curious way of looking all alike . . . How to remedy the situation? Well, one of the best ways we know is the use of wall units and room dividers . . . They can literally transform a room . . . as well as giving you space to hold just about everything! . . . At Standard Furniture this week we saw what is probably the biggest selection of wall units they've ever had . . . A really exciting one is a modular group in teak . . . It comes completely apart and a whole wall could be transported in almost any station wagon! . . . The modules build up like blocks . . . Comprise book shelves, record holders, stereo shelves, large bookcase, large desk, bar, cupboards and drawers . . . These all make up into delightful arrangements, in any combination you fancy . . . You might even collect modules! . . . Another great teak wall unit is a side-by-side affair . . . It too comes in a variety of forms . . . cupboards, shelves, drawers, etc. . . . An unusual unit has a washable laminated finish . . . white with black or black with white . . . Completely adjustable shelves . . . built-in lights . . . grass cloth or Chinese red backing . . . Teak room divider types are finished on both sides . . . Do go have a look at them at . . . Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5111.

A cleaning product that does everything . . .

Believe it or not, we spent a good part of the holiday weekend around our apartment trying out a new household cleaning product called Swipe . . . sold exclusively by Vita-Love Health Products . . . which they're introducing at a 10% discount . . . It's non-toxic, biodegradable . . . and is billed as the product with 1001 uses! . . . Now maybe this figure is a bit exaggerated . . . but we'll go on record as saying that Swipe's truly a miracle product . . . Cleans everything from ovens to shoes . . . Mirrors to whitewall tires . . . and yet so gentle you could take a bath in it! . . . Swipe is a concentrate which you mix yourself in three different strengths . . . Get the three spray bottles with it . . . make up mild, normal and heavy solutions to be used according to the various types of cleaning jobs to be done . . . Wash dishes with it . . . use if for your laundry . . . to clean your rugs . . . and even your jewellery! . . . Because Swipe is so concentrated, you use very small quantities . . . and it really does a terrific job on everything we've tried it on . . . Naturally we've only scratched the surface . . . but we're already gloating at how much money it's going to save us . . . Our three bottles of Swipe, in each of the three recommended strengths will take the place of the inumerable bottles and boxes of stuff we've been using up to now . . . Our best advice to you this week: Get a bottle of Swipe at . . . Vita-Love Health Products, James Bay Square, Simcoe & Menzies St., 382-6022.

Icelandic sweaters a "first" at Wilson's . . .

For the first time, Wilson's are carrying hand-knitted Icelandic sweaters . . . the most gorgeous things you ever saw! Now, maybe you're not thinking in terms of heavy sweaters at the moment . . . but come next winter, if you're the outdoors type, you'll thank your lucky stars you shopped for one at Wilson's here and now because, mark our words . . . they won't be around much longer once our tourist friends get a look at them! . . . These sweaters are hand-knitted in Iceland with pure Lopi wool . . . the long, soft, fluffy wool from those hardy Lopi sheep who roam the high mountains of Iceland in the bitterest weather . . . Their wool resists dirt, water and temperature changes . . . and the sweaters made from it are really something special . . . Knit without seams, even on the shoulders . . . no dyes of any kind . . . Just the natural, colors of the sheep themselves! . . . With contrasting yokes in original Scandinavian patterns . . . There's a pullover with crew neck, priced at $90 . . . and a cardigan with zip front . . . $95 . . . WARM LINED RAINCOATS

NEW YORK — Viola Sylbert designs things to keep people warm: things like furs and sweaters and patterns for women who want to knit their own sweaters, shawls and afghans. And now she's designing raincoats to stand up to the worst of the elements.

"I believe in functional clothes," she said. "I've been thinking about warm lined raincoats for years for those women who either can't afford furs or don't want a fur coat."

She's been well aware that not everyone can buy the more costly furs she does for Alixandre (for which she won a Coty Award in 1975). So when Beged-Or, the Israeli company famous for its leathers, approached her about designing a collection of raincoats, she said fine. "They're not to be worn only in bad weather. They're to be worn for function."

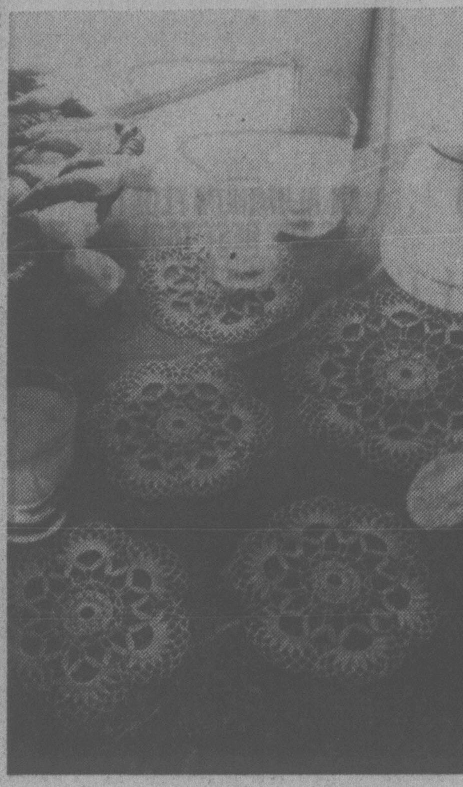
'Stump-Work' Big in 1700s

KNIT AND CHAT

By MAY E. MACLEAN



Just the other day I was asked what "stump-work" was. It's a form of embroidery which became very popular during the 1700s. The figures are raised and supported by cotton, wool or even hair. Today we know it as raised or embossed work.

In the wall hangings which have survived or from the study of paintings from those times, the pattern scheme usually consists of wavy stems rising from a strip of ground and throwing out large, conventional leaves and flowers.

Much work of this nature was done during the late 17th century, especially in England, France and Holland for covering seat-furniture and for bed-furniture.

In France, Mme. de Maintenon was a noted needlewoman, and most examples of her work which remain have more ordered design than most English work of the same period. The tendency in England was towards floral designs in seat-coverings and carpets, and large decorative panels for the walls took the place of tapestries on the walls.

These were worked by the ladies of the great houses and usually took the lines of a formal garden and the personages, along with servants of the house.

At Wallington Hall, Northumberland, there are preserved floral panels in vivid design worked by Lady Claverley in 1716.

In the Regency period, too, fashion became more elaborate. Profuse embroideries were not only showered upon women's dress but on men's, too. Fans, gloves, shoes, caps, etc. were decorated while the all-important embroidered hankerchiefs were mere gossamers of exquisite needlecraft.

Silk was used extensively for embroidery as well as beads. We see this on bags, valentines and even playing cards of this period. In the home, needlework was displayed on pole screens (these protected the face from the heat from the fireplace), candle screens and smaller hand screens. Several were needed in the average household.

Easy crochet for a table setting — delicate and dainty doilies worked in basic crochet stitches will enhance any room. Instructions are given for a fine crochet cotton as well as a slightly heavier thread. Two sizes of doilies are also given.

To order Leaflet No. 7863, send 75 cents, plus a stamped, self-addressed return envelope, a long one if possible. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to May E. MacLean, Knit and Chat, 486 Montford Dr., Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, Que.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly and to enclose your stamped, return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery. All back numbers of my series are available, price 75 cents, catalogue 25 cents, plus stamped, return envelope or an extra 25 cents.

Canada's International Development Agency publishes a quarterly which deals with a great variety of non-governmental activities in developing countries.

A recent edition of this bilingual publication called Action, told about a travelling mime theatre company which performs mainly for the benefit of illiterate Indians.

One informative issue showed that until recently, at least 3,000 Egyptian children below the age of five were stricken by polio every year. Therefore, with the help of the United Nation's Children's Fund, Egypt launched a major vaccination campaign which has proved extremely successful.

Another issue told about several Canadian organizations which support assistance programs in Sri Lanka, formerly known as Ceylon. Also in this issue was a report that Canada's Overseas Book Centre in Ottawa has shipped more than 10 million books to 90 developing countries during the past 12 years, and that since Canada World Youth was established in 1971, some 3,000 young Canadians have visited developing nations, shared work with their citizens and got to know the challenges faced by many Third World communities.

For a copy of the bilingual publication Action, write to: Canadian International Development Agency, 122 Bank St., Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0G4.

Please indicte your postal code and allow at least two to three weeks for delivery.

CAMOSUN COLLEGE

ENGLISH PLACEMENT TEST
for
POST-SECONDARY STUDENTS

Students entering most post-secondary institutions in B.C. are now required to write an English Placement Test. Scores from this test will be used to assist in assigning students to English courses appropriate to their needs.

The test will be offered at 6:45 p.m. on July 18, 1978 at:
CAMOSUN COLLEGE,
1950 Lansdowne Road,
Victoria, B.C.
Phone 592-1281, Local 241

The test will also be offered at other colleges throughout B.C.

Detailed information regarding the requirements, purpose and format of the English Placement Test may be obtained in person from student information services at post-secondary institutions.

All students planning to enter a post-secondary institution in September of 1978 are encouraged to write the English Placement Test on July 18/78.

Slinky Needs a Little Head Room

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: If I can get him past my mother, my friend is going to give me his seven-foot boa constrictor. I measured him. He is more than two inches tall and seven feet long. I need to know how long a cage to build for Slinky. How tall? Would four inches be enough?—G.F.

DEAR G.F.: The cage should be at least as long as the snake so a seven-footer will do for a start. (It should be about half that wide.) While a snake might appreciate a snug retreat on occasion, a four-inch ceiling would eventually give your boa constrictor clasutrophobia, at least. There is an advantage in having a tall cage for a low snake: It gives them somewhere else to go, particularly if you provide a large branched "tree." Consider, too, most floors are poor places for snakes to spend much time. They're too cool and drafty.

Also, if house traffic is heavy, the snake may have a hard time getting peace and quiet. The floor's constant vibrations would zap Slinky's sensitive body.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bitsy was taken away from her mother or she would have been killed. I'm asking what's a good age to worm a very young puppy?—G.E.

DEAR G.E.: Worming should be done under veterinary supervision for safety's sake and the age at which it's done varies depending on what worms may be present and the condition of the puppy. Wormings in breeding colonies, for example, are often begun when the puppies are only one month old.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We laughed about tht alcoholic parakeet which might have cirrhosis of the liver. Suddenly we quit laughing. We realized Frowsy, our bird, has an evening martini with us. Could he have liver damage already from this alcohol? Is there any test that could be used to determine an alcohol-damaged liver before it's too late? That would be a test before cirrhosis, wouldn't it?—S.T.

DEAR S.T.: There is a pre-cirrhosis liver test developed for humans which measures liver damage at a still completely reversible stage. But this test has yet to be completely proven in humans and a corresponding test for alcoholic avians would be a long way down the pike; too far, I'm afraid, to be of benefit to Frowsy. Liver tests, of course, can't prevent a damaged liver, and if preventive measures are taken first, tests would be unnecessary. If cocktail time is nonalcoholic, it can't contribute to alcohol-induced liver cirrhosis or even to pre-cirrhosis liver damage.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mousey, our cat, was just a year of age and we figured she was pregnant. All of a sudden her breasts swelled up like she had had silicone injections. Incredible! She still ate well and seemed not really sick. Is that a predicament or not?—M.L.

DEAR M.L.: Pregnant pussycat predicaments related to enlarged mammary glands are varied in cause. Near full term, the condition may be normal — physiologically related to milk production for the upcoming litter. An unlikely possibility — especially in a young pregnant female — would be rapidly developing mammary malignancies. Mastitis (infection of the mammary glands) may be responsible, although in these cases the female is running a fever and usually obviously sick. A final possibility is mammary hypertrophy (actual enlargement of the mammary tissue). This condition may be brought about by pregnancy or by long-term treatment with hormones of the type related to the Pill.

Ovariohysterectomy (spaying) is the treatment of choice for massive mammary development caused by hypertrophy.

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I was sitting in the movies, as relaxed as I could be. Suddenly, my heart began pounding. I felt weak and almost fainted. This lasted for about five minutes, then it suddenly stopped. This has happened to me three times in the last two years. When I'm over it, I forget about it. Can you expain this? — Mrs. S.S.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Before "explaining" your condition, I prefer to comment on your apparent neglect in seeking the advice of your own doctor after your first spell of rapid heartbeat. You are not alone in this behavior pattern. Far too many people delude themselves into believing that an attack of this sort will not recur. When it does, there is an immediate feeling of fear. However, this fear dissipates itself when the rapid heartbeat suddenly stops. The result is that these people go from one attack to another, without learning its cause, and without taking advantage of the excellent drugs that can prevent these attacks.

You accurately describe a condition known as "paroxysmal tachycardia."

A remarkable mechanism is present in the heart that keeps the rate of the heartbeat in control. For a variety of reasons, this controlling mechanism can be temporarily disturbed, and the heartbeat races away from its control.

Excessive use of tobacco or alcohol, alone or in combination, may trigger such an attack. Emotional stress and tension can do the same thing. There are, of course, many other possible explanations for the rapid, uncontrolled, runaway heartbeat.

The ideal way to establish the exact cause would be to have an electrocardiogram done at the time of the sudden increase of the heartbeat. Unfortunately, by the time one gets to the doctor, the attack has subsided. Nevertheless, heart tracings in between attacks may be revealing.

Even if it is not possible to pinpoint the exact cause, the excellent drugs that are now available may prolong the intervals between attacks and may speedily stop them when they do occur. Your obligation to yourself is to have a thorough medical examination. You will find that in addition to learning more about paroxysmal tachycardia you will also gain the important assurance that what you have is not a life-threatening condition.

How can doctors tell if a mole on the face is cancerous or not? Doesn't it have to be taken out to be examined? — Miss I.N.

Dear Miss N.:

The appearance and the rate of growth of the mole is significant to the doctor. For this reason, "suspicious" moles are kept under constant observation. Changes in the character and the size determine whether or not the doctor will suggest leaving it alone or removing it for microscopic study.

EATON'S

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: This is probably just like a million other letters you've received from women who have had affairs with married men. But this one contains a piece of advice that hasn't been emphasized nearly enough.

Last year I started seeing an absolutely fantastic guy from work. I knew he was married, but we played it cool and thought we could handle it. It was terrific while it lasted, but it had to come to an end. (The old story: We got too serious. He didn't want to hurt his wife and kids. Then he got "noble" and told me he couldn't allow me to invest any more time in a man who couldn't marry me.)

I'm not blaming anybody but myself. I'm a mature woman and should have known better. The moral to this story is: If you must have an affair, don't choose someone you will see at work every day. When it's over, the daily contact is torture. — STILL HURTING.

DEAR STILL: You seem to have overlooked another "moral" or two: "Thou shalt not commit adultery" and "Thou shalt not steal."

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is desperately needed if my wedding, which is two months off, is to be a happy occasion.

My father is dead and my mother insists that I have my only brother walk me down the aisle and give me away.

Abby, my brother is a foul-mouthed, ill-mannered, chronic alcoholic who spoils every gathering he attends with his drunkenness. I rarely see him for this reason.

I am marrying a fine man. Members of his family who live out of town are coming to our wedding. I suppose every family has a skeleton in their closet, but I don't want to put mine on display. I am paying for my own wedding and don't want it spoiled.

My mother has made excuses for my brother all his life, and she has given me an ultimatum: If I don't have him give me away, she won't attend. I want my mother there. What should I do? — SOMETHING BLUE (ME).

DEAR BLUE: I think your mother is being grossly unfair by issuing such an ultimatum, but why not issue her one? Tell her that if she will assume the responsibility of keeping her son sober on your wedding day, fine. But you will have someone else waiting in the wings to do the honors — just in case. (P.S. Your brother might rise to the occasion and surprise you — and I sincerely hope he does.)

Detailed Report May Answer Tomato Queries

GARDENING
jack beastall

Questions on tomato plants head the list this week. Reports range from plants four inches high which are making no progress, to four-foot plants with no signs of flowers or fruits.

To answer each question separately would require a small book on tomato culture and much of the information would be repeated since deviation from the basic necessities for these plants is the case of growth problems.

Possibly the best way to cover the questions received up to the present is to give a detailed report on our own plants and leave the readers to decide the probable cause of their problems from a comparison with their own records.

Seed was sown indoors (no greenhouse) on March 12 and germinated in three days. Seedlings were transferred to three-inch pots containing screened compost on March 20.

Varieties used were Spitfire and Fireball, both bush (or determinate) types which produce early in this climate and bear medium-size red fruits.

As weather improved, the pots were placed outdoors in a sheltered spot on sunny days and returned to an enclosed, unheated south-facing porch by late afternoon. This treatment builds strong plants less likely to receive a check in growth when finally set out in the garden.

As the three-inch pots filled with roots the young plants were transferred to five- and six-inch clay pots, again in screened compost.

Note that no fertilizer was added to either of the potting composts. Soft and leggy plants would result during this indoor-outdoor period if growth was forced with plant foods.

On May 24 the pots were placed in a deep coldframe with glass covers, open during the day, covered at sundown, with a sheet of three-ply as an extra cover on frosty nights. From March 20 until the end of May temperature records show six air frosts at night and 27 ground frosts, the last on May 31.

On June 3, six plants of Starfire and six of Fireball were set into the open garden in full sun, but reasonably sheltered from strong winds. Three plants of each variety had tiny fruits visible and all plants were in flower.

Over 50 years of growing tomato plants in Vancouver and in several gardens in the Victoria area have proven the need for carefully prepared planting holes for success in this coastal climate.

Tomato plants will make a spurt of growth whenever conditions are ideal, be it day or night, and must have available moisture around the roots when these spurts occur. The only way to assure this nearby reserve is to have a quantity of moisture-holding material in the planting holes.

The holes were made 18 inches wide and 14 inches deep. In the bottom went a layer of grass clippings which had been spread under cover for a month to dry. On top, long stems of dried grass from the top of a new compost heap were layered.

Next, the holes were filled to half-way with screened compost, thoroughly soaked with water, and allowed to drain.

This soaking with water washed some of the compost down among the dry material and gave it the first moistening. While draining, stout stakes were driven into place, one for each plant.

Six large leaves of comfrey were laid on the moist compost in each hole and covered with a couple of inches of dry compost. As these leaves gel, sufficient nutrients are released to get the tomato plants well established without the soft, forced growth caused by fertilizer.

The plants were gently tapped from the pots and placed on the layer of dry compost, and the holes filled to soil level with more screened compost.

The soil was given another soaking with water to remove air pockets and settle it around the root ball, leaving the desirable slight depression on the surface.

Water has been applied early in the morning at the base of each plant at intervals of seven to 10 days, depending on sky conditions and day temperatures.

In the two warm spells, a slight curling of the leaves was evident when the wind exceeded 20 km/h. This was due to moisture being removed from the leaves faster than the roots were able to replace it. The condition corrected itself overnight.

After the first truss of fruit had set and was sizing rapidly, the plant received a half teaspoonful (measuring size) of 6-8-6 fertilizer. Not all plants were ready for this at the same time. Another half-teaspoonful was applied when the second truss had set, which happened during one of the warm spells. Watering was done before and after the fertilizer was applied.

At the time of writing, July 5, the plants of Starfire are 14 to 16 inches high, while Fireball are 15 to 18 inches. There are two to three trusses of fruit on each of the 12 plants and two flower trusses.

The six Starfire plants now have 44 fruits, the largest 2½ inches in diameter; the Fireball have 42 fruits, the largest 2¾ inches in diameter.

Records covering the past 20 years show the picking date for the first fully ripe tomato to be between July 21 and 29, except for a couple of cool seasons (one last year) when ripening was delayed until August 5.

Using the early maturing bush varieties of tomato in this climate makes it possible to ripen the entire crop on the vines and have it picked before the first fall frost.

When four or five trusses of fruit have set, the growing tips are removed from each plant to prevent further flowering and the unnecessary drain on plant reserves in producing fruits that have no chance of ripening.

One more application of one-half teaspoonful of 6-8-6 will be given as the first fruits ripen, and watering will be continued on the seven- to 10-day schedule according to weather conditions.

It has been found helpful to remove some of the small growths which appear in the leaf axils to limit the size of the plants and put the energy into fruit ripening, even though this practice is not recommended on bush varieties.

Falling blossoms or failing to set fruit results from spoiled pollen through overhead watering. Water only at roots in the early morning so that the soil surface is dry before temperatures drop overnight. This also prevents mildew and fungous diseases.

Work For Week

Make final preparations for sowing carrots, beets, peas, dwarf beans, spinach, swiss chard, curley endive, lettuce, winter radish, green onion — all for use in fall and some during winter. Sow during coming week before July 15th.

Compost all green material from discarded vegetable parts. More new soil must be made for next year's crops to replace that used this year. The humus makes for better growth and saves on fertilizer.

As the taller perennial asters grow, pinch back some growths to make bushier plants covered with bloom in September.

Keep fall flowering perennials well watered to maintain growth for display during fall months. No need to have the garden finished at the end of August.

Feed lilies a balanced 6-8-6 and water well to ensure next year's flowers.

Young celery plants can be put into well-prepared space where early peas were cut off and their roots dug back into the soil for additional nitrogen. Fill the trench with well-rotted compost.

Climbing beans need copious watering and their root area mulched with dry grass to prevent overheating and frequent drying out.

Bus Drivers Decry New Transit Set-Up

Hydro bus drivers in Victoria feel the new B.C. Urban Transit Authority Act will only create a new dictatorial administrative structure and provide a funding formula with the potential for political abuse.

The points are made in a brief prepared by Gentry Hudson, who has been acting as a researcher for the Amalgamated Transit Union's Victoria local.

The act, passed at the recent session of the legislature, sets up a Crown corporation to run urban transit throughout the province. The new authority will take the operation of the buses out of the hands of B.C. Hydro.

The brief says public transportation in B.C., qualitatively and quantitatively, will never be the same.

The ATU local says it agrees with setting up an independent authority which will serve and respond to local needs but it is concerned with other controversial items in the statute.

"The dictatorial character of the administrative structure created by the act would appear to be inconsistent with and destructive of, the act's stated local determination objectives," the brief says.

The union also says there is a serious weakness in the act because it fails to specify a funding formula between the provincial and local governments.

"The potential for political abuse offered by this act is not inconsiderable because nothing in the act specifically prohibits the provincial government from varying the funding formula both between and within regions to the disadvantage of the government's political adversaries."

The ATU says it amounts to political suicide in today's tax climate, to have local governments increase the gasoline tax or electricity rates to pay for the transit system, as is provided for in the transit act.

"Indeed, the act would appear to institutionalize taxation without representation since it creates new transit taxes but obligates local officials to accept responsibility for their imposition."

The union says one alternative is a "gas guzzler tax" combined with a substantial tax on downtown parking in Victoria and Vancouver.

The union says until the government addresses itself to the questions raised by the act's form, the legislation's objectives, however praiseworthy, will remain unfulfilled.

In the Senior Division of the tournament, for those under 20, Peter stood ninth out of fifty international competitors. Peter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Kilger, of Yarrow, B.C.

Tut's Treasure Sparks Interest

SEATTLE (AP) — Step right up, folks, and see King Tut's treasures.

No three-ring circus, two-headed dogs, fat ladies or snake men in the show, but you can marvel at the gold and crafts of ancient Egypt—and buy your own gen-u-ine brass copies at not one, but two souvenir shops.

From Florida to California to Maine, it seems they'll be packing 'em in to see the glories of the Boy King.

The box office is the Seattle Art Museum and membership applications to the museum are flowing in from 48 states at the rate of 100 a day, says Dianne Chew, membership manager.

The King Tutankhamun exhibit opens here July 15.

Ms. Chew said museum membership stands at 24,000, up from 6,575 of one year ago.

She said Rhode Island and Indiana are the only states whose citizens have not sent applications for membership and she had no theory to explain why persons from those states would want to miss the King Tut exhibit.

Museum members are entitled to "free" admission to the King Tut exhibit, after paying as much as $30 for memberships.

THREE POINT DATSUN

Horsey Day For PM

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau watched with apparent interest Friday as bucking broncos named Liberal, Pierre and Justin gave good performances at the Calgary Stampede.

"That must be the only one in the country," the stampede rodeo announcer said in reference to Liberal.

The dig at the fact that the prime minister has been unable to elect a Liberal in Alberta did not seem to bother Trudeau as he watched the performances of horses raised by Jack Horner, minister of trade, former Progressive Conservative, and MP for Crowfoot, Alta.

The bucking-bronco performance was a preliminary to the brief official opening ceremonies scheduled for Friday night.

Trudeau was to fly home today, ending a two-day trip to Vancouver and Calgary which party officials called a success.

The officials said Trudeau had achieved his aims of getting a fair reception for his constitutional ideas in a Vancouver speech and being seen by the public.

They were happy at the response that Trudeau and Horner got during the parade. They said Horner was booed when he rode in the same parade last year, not long after he switched to the Liberals from the Conservatives.

The cheers for the prime minister were salted with insults.

"I hope you're sore tomorrow," yelled one man.

"Why don't you have an election now, you jackass," said another.

A group gave him the thumbs-down sign.

I.D. Cards for Newborn

OTTAWA (CP) — Infants in Prince Edward Island are given social insurance numbers at birth, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Friday.

The provincial registrar applies for the number on behalf of the infant and the federal unemployment insurance commission, record keeper for the social insurance system, assigns it.

Bernard Dertinger, who helped set up the system, said that the registrar needs the information to charge the cost of hospital care through the infant to the province's medical care program. In other provinces, this is done through the medical insurance of parents.

Asked if Prince Edward Island parents know their infants are being assigned social insurance numbers at birth, Dertinger replied: "Of course."

Dertinger said an agreement was reached with Prince Edward Island in 1970 or 1971 after the plan had been discussed with registrars from all provinces.

"There was substantial agreement at the official level," Dertinger said of the discussions. "An agreement was worked out with Manitoba. For some reason or other, it was never implemented."

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the royal commission chairman, said it appears that a "national identification card system" is being set up using the social insurance system. "No doubt that police would find it helpful."

Dertinger said that 20 million social insurance numbers have been issued since the system was set up in the mid-1960s. However, the total included all those who have been issued numbers and are dead, because the system has no way of deleting the numbers of the dead.

Canada's population is about 23.5 million.

The royal commission is interested in the system because information from social insurance files has been given, despite assurances to applicants that it would be held in confidence, to RCMP and other police forces as well as many other government agencies.

Reform Speedup Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, says the Commons and a special parliamentary committee should be forced to complete a study of government constitutional reform measures by mid-November.

But he adds that he suspects Prime Minister Trudeau wants to draw out discussion on the reforms to keep attention away from the country's economic problems.

In an interview with Standard Broadcast News taped last Tuesday for broadcast Saturday, Broadbent says parliamentary study of the constitutional initiatives should be a "first, quick step."

A 30-member joint Commons-Senate committee, set up recently to consider government plans to replace the Senate with a House of the Federation, alter the Supreme Court of Canada and guarantee basic rights in the country's underlying law, should be placed under a one-month deadline, he says.

The Commons could then spend a month dealing with the issue when the House resumes Oct. 10 after the current summer recess.

Broadbent says that would mean the Commons could vote on the proposals by Nov. 10, and the government could then turn its attention to pressing economic problems.

Both Broadbent and Conservative Leader Joe Clark have expressed support for a number of the reforms. Both accept the idea of guaranteeing rights under the constitution and requiring prime ministers to meet annually with provincial premiers.

At another point, Broadbent renewed his criticism of Trudeau's proposal to replace the Senate with the House of the Federation, a 118-member body that would be appointed half by provinces and half by the Commons.

The Senate should simply be abolished, Broadbent says.

Any new appointed house would frustrate work of the elected Commons. Because it would be appointed on the basis of popular vote nationally and in the provinces, it would inevitably be controlled by a combination of opposition parties.

McNamara's Diary Lists N.S. Premier

TORONTO (CP) — An insight into the intricacies of high-level bidding on government contracts was given Friday when extracts from a personal diary were introduced at the Ontario Supreme Court trial of 11 businessmen and nine companies charged with rigging dredging bids between 1969 and 1974.

The diary of Harold McNamara, 64, president of McNamara Corp. Ltd., one of the companies charged with defrauding public agencies of $4.27 million, was seized during a June 13, 1974, raid by investigators from the RCMP and department of national revenue.

Among the many names it contained only a few were identified, including those of Gerald Regan, premier of Nova Scotia, and Gerard Levesque, a Quebec minister of commerce.

Other names, some without surnames, were Bill Kelly, Davis, Charlie McNaughton, George Gathercole, Marchand, John Connolly, Pierre Camus and Ernie Griffiths.

The excerpts, between 1971 and 1973, do not identify all the persons named.

Crown attorney Roderick McLeod said entries of a personal, family or medical nature were deleted. He did not tell the court his purpose in submitting the diary entries.

Many entries are abbreviated and technical. Others refer to meetings with Ontario Hydro, British Columbia Hydro and Manitoba Hydro. There are references to locations in Quebec and Ontario but details are omitted.

Regan's name appears in several March, 1973, entries.

—March 23, 1973—"Quinlan in re Mulgrave. Summing up, it has been suggested to Moore we might help out in drive for new hockey rink in Regan's case. Moore will bring down a small donation (5 grand). Called John Connolly and tracked him down in Toronto. He will call Regan Monday and tell him what good Liberals we are and how good to build Mulgrave. Will then call me back. Wouldn't be a bad idea to go and see Regan, I believe."

An entry five days later said Connolly spoke to Regan and "cleared the air."

In Halifax, Premier Regan said he could find no evidence in his records of any conversation with a John Connolly or persons associated with McNamara.

He said to his knowledge neither NcNamara construction nor its representatives had given $5,000 to finance the arena project.

The name Davis appears in entries for November, 1971, and June, 1972.

—Nov. 5, 1971—"Cooper made pitch to Davis on our behalf re Arnprior. Looks promising. Told Emerson will put him together with CAC lawyers Monday."

$56.8M Taxes Evaded: Feds

MONTREAL (CP) — National revenue department officials say they have completed an inquiry into a false invoicing network that involved 347 companies in the Montreal clothing and textile industry and unreported incomes of $56.8 million.

The federal treasury expects to recover about $38 million in taxes, interest and fines in what was described as the largest tax evasion racket ever uncovered in Canada.

At one time there were 150 investigators working on the case.

Under the scheme, companies issued invoices to buyers without any merchandise changing hands.

Companies receiving invoices would pay the amount they were billed, take a commission of eight or 10 per cent, and return the remainder to the company that issued the invoice.

People inside the companies could divert cash from the companies into their own pockets, and for the buyer, the amount on the false invoice was an expense that reduced the company's taxable income.

The fraud came to light in 1976 when an employee leaving a participating company, Shildan Knitting Mills Ltd., lost a quarrel over severance pay and tipped off officials of a bank that had $2 million on loan to the company.

After an investigation, Shildan was declared bankrupt. Company president Leonard Cohen admitted at a bankruptcy hearing he had sold phony invoices worth $18 million between 1974 and 1976.

Four companies have pleaded guilty to tax evasion, and charges are pending against a number of others.

Help Wanted For Affair

Two young promoters are looking for musicians, artists, actors and craftsmen to take part in a fair being organized in the Duncan area for mid-August.

Andy Best and Derrich Rozdeba are busy signing up a wide-range of artists for the Mid-Summer Affair they have planned for Aug. 19 and 20.

The fair will be held in a grassy and wooded area two miles south of Duncan on the banks of the Koksilah River.

Plans call for the fair to feature about 60 booths displaying arts, crafts and various foods. From 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on both days entertainment will be provided by musicians, theatre groups and a circus act.

Crafts booths will rent for $25 for the two-day event while food booths will cost $45.

Single day-pass tickets to the fair will go for $3.

Anyone interested in taking part in the event can write: Mid-Summer Affair/General Delivery/Cowichan Station, V0R 1P0 or phone organizers in Nanaimo at 754-6214 or Duncanc at 748-8218 and 746-6772.

Manager Promoted At Bay

Robert Chorley of Victoria has been promoted to the position of general sales manager for The Bay in both the Lower Mainland and Victoria.

He will move to Vancouver to assume his new position, which takes effect Aug. 7.

He will be succeeded as manager of The Bay's Victoria store by Cam Young on the same day.

Chorley will be resigning as president of the Victoria Racquet club after seven months in the position.

"I am sorry to be leaving Victoria, with so many exciting things happening," he said.

"I hope things will continue to go well for the Racquet Club. We have worked very hard and things are improving, especially with all the tennis activity."

Chorley also has been active in the Downtown Business Association.

He had campaigned within the company to have the Victoria department store renovated and this work is under way.

Chorley said renovations to the main floor would be completed by Sept. 15.

"We are very pleased with the new look of the store."

TONIGHT
ON CABLE 10 VICTORIA

A repeat of our special "Canada Day" community programming features "The Canadian Mosaic" where Victorians from a wide variety of ethnic origins discuss their first impressions of Canada upon arriving in this new country. They talk candidly about racism, opportunity, and the freedom they enjoy in Canada. Also — visitors to our city and local residents answer the question "What is a Canadian?" Young people across Canada present a youth dialogue on Canada's future, and children in costume perform ethno-cultural dancing in Centennial Square.

Enjoy our special July 1st Canada Day feature when the programme is repeated on Cable 10 Victoria July 8th at approximately 5:35 p.m.

Weddings

Mann-Blain

Relatives and friends gathered at the Church of Christ, Victoria, May 6, 1978, at 2 p.m. to share in the joy of uniting in marrige, Valerie Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blain, to Mr. David Russel Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mann. Evangelist Mr. Jim Hawkins, a close friend of the families, performed the double ring ceremony. The scene was set with the reading of 1 Corinthians 13 by Mr. Brad Wilkerson, as Miss Karen Mann, sister of the groom and Mr. Jim Mann, cousin of the groom, lit candelabras each in unison. The radiant bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the singing of "O Perfect Love." Given in marriage by her parents, the bride looked beautiful in her specially designed wedding dress. The floor length gown of white polyester satin featuring double self shoulder straps, was arrayed with an elbow length cape of dainty Venetian lace. An overskirt of silk illusion, which began above the waistline, fell softly into a six foot train. A delicate arrangement of white silk flowers graced her head. A gold diamond cross, gift from the groom, complemented her neckline. Her bouquet of white chrysanthemums, stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley completed the picture. The maid of honor, Miss Paula Graham, and bridesmaids, Miss Marlene Mann, sister of the groom, Miss Carol Christianson, cousin of the bride, wore identical gowns of mint green jersey accented with ecru lace and matching capes. Each wore a sprig of baby's breath in their hair and carried a single yellow rose. Miss Stacey Wilkerson was a sweet flowergirl in her mint green eyelet dress. She carried a white wicker basket of yellow and white daisies. The groom was attended by Mr. Glen Capek as best man, Mr. Kerry Blain, brother of the bride and Mr. Richard Wood as ushers. All wore beige tuxedos with a yellow rosebud complementing their lapel. Clint Sinclair, cousin of the bride, was dashing as the ring-bearer, in an identical tuxedo with a white daisy as his boutonniere. Expressing their dedication to each other, Valerie and David recited their own meaningful vows. Symbolic of their union, a single white candle was lit to the singing of "Evergreen". Miss Karen Mann sang "The Wedding Prayer." Mr. Jim Mann directed the music selections.

Enroute to a reception at the Oak Beach Hotel, the wedding party visited the bride's great-grandmother at Glen Garry Hospital. Mr. Alan Thomson proposed the toast to the bride, as did his father twenty-four years ago to her mother. The wedding cake, baked by the bride's mother and decorated by the groom's mother, was cut to the singing of "You Light Up My Life" by Miss Wendy Beckett. Miss Gloria Bryant attended the Guest Book. Congratulations and best wishes were received from a few of the bride's relatives in England.

For her going away outfit, Valerie chose a feminine border print dress with eggshell shoes and clutch, finishing the ensemble. She wore an arrangement of yellow baby carnations in her hair. After a honeymoon visiting Orcas Island, Mr. and Mrs. David Mann now reside in Victoria.

Miller—Horvath

St. Stephen's Church in Saanichton was the peaceful country setting for a lovely spring wedding June 10, 1978 at 1 p.m. Rev. I. Futter officiated at the double-ring ceremony joyfully uniting Marilyn Lee Horvath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Horvath of Victoria, and Stephen Roy Miller, son of Mr. T. R. Miller of Victoria, and Mrs. P. J. Roelofs, of Lethbridge, Alberta.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the pretty bride looked stunning in an exquisite gown of white satin polyester sheer with ruffled tiers of Spanish lace adorning the border of the soft flowing skirt, and cascading entrain. The open Victorian neckline featured an edge of delicate lace and tiny pearl buttons, as did the sheer sleeves which were narrow at the wrist, and fastened with a row of tiny buttons. The talented bride made her own gown and those of her attendants. Her dainty headpiece created by her aunt, Mrs. Leona Horvath, was fashioned out of tiny white satin rosebuds and complemented her fingertip veil edged in delicate lace. Marilyn's trailing bouquet of yellow and white featured butterfly orchids, sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister, Miss Candace Horvath, as maid of honor. Miss Carrie Horvath, sister of the bride and Miss Shannon Miller, sister of the groom, were the bridesmaids. They were pictures in their old-fashioned gown of pale yellow cotton similar in style to the bride's, the full sleeves narrowed to the wrist with a row of tiny pearl buttons and white lace trim, with open Victorian neckline, featuring the same edging of white lace. On their hair were dainty white circlets of lace surrounding yellow satin rosebuds made by the bride, and they carried nosegays of daisies and baby's breath in yellow and white. The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with white ruffled shirt and wore a yellow rose on his lapel. Mr. Grant Erickson, the groom's brother-in-law was the best man, and Steve was attended by groomsman Michael Miller, brother, and Roland Horvath, brother of the bride. They wore tuxedos of pale yellow with matching ruffled shirts and wore boutonnieres of yellow-tipped white carnations.

Guests enjoyed a buffet lunch with the happy couple at the beautiful Deep Cove Chalet. Master of Ceremonies was close friend, Dean Sawyer, and toast to the bride was given by her grandfather Mr. Bert Fitchell. Marilyn's two sisters both sang special numbers for the bride and groom, and delighted guests, after which Marilyn presented her mother with a bouquet.

For her going away outfit, the bride made a tailored suit of tan ultra-suede with champagne satin blouse and wore a tiny butterfly orchid corsage of burnt orange. She also made the groom's smart 3-piece vested suit in misted blue soft cord.

After a honeymoon in Hawaii, Steve and Marilyn are now residing in Central Saanich.

Robinson—Bury

A pretty wedding uniting Maureen Ellen Bury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bury, and Bruce Murray Robinson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Robinson took place May 27, 1978, at 6:30 p.m. in St. Mary's Church. The service was conducted by the Rev. Marlowe Anderson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an elegant gown of white silk jersey. The medieval neckline, empire waist and fitted bodice were adorned with re-embroidered silk lace appliques. The sleeves were long and slender, while the A-line skirt swept back from the waist entraine. Her lace edged finger-tip length veil fell from a headdress of stiffened re-embroidered silk lace. Maureen carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses. The matron of honour Mrs. Cheryl Bury, sister-in-law of the bride, and the bridesmaids Mrs. Janice Derrick and Miss Dana Robinson, sister of the groom, were dressed alike in sea spray green dresses. They wore white carnations in their hair, and carried colonial bouquets of Talisman roses, yellow carnations and baby's breath. The groom wore a brown tuxedo suit, white ruffled shirt with brown accents and a yellow rose boutonniere. His attendants Ken Schwantie as best man, Doug Bury, brother of the bride, and Mark Robinson, brother of the groom, were also in brown tuxedo suits with beige ruffled shirts, brown accents and Talisman rose boutonnieres. The mother of the bride wore a turquoise blue floor length ensemble and a pink orchid corsage, while the mother of the groom wore an apricot gown with a green orchid corsage.

A reception and dance was held at the Esquimalt Recreation Centre. Mr. Clarence Ackerman proposed the toast to the bride. After a honeymoon spent in Hawaii, Maureen and Bruce are now residing in Victoria.

Heckley—Van Kemenade

Father Mudge officiated at the double-ring ceremony in St. Rose Catholic Church, Sooke, on June 17, 1978, uniting in marriage Jeannie P., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Kemenade, Victoria, and Norman A. Heckley, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Heckley, Sooke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her long white traditional gown, and was attended by maid of honor Helen Turner, bridesmaids Carolyn Kirby and Barb Adsett. Best man was Ralph Hutchings, and ushers were George Kirby and George Adsett.

A reception followed at Royal Canadian Legion Branch 54, Sooke. The newlyweds are residing in Sooke.

Anniversaries

Aston 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Aston of 1049 Southgate celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at a dinner and reception at Holyrood House on Monday, July 3.

Mrs. Aston, the former Muriel Madden, and Lionel Aston were married at Fort San, Sask., July 3, 1928. Mrs. Aston recalls that after the reception at the Nurses residence at the San, the wedding party came out on the steps for an official photograph, and were confronted by a decorated horse drawn ash wagon into which they climbed and were treated to a ride through the grounds of the Sanatorium, to the delight of the patients and staff. Muriel and Slim, as their friends affectionately call them, spent many memorable years on the prairies, all of them in Sask., before retiring and moving to Victoria in 1968.

Family and friends spent a most nostalgic evening renewing old friendships and reminiscing. Immediate family of Mr. and Mrs. Aston included son Lionel and wife Dorothy, with sons Doug, Mike and Bobby of Port Alberni, son Rae from Montreal, and Ken and Mae Newans with children Michael and Janet of Calgary.

YOUR CITY WATCHDOG REPORT

Number 65 — Congratulations to Mayor Michael Young for suggesting that police be given the right to impound bicycles being riden on sidewalks. Your City Watchdog feels that taxpayers should be able to vote by referendum on large expenditures, especially regarding school costs. Many thanks go to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Balegno for allowing James Bay Senior Citizens to use their garden for an Annual Garden Party! Your City Watchdog feels that there are too many popcorn carts on the Causeway with Market Square signs and all carts should be restricted to the West side of the causeway only. If the sightseeing buses have been restricted to the east side of the Causeway, after being on both sides of Government St. for years, in front of the Empress, surely the carts should be restricted to the West side of Government, otherwise next we will find popcorn and icecream carts on the South side of Bellville. Then your City's Watchdog would be in favor of prohibiting all carts from the Parliament Buildings area. If you wish information regarding city matters please continue to phone 383-6259. Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards. Postscript: Many thanks to whoever was responsible for having the shuttlebus go past the bus depot and Empress Hotel.

WOMAN, YOUNG 50, EDUCATed, seeks open, honest relationship. Interested in home life, animals, children. Non-smoker, social drinker. No triflers please. Victoria Press Box 478.

MARIE L., PLEASE CONTACT Anne re babysitting, after 6:00. 385-6914.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

NIPPED IN THE BUD

Just after I won the Belgian Chess Championship at 18, I became very much interested in blindfold chess, an interest that has never left me. One of the outstanding idols I had in those days was Gyula Breyer. He was born in Budapest in 1893, and there he spent his schooldays and studied engineering at the university.

Breyer's first international tournament was in 1912, when he was 18. He placed seventh in a field of 17. That same year, he won the Hungarian Championship.

In 1921, he won the Berlin Masters Tournament and set a new world record in blindfold simultaneous, 25 games of which he won 15, drew 7 and lost 3.

His great achievements in both blindfold and tournament chess led many to believe that he was certain to have a long and brilliant chess career. But his death at 28 robbed the chess world of one of its finest stars.

A hypermodern and brilliant experimentalist, Breyer tried to prove that the opening move P-Q4 was stronger than P-K4. He invented the gambit that bears his name and was also a problem composer. He made some very deep combinations, and these, plus his blindfold skills, intrigued me immensely. Even before his death in November of 1921 of heart disease, I had decided to emulate him, and this is what started me on my way to the World Blindfold Championship.

THE FOUNDING FATHER OF RUSSIAN CHESS

Russia's dominance of world chess today can be credited in large part to Emmanuel Schiffers (1850-1904) who is quite justifiably known as "Russia's Chess Teacher." His "Chess Self-Taught" is a work of such enduring value that it is still being distributed in Russian schools.

Here's a game he played in St. Petersburg in 1877:

WHITE: Anon.
BLACK: Schiffers

1.	P-K4	P-K4
2.	N-KB3	N-QB3
3.	B-B4	N-B3
4.	P-Q4	PxP

6.	PxP	N-QR4
7.	QxP	NxB
8.	QxNB4	QxP
9.	QxP	QxNP
10.	QxPch	K-Q1
11.	R-B1	B-N5ch
12.	P-B3	R-K1ch
13.	B-K3	RxBch
14.	PxR	QxN
15.	PxB	QxPch
16.	K-Q1	B-N5ch

18.	N-B3	Q-K7ch
19.	K-N3	B-K3ch
20.	Resigns

The solution to the problem above is: 1. Q-KN1, KxP; 2. P-B4 mate; or 1 . . . PxN; 2. P-B3 mate; or 1 . . . PxPch, 2. N-Q6 mate; or 1 . . . P-B4 ch., 2. P-K6 mate.

Murder Ends Peace Bid

SALISBURY (UPI) — The bodies of four black Rhodesian government officials who disappeared on a mission to make peace with black nationalist guerrillas have been found in shallow graves, a military spokesman said Friday.

The four were members of Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council, one of the moderate black groups that forms Prime Minister Ian Smith's transistional government.

The spokesman said the four, including three men and a woman, were found with their hands tied behind their backs, shot through the head and then buried in a four-and-a-half feet deep grave about 155 miles southeast of Salisbury.

He said the envoys, whose car was found empty and gutted by fire on June 26, were paraded in front of 200 tribesmen at a nearby village and labelled as "sellouts."

At the time the car was found, the National Council said the four were presumed dead but the bodies had not been located.

It was the second group of moderate black nationalist officials to die while trying to make contact with guerrilla forces to bring about a cease-fire in the six-year-old bloody bush war.

In May, four aides of Rev. Ndabanini Sithole, another black leader involved in Smith's "internal" settlement agreement, were shot and killed by guerrillas while campaigning for acceptance of the proposals for black majority rule.

Garbage Blaze

Colwood RCMP are still shaking their heads over an early morning house fire at 2725 Jacklin.

A police spokesman said Robert Hodgson was burning garbage in the backyard of the house at 4 a.m. when sparks flew up and landed on his jacket.

Hodgson went inside and threw his jacket down but minutes later it burst into flames.

The house filled with smoke and Hodgson, his wife and their infant child, beat a hasty retreat.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, July 9
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Job becomes more pleasant. Rapport with superior, co-workers improves. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio individuals figure prominently — and so does the number 6. Family member makes important concession. Situation on home front changes — for the better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Illusion, romance, subtle nuances, significant changes, intensified relationship are part of scenario. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Emotions tend to dominate. Give logic equal play. Your own style, verve, panache are featured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on building materials, solid objects, basic values. Relationship is no longer a "mild friendship." It is intensified. One who is involved with you wants more emotional and financial security. Stick to principles, to quality. Give yourself a chance to be happy!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't hang on to outmoded concepts. Let go of past. You have genuine opportunity for new start, successful stride into a promising, productive future. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently. Yes, the feelings of affection and love are reciprocated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New approach means money. Study Cancer message. The number 1 figures prominently. Individual with unique idea approaches you for moral, financial support. Be encouraging, open-minded, but not gullible. Another Leo is in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Follow through on hunch. Dare to dream, to take a chance on your own abilities. One who aided in past will have some valid recommendations. Accent on initiative, timing, faith in yourself. Popularity soars — make personal appearances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Delightful side of your character is revealed. You could be life of party. Aura of mystery, intrigue is present. Gemini, Aquarius, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario — so does the number 3. A clandestine meeting could be featured.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on counting your blessings. You learn how fortunate you are, how much potential you have. Emphasis on wish fulfillment, friends, affection, correct business, career decisions. Frank discussion clears the air — in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Superiors, those in positions of authority play key roles. Have notes, pertinent material at hand. Be prepared for changes, travel, chance to put viewpoint across. Your best interests are being served.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar aspect promotes travel, publication, wider range of communication. Be diplomatic, gracious — family member proves an asset. You can win points, but you cannot force them. Know it and act accordingly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you view situation in realistic light, you gain. Accent on finances, taxes in connection with a legal agreement, partner or mate. Dig beneath layers of superficiality. An associate says a sure-fire plan for making money is yours for the asking. Don't ask!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Businss of contracts, legal agreements, verifications, rights and permissions — these are spotlighted. Take nothing for granted. Be responsible enough to clarify priorities. Relationship is intensified. Capricorn figures prominently — and so does the number 8. Older person is in your corner.

IF JULY 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are sensitive to pulse of public. You understand principles of law, service, drama. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You have flair for international cuisine and events. December should be one of your most significant months of 1978, a year featuring change, travel, publication, relationship that is solid. If single, the year could feature marriage. If married, there could be an addition to family. Married or single, you have more freedom and you breathe free air as contrasted to recent restrictions, frustrations.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, July 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on service, determining what is valid, what is false. Key is to avoid self-deception. Whispers and rumors abound — stick to fact, not wishful thinking. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. One who depends upon you will voice opinion — timidly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Involvement, intensity, seriousness about member of opposite sex — these are emphasized. Cancer, Capricorn, Virgo figure prominently. You made a commitment; now you have responsibility that goes with it. Creative endeavors now bring pleasure and profit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Solidify deal; work to improve status by being aware of potential, long-range view. Substitutes won't suffice. Insight on the genuine article. Yes, you will understand; message will be clarified. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Family member announces major decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Fresh concepts, ideas are featured. Personal magnetism attracts interesting, challenging people, especially those of the opposite sex. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Accent on trip, visit, message — could be very significant.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on sifting through possessions, deciding what to retain. Streamline procedures — simplify your life. Follow through on hunch, heed inner voice. Money, how to increase income potential — these are of concern and can be resolved. Go to it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take initiative, stress independence, originality. Diversify, attend social function, display sense of humor, be versatile, expand horizons. Yes, you can do it — the Moon is in your sign, your number is 3. These and other factors mark you indelibly as the winner!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check fine print, read between the lines — be thorough, specific, direct. You can be free of "bad dreams," fears, doubts, restrictions imposed by you. You're on the brink of important change, discovery, relationship. Know it and be of good cheer!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on significant communications, ability to write, make necessary changes, dramatize and illustrate beliefs, needs. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. One who is more than mildly interested in you puts cards on table — face up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on results, financial, domestic adjustment. Individual with unusual voice could come into your life. Spotlight on climbing to a more elevated position, community project, dealings with superiors, promotional possibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Abstract concepts can be solidified. Missing links obtained through correspondence; opening lines of communication. Pisces, Virgo figure in scenario — and so does the number 7. You could be appearing before the media.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check leases, financial stability of one who makes promises. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently. Long-standing debt could be paid. Money, security dominate — love also is in picture, but durability might depend on financial strength.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish rather than begin — reach beyond current expectations. Aries, Libra persons could play key roles. Accent on partnership or marital status, getting support from those who do not always agree with you.

IF JULY 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are creative, stubborn, attractive and temperamental. Major domestic adjustment or residence change occurs — September and November will be memorable months of 1978. Leo, Aquarius persons play key roles in your life. You are dynamic, passionate, an independent, original thinker. It is not unlikely that you will achieve fame and fortune.

Richest Hijackers Expelled

NARITA, Japan (Reuter) — Five Japanese Red Army guerrillas, who became the richest air hijackers of all time when they were paid $6 million in ransom, have been expelled from Algeria, a Japanese government mission spokesman said today.

The whereabouts of the hijackers and the money remained a mystery more than nine months after they seized a Japan Air Lines DC—8 over India.

The hijackers took over the plane carrying 156 passengers and crew on September 28, 1977, and after a dramatic five days gave themselves up at Algiers airport. No passengers were injured.

Hahime Ishii, the head of the Japanese investigating team which has just returned from Algeria, said the hijackers had been expelled about one week after they surrendered.

Ishii said Algerian officials refused to disclose where the hijackers went.

He said the team was told that the hijackers did not have the ransom money when they arrived in Algiers.

$1M LOOT SHRINKS

DUBLIN (Reuter) — A diamond expert said Friday that armed robbers at first believed to have stolen industrial diamonds valued at $1 million got away with no more than $20,000 worth.

The gems stolen in the hijacking of a post office van Thursday night were uncut industrial diamonds, said a spokesman for the owners, De Beers Industrial Diamonds, and were worth no more than $20,000.

First reports had put the value of the diamonds at $1 million.

Book Exposing CIA Illegal

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Former CIA agent Frank W. Snepp was ordered by a U.S. federal judge Friday to surrender his "ill-gotten gains" from a book about CIA conduct in Vietnam and to get the agency's approval before publishing anything else.

U.S. District Judge Oren Lewis did not rule on whether Snepp will be required to forfeit his profits, only that they be placed in trust for now. But Lewis rejected Snepp's contention that the evidence justified at most only a symbolic penalty.

"Nominal damages in a case like this would be nothing more than a licence to continue doing what the law forbids," the judge said in a written order.

Snepp, who was a CIA agent for 7½ years and served two tours of duty in Vietnam, said in his book that the intelligence agency made errors in judgment in the evacuation of Saigon that resulted in leaving behind many Vietnamese who had aided the United States.

The CIA sued him, alleging he had broken an oath to clear his manuscript with the agency before publication.

New Scandal Rocks Seoul

Washington Post

SEOUL — Just as it dared to hope that the influence-buying affair in Washington was over, the South Korean government has ben rocked by a home-grown scandal involving some of its highest officials.

At least 190 high-echelon officials are under investigation for having bought valuable apartments at very low prices from one of the country's biggest corporations, the Hyundai group.

Some of them, it was revealed this week, promptly sold the apartments at quick profits. Others have moved into the comfortable new homes, almost impossible to find elsewhere on Seoul's housing market.

The government is investigating to determine whether the apartments were offered by Hyundai as bribes or whether some officials may have solicited them with offers of favorbale bureaucratic treatment.

The scandal, which broke in the newspapers early this week, has caused an uproar.

An embarrassed President Park Chung Hee, who frequently styles himself as a guardian against corruption, has sternly admonished everyone involved and said that those who sold their apartments for profit will be punished. Others will merely be warned.

The 190 government officials involved reportedly include six members of the National Assembly and high-ranking members of the Economic Planning Board, Commerce-Industry Ministry, Finance Ministry and Construction Ministry.

In addition, 34 important figures in the press and television are also said to have been given the favored treatment.

All housing is at a premium in Seoul, which has grown rapidly in population in recent years and now stands at 7.5 million people. The government has built thousands of new units every year, distributing most of them through a lottery system to assure fairness.

Those under scrutiny now were built under a special exception by a subsidiary of the giant Hyundai group, the Korea Urban Development Co. The apartments were supposed to be used for families of Hyundai employees and executives.

But at least 190 of them, according to news reports, were sold at bargain rates to the government officials. Many of them were sold quickly at profits ranging up to $25,000.

Flood Aid Cleared

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Gov. Dixy Lee Ray today declared a state of emergency in Lincoln and Grant counties following flash flooding and heavy rains there between July 1 and 4.

The counties had asked for the declaration, which opens the way for state and federal economic assistance.

State Emergency Services Director Betty McClelland said her office will help the Eastern Washington counties apply for federal disaster relief funds for restoration of damaged property and farmlands.

Lincoln received at least $800,000 in damage to roads. Floods destroyed two bridges on county roads near Sprague and Harrington and wiped out a number of miles of state and county roads, too.

Appeal Allowed In FBI File Case

WASHINGTON (WP) — Attorney General Griffin B. Bell won a round Friday in his fight to prevent disclosure of secret FBI informant files.

A federal appeals court judge in New York temporarily suspended a lower court order holding Bell in contempt of court to allow time for an appeals court panel to review the unprecedented action.

Judge Murray I. Gurfein of the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the "exceptional" nature of the case led him to conclude that Bell was entitled to an appeal.

It is now likely that heated legal battle between the attorney general and the Socialist Workers Party, backed by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa, will not be settled until this fall, when the Second Circuit starts its next session.

$100,000 GRAVEYARD SHIFT AWARD

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Macmillan Bloedel Ltd. has been ordered to pay more than $100,000 in wages withheld from employees who refused to work new graveyard shift hours at the company's Somass sawmill operation.

In an award made last month, arbitrator Clive McKee ruled in favor of Local 1-85, International Woodworkers of America in the dispute which centred around the Somass workers' defiance of an order changing Monday graveyard shift starting times to midnight from one a.m.

In making his decision, McKee appealed to both sides to settle the question, saying "sound labor relations dictate that this matter be explored and resolved and not be allowed to drift on."

Triple Milfoil Fight

KELOWNA (CP) — A three-pronged attack against Eurasian milfoil and other water weeds plaguing British Columbia waterways, particularly the Okanagan Lakes, was announced Friday by federal environment minister Len Marchand.

Marchand said a $94,000 contract has been awarded to Fraser Burrard Diving of Richmond, a Vancouver suburb, for the design, construction and testing of an underwater weed plow to be tested on Okanagan Lake by the end of the summer.

The minister also announced a second contract worth $313,000 to three consulting firms based in Ontario and Nova Scotia to design, build and test a new and safer system for the use of herbicide 2,4-D in the Kawartha lakes in Ontario.

Marchand also said that a ban has been placed on the import of seven species of water weed, including the Eurasian milfoil, as home aquariums have been blamed as one of the sources of noxious water weeds in Canada.

Environment Canada has banned the import of Eurasian milfoil, the waterchestnut plant, hydrilla, Brazilian pond weed and three other species of plant under the Plant Quarantine Act.

Marchand said the underwater weed plow to be built for use in the Okanagan Lake system uses a blade to uproot the milfoil weed from six inches into the sediment bottom of the lake.

He estimated it will cost $500 per acre to operate the plow on its first pass on the weeds, and $100 an acre on future passes. He said preliminary plans are to use the machine once a year or every two years.

Marchand said the results of the tests may provide a successful mechanical means of removing noxious plants from lakes and rivers without having to resort to chemical control.

The minister said the $313,000 contract for the Kawartha Lakes involves the use of herbicides like 2,4-D without the need for putting the herbicides in the water.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL FIGHTS GUERRILLAS

SALISBURY (AP) — A 12-year-old girl grabbed her wounded mother's pistol and helped fight off black nationalist guerrillas who ambushed the family's two-car convoy in eastern Rhodesia, it was reported today.

The girl's 10-year-old brother also was wounded in the attack, and the woman and her son were listed in satisfactory condition in a Salisbury hospital, the South African Press Association reported.

The news agency said the girl and her mother were travelling in one car and the father and son in a second when guerrillas attacked near Cashel, 64 kilometres south of Umtali on the Mozambique border.

The girl used her mother's .38-calibre pistol to return the fire while her father opened fire with a rifle, the agency said.

It said the family, which is white, was in the process of moving from its farm in the area. The family name was not released because of security regulations.

Beer Pickets Back As Charges Flying

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brewery workers in the Greater Vancouver area resumed 24-hour-a-day picketing Friday, charging that several hotels have had beer delivered from behind picket lines.

John Langley, business agent for the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers, said the union has also assembled "flying picket squads" to follow trucks suspected of carrying beer from the breweries.

Langley said the union became suspicious because several hotels, which he refused to name, were without domestic beer for several weeks "then all of a sudden they had beer."

He said several trucks were seen Friday carrying beer.

However Bob Binnendyk, vice-president and general manager of Labatt's in B.C., said the charges are "totally and absolutely unfounded."

Binnedyk said there has been no beer delivered to hotels from Labatt's breweries in New Westminster and Victoria. He said he was sure the same applied to Carling-O'Keefe, Molson's and Columbia, the other breweries involved in the strike-lockout which has cut British Columbia beer supplies for almost a month.

A spokesman for the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union said Friday he was unaware of any deliveries of domestic beer.

Langley said the suspected shipments were the reason the union turned down a request by Labatt's and Carling-O'Keefe that trucks carrying carbon dioxide be allowed through picket lines.

Binnendyk said gas will be needed "if and when we get ourselves back into production" and that without it, start up would be delayed about two days.

Binnedyk said the lack of gas will jeopradize about 25,000 barrels of beer—the equivalent of 350,000 cases—which could go flat if the dispute continues.

"It's not a critical situation yet but it could become critical," he said, "in two or three weeks for some of the beer. Beer does not improve with age like whisky."

Meanwhile, B.C. beer drinkers are making do with supplies of imported United States and European beer or are turning to white wine and cider.

"Our only problem is trying to keep up with the demand," said production manager Paul Bergeron of Jordan and Ste. Michelle Cellars Ltd.

PLAYING POSSUM SAVES PROSPECTOR

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A wounded prospector acted dead and saved himself from an alarmed black bear as he emerged from swimming in the Chilliwack River, 10 kilometres south of this Fraser Valley community.

John MacAndrews, 54, of Surrey, suffered facial cuts when the female bear, apparently alarmed for the safety of her two cubs, struck him as he was dressing on the river bank.

He was not seriously injured and was released after examination at Chilliwack Hospital.

Mark Pimlott, regional information officer of the fish and wildlife branch, said MacAndrews likely saved himself by playing possum. If a bear attacks, he said, a fetal position will help protect the victim's face, neck and stomach.

Syrup Incident Thickens

LONDON (CP) — Buckingham Palace is aghast at the suggestion of ingratitude levelled at the Queen by the city fathers of Westmount, Que., and promises an immediate investigation.

Westmount, which has donated $500 worth of maple syrup for the royal breakfast pancakes each year for the last 10 years, says the Queen didn't say "thank you" this year.

A palace spokesman said that all mail is acknowledged and "we even thank people for gifts which we don't accept."

The spokesman said the first the palace heard about the situation came in a telephone call from a Toronto newspaper.

"It's a surprising story altogether," he said.

He admitted "mistakes do occur — but not often."

Jail for a Swim

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents who allow their children to swim at any of the city beaches closed because of pollution could face fines of up to $500, one year in jail or both, says an official of the Ottawa-Carleton Children's Aid Society.

Italy PM Named

ROME (UPI) — Sandro Pertini, an 81-year-old wartime resistance hero once condemned to death by the Nazis, was elected as Italy's first socialist president today after a 10-day deadlock in parliamentary voting.

Tax Line Drawn

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — At a special meeting City council has approved a bylaw that limits increases on 1978 taxes to 10 per cent over those paid last year. Those whose tax bill has increased by more than 10 per cent and who have already paid are eligible to apply for a rebate on the excess.

Freight Disrupted

OTTAWA (CP) — Freight service between eastern and western Canada has been disrupted because 125 Canadian National Railways employees in the northern Ontario community of Capreol have been booking off sick, a company spokesman said today.

Disco Deafness

TORONTO(CP) — A report released Friday by Dr. G. W. Moss, the city's chief medical officer of health, recommends that ear protectors be promoted for use in discotheques.

Deficit Swells

OTTAWA (CP) — The government had a deficit on its operations during May of $313 million, more than twice the $149 million deficit recorded in the corresponding month a year earlier.

More Strike Time

There were 351,022 man-days lost due to labor-management disputes in B.C. during the first quarter of this year, compared with only 13,230 the year before in the same time period, the ministry of labor said Friday.

Convicts Given Wider Rights In B.C.

Prisoners' rights are given greater recognition in new rules and regulations for provincial correctional centres announced Friday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

Gardom said in a news release that under the regulations approved by cabinet, prisoners in the B.C. system will be dealt with in a fairer manner.

The attorney-general said the highlights of the new regulations include:

—A clarification and restructuring of the disciplinary processes which provides for an internal panel, with the inclusion of an appointed impartial third party and a system of appeal procedures;

—The setting down of definitive standards for the use of prisoner segregation, or solitary confinement;

—The institution of a grievance procedure giving prisoners a method to express their concerns;

—A general tightening of all guidelines, leaving less possibility for interpretation on the part of prison staff.

Gardom said prisoners must be advised in writing of any breach of prison rules and regulations that have occurred and a hearing must be held within 72 hours.

"An appeal procedure is available for inmates or staff to the director of inspection and standards within seven days of the determination of a hearing," he said.

"The regulations provide a range of alternatives, both formal and informal, in dealing with misconduct and providing opportunities to inmates to make amends. The penalties vary from reprimand to a limited use of segregation."

Other areas of the regulations give details on aspects of medical procedures, work, education and recreation.

He said the approval of the regulations follows a five-year study and were developed after consultation with institutional directors, corrections personnel, justice system components, private agencies, groups concerned with prisoners' rights and represetatives of the private sector.

"The final alterations were made with the updating of the Federal Prison and Reformatories Act and the Provincial Corrections Act," Gardom said.

Trafficking 'Profit' Removed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge moved Friday to take the profit out of drug trafficking by imposing a $50,000 fine in addition to a 12 1-2 year prison term on a trafficker.

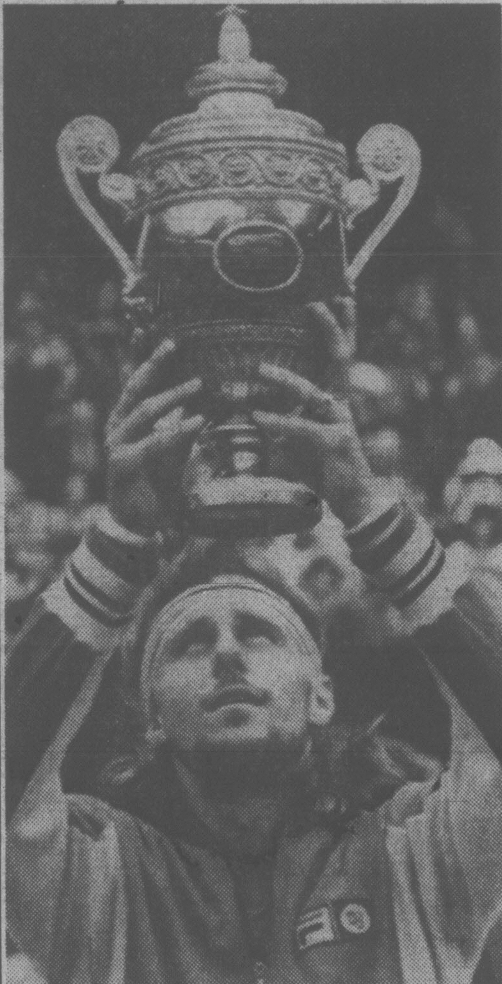
Justice Thomas Berger said he could think of no more effective way to deter the drug trade than to "confiscate the profits made in trafficking."

Justice Berger imposed the penalty on Milos Kotrbaty, 55, who pleaded guilty to two counts of trafficking in heroin after he sold a half ounce to an undercover policeman in January, 1976, and a full ounce to the same officer a month later.

The amounts involved totalled $5,300, but Justice Berger ruled that the court had the power to impose a fine that catches profits made by the accused in transactions other than those to which he had pleaded guilty.

He said the evidence in the case was that the money and liquid assets, which in Kotrbaty's case amounted to $183,000, came from the sale of heroin.

In default of payment of the $50,000 fine, Justice Berger ordered an additional five years imprisonment.



BORG BREEZES TO THIRD TITLE

LONDON (AP) — Bjorn Borg won his third consecutive Wimbledon men's singles title today by putting down American Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 in a comparatively mild rematch of their battle in the final last year.

The 22-year-old Swede became the first man since Fred Perry in the 1930s to win the crown three times in a row.

His victory this time was far more decisive than the five-set brawl he struggled through last year when he finally downed Connors 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4. This time it was all over in in one hour, 47 minutes.

Borg adds the crown to spectacular victories earlier this year in the French and Italian open championships.

No-Name Groceries Arrive

Lindsay displays products

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The prices seem incredible. A $3.39 box of detergent for $2.15, a $1.59 jar of strawberry jam for $1.29 and a $2.59 bottle of baby shampoo for $1.99.

It's part of the no-name grocery business sweeping the country. The first generic products have arrived in Victoria and they will go on sale Wendesday at the Royal Oak Econo-Mart.

Manager Gary Lindsay said he has only a small line of groceries to begin the new program but the list will be expanded within weeks.

"We are definitely the first to sell generic groceries in the Victoria area."

Generic groceries have no brand names, and that's where the savings come, he said.

There is no fancy packaging or advertising campaign.

"Companies spend thousands and thousands of dollars to get their products known so supermarkets will stock them. With generic products there is none of that because the label simply says peas or corn or coffee."

Lindsay was reluctant to talk prices because there is not supposed to be any competitive action taken to support generic groceries.

"Once you get into that, you start running ads and the whole purpose of the venture has been lost."

He did mention the above prices, however, and added that bleach would sell at 98 cents. A famous brand name bleach the same size sells at $1.37.

"In general, the price reductions should be as much as 20 per cent."

In some cases, however, prices are like comparing apples and oranges since products may be similar but not identical.

"The guarantee is that all generic products are number one quality and all ingre-

Drugs . . . fees to fill doctors' orders hike the bills.

Prescription Charges Painful to Pocketbook

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Vic Williams had a toothache but the real pain came when he went to the pharmacist to pick up medication prescribed by his dentist.

The pharmacist counted out eight tablets into one vial and 12 different tablets into another.

Then he handed Williams the bill. Cost of the drugs — $2.37; cost of filling the perscription — $7, for a total of $9.37.

Williams was dumbfounded.

"Seven dollars for counting out some pills!" he complained in a Times interview.

"It's a rip-off. If trade unions set such rates there'd be a revolution."

He said he took his case to Health Minister Bob McClelland.

McClelland said he is "not unaware" of the problem and hinted the government is planning to do something.

But McClelland didn't elaborate and Williams said he's still waiting for an explanation why the fee was so high for only two minutes work.

It's not that prescription fees are anything new. Pharmacists have been charging them for the past seven years. In the past, the profit came on the price of drugs but now they must sell the drugs at cost. Their profit now is included in their fees which average about $3.50 per prescription in B.C..

Jim Swanson, manager of the United Pharmacy in Colwood and past president of the B.C. Pharmacists Society, says despite the fact more than 95 per cent of drugs dispensed are pre-made and manufactured rather than hand-compounded, the profit factor is only a matter of pennies or quarters.

"It costs on the average $3 to fill a prescription," he says.

This takes into account rents, salaries and customer services like "free" delivery, patient drug profiles and time spent counselling patients on drug use and interactions.

He compares fees for service to those charged by accountants or lawyers.

One James Bay pharmacist pegs his dispensing profit at only about five per cent.

Swanson says for years, because of competition and a lack of knowledge about cost breakdowns, the front end business in most drug stores subsidized the dispensary operation.

That's no longer the case with the fee system. Now pharmcists have the mechanism to ensure the dispenary shows a return.

The problem from the consumer standpoint is there is no set fee, nor is there any onus on a pharmacist to provide a particular range of services.

Swanson, who charges a flat $3.75 a prescription, would like to see a one-fee system. But a Times survey of 13 pharmacies in the Greater Victoria area revealed wide variation with fees ranging from as low as $3.15 to a high of $4.35 per prescription.

Many pharmacists reported they use sliding scales, adjusting the fee according to the cost of the drug.

The kinds of services offered also varied.

The majority advertised free delivery within a five mile radius. Several phamacists said they keep detailed records on the types of drugs patients receive.

One pharmacist admitted he gave none of these services yet charges prescription fees ranging from $3.15 to $3.99.

Some doctors to minimize fee costs are writing perscriptions for larger quantities of drugs so patients won't have to return as often to the pharmacist to have the order filled.

But that's a practice Swanson brands irresponsible.

To hand out larger quantities would be to invite abuse, he says.

UIC Claimants Pay Price For Ottawa's Goof

Some 500 people who collected unemployment insurance in April and May last year will receive a bit of bad news in the mail next week.

Ottawa wants some of the money back.

"We regret to inform you that an error has been made," say the computer form letters going out to 400 people in Victoria and 100 in Duncan.

The error was a clerical mistake in the spring of 1977 that programmed computers to pay out an extra $100,000 in unemployment insurance.

Now the federal government is attempting to collect. Bob Haines, manager of the Victoria unemployment insurance office, said Friday the amounts vary from $11 to $532 but average about $250 each.

The error affected a number of regions across Canada and about $5 million extra was paid out. Victoria and Vancouver unemployment insurance offices lost about $1 million.

The Unemployment Insurance Act says that when regional unemployment is more than one per cent above the national rate, then many unemployment insurance claims go into an extended period of benefits. Last spring the national rate was 7.2 per cent, the B.C. rate 8.2 per cent — exactly one per cent difference and just .1 per cent short of triggering the extra payments. But someone programmed the computers to do so anyway, and the cheques were mailed.

Haines said many people who receive the dunning letters will be angry, but shouting at the local unemployment insurance staff will accomplish nothing; the law says overpayments must be recovered. It's a national policy and only your MP can effect a change.

He said that unfortunately, many of those affected were on the fringes of the labor market — those in their 60s, people who had been unemployed for a very long time — and may have left the work force entirely since then.

He also added that everyone who gets a letter has the right to appeal the special levy to an independent board of referees.

'Quit Or Be Fired'

Saanich personnel director Arthur Wilkes was given the option of either resigning or being fired, acting mayor Ald. Mary Casilio said today.

Casilio said council at a closed-door meeting Tuesday agreed to approve a recommendation from municipal manager Bill Tremayne that Wilkes be removed from his job.

The announcement that Wilkes' relationship with the municipality had ended came earlier this week.

Casilio said she was the only alderman to vote against the recommendation.

She said she did so, because she felt Wilkes should have had an opportunity to defend himself.

"He (Wilkes) has the right to come before council and I feel we should have been able to hear his side of the story," she said.

The reason for Wilkes's dismissal has not been made public but apparently stems from his dealings with unions.

Wilkes was involved in the negotiations for a new police contract which have become bogged down over interpretation of a cost-of-living clause.

Artist Faces Charges Of Tax Evasion

A former Victoria artist and his company have been charged with evasion of $43,000 in income taxes.

Geoffrey Allan Rock, now of Vancouver, has been ordered to appear in Victoria provincial court Aug. 4.

A Revenue Canada spokesman said the charges allege that Rock failed to report 1973 income of $8,042.37 and 1974 income of $13,103.42.

There are also two charges against his company, Unicorn House (Cheltenham) Ltd., totalling about $22,000.

Tennis Trip Defended

Saanich parks and recreation chairman Ald. Fred Severson today defended a trip made by himself, Ald. Dave Paterson and two municipal officials to view tennis facilities in the U.S. and Canada.

Severson said the trip, which cost about $2,600, will save thousands of dollars for the municipality.

Severson was answering criticism from municipal ombudsman Ald. Mary Casilio who questioned the value of the trip and the selection of those who went along.

Casilio said she's been inundated with complaints from taxpayers who say the trip was a waste of public funds.

She said she can understand Severson and recreation director Bill Young going on the trip but not Paterson or Alan Colombo, supervisor of the Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Severson called Casilio's complaints a cheap shot.

He said council at an open meeting unanimously decided to undertake the survey and if Casilio had any questions it she should have brought them up then.

Mayor Mel Couvelier made the selection of who would go.

Severson said Paterson was chosen because he is chairman of the finance committee and Colombo because he will be in charge of the tennis operation when it's in place.

The group left Wednesday and returned late Friday after touring facilities in Denver, Col., Terre Haute, Indiana, and Calgary.

All were built by the five companies bidding on a four-court tennis bubble at Cedar Hill.

Severson said that as result of the trip, the group is better able to negotiate the kind of warranties and guarantees the municipality should be seeking.

In addition the group feels there could be several areas where the municipality could cut costs..

A recommendation is expected to go before council sometime next week.

FERRY SEX BIAS PROBE STARTS

The provincial Human Rights Branch has launched an investigation into allegations of sex discrimination in the B.C. Ferries Corporation's hiring prolicies.

The probe was sparked by a complaint that the corporation has failed to give equal opportunity to men and women and denied women senior management positions.

Branch director Kathleen Ruff declined to comment when reached at her home in Victoria this morning.

She said details of such investigations are strictly confidential.

Police Lay Charge Of Attempted Murder

A 25-year-old man was charged today with attempted murder following an early morning stabbing in an apartment in James Bay.

Anthony David Lowe, of 273 West Burnside, was remanded in custody until early next week for plea.

Victoria police said a 26-year-old woman is in good condition in Victoria General Hospital recovering from a stab wound in her abdomen.

Her name is being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Police were called to the woman's resident at 302-114 Menzies at about 3 a.m.

Nearby residents reported loud noises coming from the apartment.

When officers arrived they found the woman stabbed.

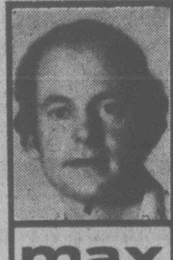
BURNED-OUT FAMILY STARTS AGAIN

'Nowhere To Go But Up'



max low

Pain showed in Jim Holt's eyes as he looked at the ashes.

It had been a home he'd built with his own hands and a few basic tools. A home that, though containing few of the amenities most of us are used to, he was proud of.

But in those eyes there was also a quiet resolution that the fire which Tuesday destroyed his house and blackened some of his land in the beautiful Highlands area will not change a lifestyle he believes is right.

"I'll go the same route again," Jim said simply as we wandered through the rubble Wednesday. "I won't be put off my original concept of finding an alternative energy source. Someone's got to do it."

Going the same route for Jim Holt, his wife Daphne and their children 10-year-old Christopher and four-year-old Genevieve (Jenny) will mean rebuilding the wood-frame house they lost and continuing to live in a manner that would make most of us shudder.

Lifestyles fascinate me, though, so I popped back for a long chat with the family Friday and came away feeling inspired at all that courage and determination.

When they rebuild their home, once again it will have no electricity and no running water.

"We did all our cooking and heating with wood stoves and used coal oil lamps at night," explained Jim. "For a long time we carried buckets of water up to the house from a creek below but then I installed a small generator and we pumped the water up to a big rain barrel."

Drinking water was stored in bottles, there was a baby bath for everyone to use in the winter and in summer a shower was rigged up outside the house in a tin can. Nearby stands an outdoor toilet that has no front and looks more like a small bus shelter waiting for passengers.

"We like to sit and watch the snowflakes fall," Jim explained with a smile. "Some of our friends are a bit funny about it. Like, a few of the women won't use it. But most of them think it's neat."

And what does a working mother (Daphne has been a lab technician at the CFB base at Naden and at the moment works for a telephone answering service) with two small children think of this back-to-nature existance?

"I really enjoy it," she said. "I don't like to sit around doing nothing. I like to keep busy and we always have something to do.

"The way we live really teaches you to be frugal, too, to conserve things like water. We lived for a while in a new subdivision in Central Saanich where you flick a switch and get everything. Well, our Hydro bill there for the first two months was $187! You just abuse it. City water and power are like credit cards — and you know how they are abused."

Television is something they don't miss at all.

"No, we read a lot, play games like chess and cards and listen to all the CBC radio shows," said Daphne.

"Chris is doing much better now at school," Jim pointed out. "He reads much more and is far more aware of the life around him. Besides, it's good for children growing up not to have too many work-saving appliances and for them to share in the family chores. All these modern gadgets today are destroying family unity."

"Yes," echoed Daphne, "you can't be together and watch TV because the screen takes people's attention away from each other."

For years Jim Holt has studied all forms of alternate energy. He has looked at solar heating, which he believes is something people here should treat lightly as we simply don't get enough sun.

"Because we live on the coast, wind is the alternative energy source we should be looking at here," pointed out Jim, who also said hydrogen power will be the thing of the future.

The Holts had ultimately intented to have power in their home, with the aid of a wind turbine he had hoped to build high on the hill above the house this summer.

"I wanted to have a home with no input — oil, propane or electricity — and then bring architechts, builders and tradesmen up here to see it to show them it can be done," Jim explained. "Contractors are so out of date. Just to make a buck, they're still building ticky tacky boxes that aren't efficient."

Alas, all this will have to wait a while now. A new home must be built before the wind turbine and other innovations can come.

"It's just set us back a year or so," Jim said with a shrug.

And as I left he was philosophical.

"I have a strange attitude to life I guess, but once these things happen they've happened. There's no use getting too upset.

"You're as far down as you can go. The only way for us to go now is up."

Festival Puts City in the Big-Time

audrey johnson

Many Victorians may not be aware of it yet, and many more who are, including some leading citizens of the metropolitan area, may be indifferent at present, but this city has already — while they were busy looking in other directions for international attention — become one of the magical "Festival Cities" of North America.

Sure, you might agree, a festival city in floral terms. They drip from lamp posts, burgeon in by-ways and alleys, rim every green spot, call to passers-by from the window ledges of banks and civic buildings. Or a festival city in terms of a climate and geography that permit a long and varied season of outdoor pastimes; the ideal holiday place where every prospect pleases and a fair amount of light, bright entertainment is available to while away the dark hours.

Still all this does not make Victoria one of the important festival cities of the continent as measured against major festival centres. To achieve that highly desirable distinction there must be something more. Well, we have had that something more for the past three years but few people have recognized it and therefore there was no clamor from the housetops, no sounding of trumpets abroad as there should have been.

What Victoria has become, in fact, and will be again for six weeks, starting July 13, is not merely one of the "Festival Cities" of North America, but a festival city of world calibre!

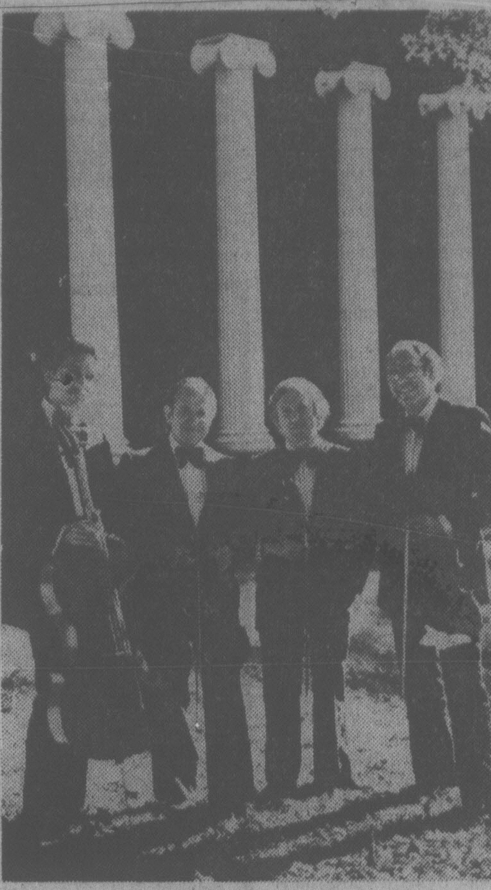
Skeptical? Check it out. Come in from the garden, in from the sea, away from the television, in from the country cottage on any Sunday, Tuesday or Thursday during the six weeks or even one of three Saturdays. No need to accept this evaluation second-hand. If great music and great artists mean something to you, the switch in your summer routine is almost certain to reward you with a winging of the spirit.

The Victoria International Festival starts its fourth season in Victoria as a separate entity from its founding partner, the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts, and must from now on make its separate bid for the world attention it warrants. Its ties to the Shawnigan Summer School are less overt, although invaluable — in fact, inevitable. But like the author or the stage artist whose successes place their name in type equal to that of the book or play, the International Festival has earned its separate and equal status.

In any of the great centres of continental Europe, the British Isles or the United States at various times of the year, you might come upon the opportunity of hearing acclaimed American pianists Abbey Simon or Robin McCabe; one of the world's half-dozen or so superb clarinetists, Gervase de Peyer; Canadian flutist Robert Aitken, who rates now alongside the revered Jean Pierre Rampeau in European eyes; legendary violinist Ruggiero Ricci, who will perform his 50th anniversary concert here July 30; or the Philadelphia String Quartet.

But they will in fact all be performing here in one or several of the 28 concerts that comprise the 1978 Victoria International Festival. These and more. Gary Karr, renowned string bass performer and his duo partner, harpsichordist Harmon Lewis; violinists Yuri and Dana Mazurkevich who dazzled audiences in last year's festival; cellist Hakuro Mori and guitarist Mario Escudero; Canada's lovely and celebrated mezzo soprano, Phyllis Mailing, and violist Leslie Malowany.

Anyone with a taste for opera should try not to miss the Festival's first venture into this field, appropriately with opera piccola (which only means small). The little charmer chosen for this debut is Arthur Benjamin's La Prima Donna. To stage it Founder-Director J.J. Johannesen has brought former opera star and recent operatic director at the Banff School of Fine Arts, Pierette Alarie, to Victoria, and the production will be presented twice, on Aug. 21 and 22.



The Philadelphia String Quartet

But the international significance of this event is not its only value to B.C.'s capital city. The communion and collaboration of the Festival with resident professional musical organizations is an important factor and is reflected this summer in the participation of violinist Sydney Humphreys, Trio Victoria, Robin Wood, and the University of Victoria Faculty Ensemble.

This year, for the first time, an excellent brochure is available listing artists who will be participating in each concert over the six weeks and major works to be performed. Beside the Ricci anniversary concert, specials include programs entitled Keyboard Opulence, which will feature many of the keyboard artists in programs of favorite keyboard classics, a Great Composers series of four concerts devoted to Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Schubert, and a concert of contemporary Canadian music.

The brochures can be picked up at the McPherson Playhouse, where the Sunday and Tuesday concerts and the opera will take place, at St.Michael's School on Richmond Road, where the rest of the concerts will be held, and at many stores and libraries, particularly music and book stores throughout the city.

Confusion still exists in many people's minds with regard to the title, Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts, and with its relationship to the festival. In simple terms, we would not have this great international event if it were not for the fact that the artists are present as a distinguished faculty conducting master classes for a creme-de-la-creme of students from all over the world. Incidentally the Shawnigan Summer School has a record enrolment this year of more than 200 tape-auditioned students.

The name Shawnigan now has no connection with Victoria's neighboring resort area. It's a carry-over from the fact that when Johannesen first conceived the idea as a centennial project in 1970, he established it at Shawnigan Lake Boys School. Since 1975 it has been resident at St.Michael's, but changing the name presents problems in international circles where the school has created an impressive reputation.

In the meantime, with little effort on our part, we have become the hosts of an annual event that closely parallels the famous events of Tanglewood, Aldeburgh, Salzberg, Edinburgh, and other festival centres, and could and probably will become as famous in a few years.

It's up to us. Do we have the vision? Can we put our priorities in the right perspective to achieve so appropriate and golden a destiny for this city?

"GOOD ENTERTAINMENT"
—Rich Mole, CFAX Radio
"Director Milius does a striking job of making us believe in the poetry and power of coming of age in surf city in the sixties.
THE BEST DIP IN THE NOSTALGIA WAVE SINCE AMERICAN GRAFFITI"
—Alan Difiore, CJVI Radio

A story of three friends growing up in the sixties; a decade of parties, weddings, escaping the draft and surfing . . .
